Eight Persons Fall Forty-five Feet from the Abutment of a Bridge-Two Killed and Six Terribly Mangled.

A frightful accident, that will never be forgotten by the terrified speciators, and one that will chill the blood of readers when they think apon the tragic incidents connected with it, occurred yesterday afternoon. We have always been sensible of the precariousness of life, and the uncertainty of earthly pleasures, but when we centemplate the wreck of a human being, whose heart but a few moments before beat high in the gratifying possession of health and strength, reduced in an instant of time to an inanimate mass by the Great Destroyer, we are bound to confess our utter insignificance, and are forced more humbly to acknowledge our dependence upon Divine elemency for an hour's pendence upon Divine elemency for an hour's continuation of our lives. The facts in the meiancoboly affair which has just occurred are melancholy affair which has just occurred are as follows:—

A party of six Germans assembled yesterday alternoon, and on the proposal of Mr. Wiegand, resolved to accompany him to the shooting-grounds on Fairmount, where the Red Men were holding their meeting. In pursuance of the resolution, they procured the horse and wagon of one of the party, a carpenter, named Frederick Oechsie, and taking with them the daughter of Mr. Wiegand, started. On the road they overtook a man named Emil Reich, who desired to get into the wagon, and they permitted him to do so. The party was a very amiable one, and proceeded without excitement until a burly wagoner endeavored to urge his horses in front of Oechsle's team, when that horses in front of Oechsie's team, when that person whipped up his nag, and was just pass-ing the wagoner when the bridge over Millcreek, on the road to Fairmount, was reached. The teamster got upon the bridge first, and in order to prevent his horse from being crushed, Occhsic drew the brute to the right-hand side. At that moment the animal became alarmed at some object in the vehicle that had preceded it, and commenced backing; in doing so one of the shafts was broken, and the horse plunging forward and making an acute turn, precipitated the wagon and its freight or human beings to the wagon and its freight of human beings to the ground below, a distance of not less than forty-five feet. The scene that followed was of the most melancholy and pittiul character.

The young girl Lena's neck was broken, and she laid quictly upon the ground, suffering greatly. Her agonies were soon over, for death deaft kindly with her, and when the bright eyes became glazed they were dutifully closed by sone good Samaritan, and her form borne to the watchman's box near the railroad track. Her father was injured badly about the head, and was consequently insensible. The carpenter, Occhsic, suffered the greatest agonies from frightful wounds in the head and body. He writhed and twisted in his efforts to obtain relief, and in each movement the life-blood relief, and in each movement the life-blood cozed out and stained the grass around him. He was finally taken to his home, on the corner of Cutter and Melancthon streets, where he died a short time after his arrival. Adam Guitterman in fell upon his left side, and striking his head noon a home streets. head upon a huge stone, received wounds which will surely cause his death during the day. His injuries consist of a compound fracture of the skull, involving the frontal, the parietal, and temporal bone. Dr. H. M. Heitiner, who at-tended him, and in fact rendered efficient service to all of the wounded persons, has no hopes of his recovery.

Andrew Pressler, who lives at No. 351 Cutter street, near Guittermann, was terribly cut and bruised, but in all probability will recover. His right will and left leg were broken, and his nose crushed.

J. H. Baumer, who lives at No. 67 Green street, was badly hurt, but his physicians entertain bopes of his recovery.

A man named Hummell, residing at No. 21 Martin street, sustained a number of bruises, and had his right foot twisted from its socket, and left hanging by the flesh. His case is a serious one.

Emil Reich, who keeps a saloon on the corner of Logan and Findlay streets, saw the imminent danger, jumped from the wagon, and dragged with him a man named Harman Hagenoch, who had got upon the vehicle when it first stopped. Both of these men escaped with slight injuries. The abutment from which the persons fell was entirely without guard, as the boards which are usually there to form a sort of barricade, had for some cause been removed. The fall was a terrific one, and those who viewed the scene were astonished that every one of the injured persons had not been killed. Coroner Eumert was summoned to hold an inquest upon the body of the little girl, but as he was compelled to conduct another inquest at 6 o'clock last evening, be selected the jurymen, bade them examine the ground, and postponed the inquest until 4 o'clock this afternoon leaving Constable Miller to convey the body to the Coroner's office.—Cincinnati Commercial, 10th.

