THE GREAT MEETING AT NATIONAL HALL LAST EVENING.

Long before the hour announced for the com-mencement of the meeting at National Hall, it was filled to its utmost capacity by a vast audience of ladies and gentlemen. The hall proper, the galleries, the private boxes, the stage, the stairway, and every available spot was occupied.

The platform was occupied by many of the most distinguished and eminent leaders of the Republican party, and as his Excellency Governor Geary took his seat the applause was actually desfening. The hall was handsomely and appropriately decorated, and with its enthusiastic and cheerful audience presented a truly grand and magnificent scene.

truly grand and magnificent scene.

A great number of transparencies were brought into the line of the multitude as they swept into the hall, and among the many in-scriptions were "Soldiers in War, Citizens in Peace!" "In Union there is Strength," "The True Soldiers know their Friends," "In Peace, as in War, Faithful to our Country, "In Peace or War, Faithful to the Union," and many others of like import. In the rear of the stage was a magnificent transparency, bearing the significant words, "Sheridan NOT five miles away." Prominent on the stage was Miss Anna away." Prominent on the stage was and E. Dickinson.

The meeting was called to order by Clayton McMichael, Esq., after which the Throne of Grace was solemnly invoked by Rev. George D.

Ayres.

General Louis Wagner, Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, was chosen as President of the meeting. General Wagner, on taking the chair, made a brief speech, reviewing the course of the Democratic party previous to and during the recent war, and contended that their record was of such a character that they could not be trusted with power, nor could the soldiers vote for the ticket they had nomi-A long list of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries

A long list of vice-freshents and Secretaries was then announced and approved.

Colonel S. B. Wylle Mitcheil, M. D., late of Sheridan's cavairy corps, then read a series of resolutions. Dr. Mitchell served as a surgeon in the army. On one occasion he led a charge, dashing among traitor cannon and bayonets, and for that service was breveted a Colonel. and for that service was breveted, a Colonel. He read resolutions as thus:—

Resolved, That the unnatural war waged for four years by the misguided men of the South, at the lastigation of their corrupt leaders, with the connivance and aid of prominent Democrats of the North, for the avowed purpose of perpetuating slavery and dissevering the Union, was definitly concluded and extinguished by the surrender of all the armod forces of the Confederate Rebels to the armies of the Union, under Generals Grant and Sherman, in April, 1865.

Union, under Generals Grant and Sherman, in April, 1865.

Ecsowed, That the emancipation of the slaves of the South obliterated the cause of the war, and that the continued victories of the Union armies, the severe punishment, retribution, and desolation they inflicted on the South, exhausted the resources of that rebellious section, and convinced at last their armies, their generals, their political leaders, and the entire Southern people, of the manness of their schemes, and determined them to abandon every and all fesistance to constitutional rights and Federal authority; and that, taught by the inexorable logic of war (which they themselves had isvoked), they were prepared to acknowledge allegiance and discharge their duties to the republic, and peaceably to concur in reconstruction on the principles of true republican government.

Resolved, That the liberal terms allowed to the South by General Grant, and approved by President Lincoln, and the hearty and generous response to these terms by the people of the loyal States, and the cheerful acquiescence by the people of the South in the name, and also in all the rights and relations of the colored race growing out of their new condition, gave assurance at this time that the whole people of the entire country would strive in emulation to repair the ills of the past and unite to make the future of our common country alike flourishing in every section. entire country would strive in emulation to repair the ills of the past and unite to make the future of our common country alike flourishing in every section.

Resolved, That the bright promise of solid peace, restored Union, perfect tharmony, and positive presperity, was blasted by the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, and the subsequent treachery of William H. Seward and peridy of Andrew Johnson.

Resolved, That Andrew Johnson, the elected Vice-President and acting President, has proved himself to be the worst enemy the republic has ever had:

He has from the first cajoled and deceived the people into a belief in his honesty and patriotlam, and beguiled them to his support and elevation.

He has deluded an entire race into the belief that he was their friend and champion, and has then revised, spurned, and oppressed them:

He has abused and perverted the functions of his high position by granting bardons, preferments, and rewards to unrepentant Rebeis: by obstructing the reorganization of society at the South, and the reconstruction of the disloyal States on the equitable terms that Congress had provided, in order that the emancipated slaves and other loyal pe-ple should be protected in their rights:

He has done these things by daily consultations with notorious Rebeis and their infamous and cowardly fallies of the North; the corrupt, but able, prominent, and influential leaders who persuaded President Buchanan to declare that the Federal Government had no power to coerce seceding States into obedience, and thereby nursed Rebellion into life and energy; By vetoing the bill for the continuance of the Feeedmen's Bureau and the Civil Rights bill, and by divers other acts.

and the reby nursed Rebellion into life and energy. By vetoing the bill for the continuance of the Resedmen's Bureau and the Civil Rights bill, and by divers other acts.