When consciousness had remained insensible. When consciousness had returned he was again placed upon the scaffold, and, while the rope was being adjusted for the second time, the untortunate man vehemently exclaimed—"My God, this is too hard! For God's sake, make sure of your work this time!" Our informant states that the most intense excitement prevailed for a time in the jail-yard, persons running wiidly to and fro, the Sheriff among those most violently agitated, and not one daring to touch the body of the but half-executed murderer, which lay upon the earth writhing in agony. These, perhaps, are some of the "revolting particulars" upon which the Heraud's reporter had not the heart to descant. Herauf's reporter had not the heart to descant.

Fight Between United States Soldiers and Negroes at Farmville, Va. SEVERAL SOLDIERS AND NEGROES BADLY WOUNDED THE MAGISTRATES INTERFERE, BUT ARE BEATEN AND DRIVEN OFF.

FARMVILLE, Sept. 10.—A fight occurred here to-day between a number of United States soldiers and some negroes of the town, which at one time threatened to result in a most serious riot.

The cause of the affair is as follows:—The commanding officer of Company D, 21st Regiment United States Regulars, stationed at this point, yesterday issued an order forbidding any one from selling liquor to the soldiers, who had just been paid off. Last night a number of soldiers went to a saloon keps by a negronamed George Ferkins, and demanded liquor, which he refused to sell, stating that he was prohibited from selling it. The soldiers, after some harsh words, assaulted and beat the negro and another that was in the bar with him. The soldiers then went to camp, and everything was perfectly quiet until about 10 o'clock this morning, when the soldiers had a difficulty with a negro named Buck Fuqua. The negroes of the town rushed to the rescue of Buck, when a general light begun. It lasted about halt an bour, when a detachment of the company to which the fighting subjers belonged came on the ground, and with the butts of their muskets and a display of bayonets duspersed the crowd. During the melee no shots were fired, but clubs, stones, and other missiles freely used. The detachment bad to knock down several of both parties before order was restored; after which it was found that six solliers and about the same number of negroes had been injured. None of the wounds are considered dangerous.

During the melee hiesers. Thackston and Graves, magistrates of the county, appeared on the ground and commanded peace, which was replied to by a volley of missiles. By one of Graves, magistrates of the county, appeared on the ground and commanded peace, which was replied to by a volley of missiles. By one of them one of the magistrates was knocked down and slightly injured. No white citizens were engaged, nor, with the exception of the magistrates, injured. The quick suppression of the affair is due to the energy of Colonel J. M. Jordan.—Richmond Despatch.

THE POLITICAL WORLD.

The Trades' Unions of Cincinnati have nominated General S. F. Cary as their candidate for Congress, in the Second District, in place of Rutherford B. Hayes, and against Richard Swith, the regular Republican candidate. They say Mr. Smith, having been an editor for twenty years, must be opposed to the eight-hour system, as he has become wealthy by working at least eighteen hours a day. General Cary accepts the nomination in the following letter:—

"CINCINNATI, Sept 3, 1867.—Isaac J. Neal, Eaq.—sim.—Your letter of the 7th instant, in behalf of the Trades' Assembly' of this city, asking me certain questions, is before me.

"Whatever importance may be attached to my views upon these or any other topics of national importance, you are welcome to them.

"I will answer your questions very briefly, in their order:—"First. I believe the law authorizing the establishment of National Banks should be repealed and their circuination should be replaced by legal-tender notes, and the interest-bearing bonds to that extent cancelled. And further, I am opposed to any contraction of the currency until the interest-bearing debt has been greatly reduced or paid off. As fast as practicable, the bonds should be paid in 'lawfall money' (legal-tenders), and not in coin, except where the law creating them and the bonds themselves provide for such payment in coin. I am utterly opposed to any linearch as them which gives increased value to the rich man's dollar, and which makes the poor man's labor less remunerative. This I believe to be the necessary result of the course now pursued by the Treasury Department,

"Second. I am opposed to granting the public domain to corporations and speculators, under any pretext whatever. It should be appropriated to actual settlers, who may desire to but data altar and a home under the protection and fostering care of our free Government of the eight-hour rule in the national dock-var..s and work-shops. "This is believe is all the legis." Workingmen and Cougress.

"Third I am in favor of the adoption by the Government of the eight-hour rule in the national dock-yar, a and work-shops. This, i believe, is all the legislation which would be required to ultimately secure the universal adoption of the rule. Such was the effect of the adoption of the ten-hour rule, "I could extend these answers, but you will understand my general views from what I have already said. Truly yours, S. F. CARY."

Annual Session of the Grand Lodge, I. O. of O. F.

The annual session of the R. W. Grand Lodge of the United States, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will be opened on Monday next, the 16th instant, at Irving Hall, New York city.

The National Grand Lodge is the supreme head and ultimate tribunal of the order of Odd Fellowship. It is composed of representatives elected by the Grand Lodges and Grand Engagements of the appearance of the a campments of the several States and Territo-ries, each holding office for two years, and the body so arranged that one-half of the members retire annually. At the session of 1866, held in Baltimore, the number of representatives was 106, making, with the officers, a body of 114. $603,952 Death of a Well-known Newspaper Man. Mr. Patrick Kean, of Bichmond, Va., died suddenly in that city on Sunday afternoon last. Mr. Kean was probably one of the best known newspaper reporters in the South, having con-newspaper reporters in the South, having connected himself with the profession upwards of twenty years ago, as local editor of the Richmond Whig. Subsequently, some years before the breaking out of the war, he became the Virginia correspondent of the New York Herald, and continued his connection with that journal, with an interval of the four years of the Rebellion, till the day of his death. As a stenographic reporter he had but few superiors, and obtained some celebrity as the campaign reporter for Hon. John M. Botts, William C. Rives, and other Virginia politicians. He was a man of great physical endurance, and during the three weeks' secret session of the Virginia Convention of 1860, which passed the ordinance of secession, he accomplished the feat of reporting the whole proceedings, scarcely averaging during the time an hour's sleep to the twenty four. Mr. Kean was about forty-two years of age at the time of

THE DANGER OF HAIR DYES .- What chemist who reads the most numerous advertisements of hair dyes of marvellous properties, or, still more, who notices the number of persons who disfigure their hair with such applications, can have helped asking himself how far the use of these may account for the increase of that obscure class of diseases which the phy-sician finds it so difficult to deal with. Some of the most extensively used of these hair dyes are composed of a mixture of quick or slack lime, powdered white lead, and litharge. The mode of using these powders is to mix them into a paste with water, and plaster the head with it, covering it with oiled silk, or some other water proof tissue, to keep it moist, and letting it remain on for several hours. Now, there cannot be a doubt that during this time a considerable por-tion of lead must be absorbed into the system through the pores of the skin, which are rendered more than usually absorbent by having been previously cleansed, and by the heat which is engendered while the head re-mains covered with this impervious tissue. The poisonous property of lead when taken into the body in any form is well known, but it is only reasonable enough to conclude that its effects must be peculiarly injurious when absorbed through the skin so near to the These effects exhibit themselves in various forms; sometimes by inflammation of the alimentary canal; at other times by spasms of the muscles; but its effects in the particular instance under consideration would probably be on the nervous system, which might ulti-mately lead to apoplexy or partial palsy. Neither can the use of hair dyes, which are composed of putrate of silver sulphide of composed of nitrate of silver, sulphide of potassium, sulphate of copper, or prussiate of potash, be otherwise than injurious; and when we have mentioned these substances, we have not nearly specified all the deleterious substances used in their preparation.