Resolved, That he has cruelly violated the plainest laws of order and humanity, by permitting. If, indeed, he did not instigate, a savage mob to perpetrate the most barbarous outrages and murders at New Orleans, in 1866.

Resolved, That he has assumed and enforced powers not known to the Constitution and the laws, but in derogation of both; by resisting Congress; by granting ammesty to hundreds of thousands under the ban of law; by inciting and encouraging dissifiction at the South, and advising resistance to the laws of Congress, and by other acts calculated to bring Congress into contempt, and precipitate the people into another civil war; for these reasons,

Resolved, That we urge the House of Representatives, when it shall assemble in November next, to formally impeach the said Andrew Johnson of high crimes and misdemennors.

Resolved, That a just reconstruction of the late Rebel States in Congress—the revival of agriculture, trade, and commerce over the entire Bouth, the promotion of arts, education, and the fostering of morality and religion, and the development of every material and intellectual power which contributes to peace and a high civilization—would long since have been established on a solid basis in the South, and that we would have met our brethren of that section—white and colored—and they would have met us, in a true Christian spirit of concliation and concord, but for the perfidious machinations of Andrew Johnson and his flagitious advisor.

Resolved, That the profound regard of this meeting is hereby tendered to Major General Philip H. Sheridau. Major-General Daniel E. Sickles, and to Hon, Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War; and that we satisfe hereby tendered to Major General Philip H. Sheridau. Major-General Daniel E. Sickles, and to Hon, Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War; and that we study to the miston bow they about ous President, backed by a guilty band of conspirators and powerful but misguided party.

The resolution relative to the impeachment of

The resolution relative to the impeachment of the Presidential traitor was received with applause that lasted for some minutes, the audience rising to their feet as they gave expression to their feelings. Another burst went up as the resolution was read thanking Sheridan, Sickles, and Stanten for the services rendered by them to the country. The last three resolutions were cheered even more than the foregoing, and the whole were adopted with one mighty accord.

The Chairman now introduced the patriot General John W. Geary, Governor of Pennaylvania, against whom every Democrat cast his vote in favor of the now shelved Helster Clymer.

After the applause had subsided, the Governor stated that he had been in the western part of the State during the past three days, and he could say that General Activity was now in command, and that victory was already stamped upon their bauners. The people were thoroughly united upon the judicial ticket, and the entire ticket would be carried in Allegheny by eight to ten thousand majority. He found the friends of the Republican party hard at work in all the counties, and all confident of success. He referred to the importance of electing Judge Williams, as uts opponent bad decided that the currency issued by the anthority of Congress was not a legal tender. In referring to the acts of Congress, he said he would sustain that body with all his might and all the power he possessed. He stated that he saw secession in 1856, and at that time Jeff. Davis, was the most prominent figure, and Andrew Johnson desired to be the second, but Jeff. Davis considered him too mean to occupy the position of second in a Southern confederacy. He was opposed to Andrew Johnson desired to be the second, but Jeff. Davis considered him too mean to occupy the position of second in a Southern confederacy. He was opposed to Andrew Johnson desired to be the second to Andrew Johnson head to be presented to be the second to Andrew Johnson would declare martial law in the District of Columbia, and, with the Maryland troops, block up the highway to Washington. In conclusion, he urged the Republicans to vote the entire ticket, and not allow any side issues to come in to defeat the party upon, which the salvation of the country depends.

At the conclusion of the Governor's speech, Mr. Philip Lawrence recited "Sheridan's Ride."

The Chairman then introduced the Illinois Congressman who resigned his seat in Congress to take his sword in the army—General Farnsworth,

He said that this was the first time be had ever spoken in Philadelphia, and he was inexpressibly gratified at seeing so many faces that he had met, and had not since seen, on the late battle fields. He knew nothing of the recultar local issues in Philadelphia, but would add something to what Governor Geary had said about soldiers voting the Democratic ticket.

Geary had said about soldiers voting the Democratic ticket.

The livery of Heaven is often used in the service of the Devil, and good men are often seduced into the support of a bad cause. A man is known by the company he keeps, and if a good man gets into bad company, he and his company should alike be shunned. "Divide and conquer" is the motto of the Democrats. The party has no principle except the principle of spoil. It used to be the lawgiver of the country; it used to make Presidents, constitutions and laws. It has dwindled ever since the leprocy of slavory struck its vitals, until it is a mendicant—a beggar of old clothes and cold victuals. (Applause.) It is ever changing, for the sake of slavery.

Now, it is for this thing; to-morrow it is against it, and the next day it is for it again. Throughout the war it opposed in every possible way the putting down of traitors. Before the commencement of the war it insisted that there was no power in the Constitution to coerce a State, and that it was unconstitution to coerce a State, and that it was unconstitution to coerce a State, and that it was unconstitutional to raise a soldier. They told us that we must march over their dead carcasses (laughter.) before we could cross Mason and Dixon's line. (We should have to hold our noses.) (Laughter.) We never found any of these poor carcasses.

When Congress made an appropriation to pay the army, they always found in the Constitution some scruple or other against voting either men or money. They opposed in Congress laws which were passed for the punishment of guerillas, those villains who shot our wounded soldiers. In every possible, conceivable way the Democratic party gave aid and comfort to the enemy as far as their dastardly spirit would allow them. They denounced the soldiers as Lincoln's hire-lings. They, in every State, voted against allowing the soldiers of the several States the right to vote while in the field.

At every corner they cried out "Constitution! Conlings. They, in every State, voted against allowing the soldiers of the several States the right to vote while in the field.

At every criner they cried out "Constitution! Constitution!" (laughter), insisting that we were tearing the Constitution to rags and tatters in preserving the Union. This craven-beavted party, this miserable remnant, this God-forsaken confederacy of Rebels and traitors, attempt to steal now and then a poor delinded soldier with the promise of a petty office, that they might put him upon their ticket, and then point to him and cry out, "Beheld the soldier's ticket!" "Here is the patriotic ticket!" upholding, as they do, Vallandigham, Wood, and all the rest of that party. No matter what we propose in Congress, they oppose it. They lost their principles when they lost the head and the brains of my distinguished iriend General Geary, who, with thousand of others, left it long ago. The Democratic party have actually had the meanness to steal Andrew Johnson. (Laughter and appliance.) That was about the meanest petty larceny they ever committed. Andrew Johnson is the acting President of the United States ad infinitum.

The speaker then reviewed the course of Andrew Johnson from the time be took his seat up to his latest treasonable act, condemning in strong terms the removal of Stanton, Sheridan, Sickies, and others.

After General Farnsworth retired General Wagner announced that he had letters from Generals Butler, Sickles, Schurz, and John A. Logan, after which the procession of the Grand Army of the Republic, with the vast audience, proceeded to the Union League House.

Outside Meeting. Outside of National Hall there was a tremen dous mass meeting, over which Major T. T. Pratt presided. Major Pratt made a short ad-dress on taking the chair, exhorting the assem-dress on taking the chair, exhorting the assemblage to be true to their party, and not countenance the Democratic party.

Captain A. M. K. Storric congratulated the party that they could turn out such an immense assemblage of galiant soidiers. He said he had a tear of sympathy for the Rebel dead. He expressed a fear that the country's enemies would get into power, and undo all their work.

Lieutenant Lemuel Reeves said he was present as a Jerseyman to do honor to Pennsylvania's heroes.

The Democracy are jubilant over the news from California. They claim that they have gained a great victory, and that it is a fore-runner of still more important victories. They will talk quite differently on the 9th of October. Grant is still and will be forever a friend and upholder of his country.

Grant is still and will be forever a friend and upholder of his country.

He may yet be called upon to execute two orders, one from President Johnson and one from President Wade. There is no doubt but what he would chose that endorsed by the loyal Representatives of the people.

Addresses were also made by Captain Curry, of Delaware, and others.

The Serenade. The Serenade.

The serenade took place as announced. Broad street was literally jammed with people, reaching nearly the entire distance from Chesnut to Wainut streets. The League House was gaily bedecked with flags, and rows of gas jets extended along the front of the beautiful structure, containing in living fire the names of Sheridan, Sickles, and Geary. The effect was indescribably grand, and the demonstration a perfect and glorious success.

General Louis Wagner, in behalf of the "Army of the Republic," extended a cordial greeting of welcome to Generals Sheridan and After three cheers for Sheridan, which were proposed by Mayor McMtchael, the General spoke as tollows:—

Spoke as follows:—
Comrades! I have had a great many proud days in my life. I have felt, as most of you have felt, the exuitation that comes from a victory. I have seen the flag of the Rebellion presented to us at Appomattox. I have in many ways, during the last four years, been gratified; but I can assure you that I have no had a prouder day than this. To day I was presented to the Union League of Philadelphia: and now, tonight, I am presented to the Grand Army of the Republic.

A long and able speech was then made by Major-General Daniel E. Sickles, explaining the operation of the Reconstruction laws in th General Geary, in response to repeated calls made a short address, and bid the audience Southern districts. "good night."
After cheers for Sheridan, Sickles, and Geary, the audience dispersed to their homes,

DISTILLERY IN A CORNFIELD .- Last Thursday Distillery in a Cornyield.—Last Thursday, some revenue officers discovered a whisky still in operation in a cornfield, in the Twenty-fifth Ward, and make a seizure of it. A watchman was put in charge, while the revenue officer went in search of a carter to remove the still and other property. While he was gone a crowd of men came, put a twenty dollar bill into the hands of the watchman, told him to leave at once, and intimated that if he did not go be might be roughly handled. He did leave, and proceeding to the office of Rovenue Agent Miller, made known the facts, and handed over the twenty dollar bill. When the Rovenue Inspector went back to the place where the still was, he discovered that everything had been removed.
