MALARIA EVERYWRERE.-Rarely has there been a season as fruitful as this of malarious diseases. Not paly on the prairies and in the valleys of the Westnot merely in all the old haunts of Feyer and Ague and Billous Remittent Fever have these prostration diseases been unusually virulent; but they have extended to towns and chies never before infested with them, and have even ascended the mountains and attacked thousands of people supposed to have been placed, by the laws of Nature, above their reach, Hence we are compelled to admit that a fatal element pervades the Universal Air this season, and should at Once resort to fhe only approved preventive of its consequences, HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, a tonic so potent, an antiseptic so perfect, an alterative so irresistible, and a stimulant so pure, that it enables the human system to resist and baffle all the predisposing causes of disease. With the confidence that one clothed in incombustible garments might move among blazing buildings, the man who arms himself against malaria with this powerful defensive medicine may walk a fever-scourged district fearless of its insalubrious atmosphere. The intermittents and remittents at present so general in all parts of the country may be but the forerunners of a deadlier scourge now on its way westward from the far East. THE DEATH OF WILLIAM HUNTER, JR., Esq.

The Death of William Hunter, Jr., Rsq.—
We have received from Mr. John Rommell, Jr., the following note concerning the accident in New York by which his business partner, Mr. Hunter, came to his untilinery death:—
"Editors of the Evening Telegraph:—
"The morning papers give an incorrect and garbled statement of the manner of my partner's death at the Fif h Avenue Hotel, New York, ou Monday night last. You will oblige me by giving a notice of the facts, which are as follows:—Mr. William Hunter, Jr., the deceased, was in his room, parlor floor of Fifth Avenue Hotel, with Mr. Capron tof Scott & Co., bankers), and some other friends. He accompanied them to the office of the hotel, about 11 O'clock. On his return to the room, and after divesting himself of his coat, which was on the bed, he evidently meant to open the window (which was a French hinged one) as a rocking chair was found beside the window, on which he must have stood to open the top latch, in doing which the window must have opened suddenly, and losing his balance he was precipilitated to the sirect, sustaining a fracture of the skuli, his body being found about fifteen minutes after retiring to his room. His sudden death has cast a deep gloom over the coal trade, of which ne was a leading member, and whose resolutions of sympathy bear tealimony to his worth.

"Very truly yours, JOHN ROMMELLY, Jr."

At a meeting of the Coal Exchange, held at their rooms at the corner of Second and Walaut strebus, at noon to-day. Colonel Day, the President, in the chair, the following resolutions in reference to Mr. Hunter's death were offered by Mr. James Nelli, and unanimously adopted:—

Wherray, It has pleased Divine Providence, in His inscription.

THE UBIQUITOUS POLENSKI.-Yesterday an

THE Uniquirous Polenski.—Yesterday an cid. ragged, uncouth man was found by a detective at Sevenih and Chesnut streets, with his bare feet black with ceaseless tramping through the mud, his nearly worn-out pants aspiring only to cover his knees, a coarse horse blanket for a coat, and a mass of unkempt hair straggling over his shoulders. He looked from a twenty years' sleep, And the illusion was made more perfect when, after looking wistfully up and down the street, he inquired after the President of the United States, ambitious at once to be made Post master General.

The latter aspiration was sufficient, when known, to dip let his conception. It was not the sleepy Van Winkle, but the ubiquitous Polenski, so dubbed from his suddenly turning up in almost every town in the State. Poor fellow! Years ago, with a small purse, good health, and buoyed up with high expectations, he left his far-off Russian home for America. Arriving here, and believing, Midas-like, that his simple touch would form gold, he wasted his little in trying to enrich himself. Poverty-stricken, he took up his staff, and with the fullest belief in the philanthropy of the Prisident, has wandered ever since, barefoot and hung; y, seeking to retrieve his fortunes.

In some particulars he differs from the justly famed and litustrious Daniel Pratt, though both, with a fellow feeling, have aspired to high political stations. Polenski would be Postmaster-General, with an eye singly devoted to the handling of stamps; Pratt, the illustrious, would be an enlightener of the human mind—a stump-speaker. Both have travelled countless miles seeking Executive favor. Pratt found it, in being awarded mud-scows for his feet, of impressive size; ill-iavored Polenski received nothing. The one has drawn within his rescch all knowledge, and has sought to inspire his fellow-man with a we at the majesty of his learning. The other, illy-clad and destinate, has simply impressed them with his poverty. At length the latter rests from his travels. Like a traveller in many l

To BE EFFACED .- A characteristic feature of To be hereaced.—A characteristic leature of Philadelphia is threatened with immediate destruction. A familiar institution, which has known our city in its infancy, and marked its more prospercus days, is to be made obsolete. We refer to the odorifous Cohocksisk—that "slough of despond" and general receptacle for all the fifth within its vicinity. Our municipal legislators we about in companion in the context of the context is the context of the context is the context of the context ral receptacle for all the fifth within its vicinity. Our municipal legislators are about to confine its turbid waters to the narrow limits of a cuivert. Its aromatic odors will no longer disport themselves through its vall y. Its variegated perfumes so strong, will startle the passor-by no more; and the malarias which ever arose from its fifth bed have had, we hope their last victim. If our mage councillors order its burial from sight by an unbroken cuivert—which it is said will cost $100,000—they shauld for once be awarded a grateful panegyric for so eminent and opportune a mervice to our city.

Playing Policeman.—The latest manner of fraudulently obtaining money was discovered last night. Christopher Hoovey was without this essential thing to happiness, and determined upon a ruse to obtain it. Last evening, as darkness drew ou, he took his stand on the corner of Eleventh and Arch streets. He soon descried a frail traveller, and running up, bellowed in sonorous tones that she was under arrest; stated that he was a policemas sent out in citizen's dress to capture such as her, but having considered the matter, would give her liberty for dr." shouted for the police, and demanded to see his badge of office. Without deigning any reply to this, but with an officious look and violent manner, he jerked her, as alleged, along Arch street to Broad, the poole thicking that she was a Bacchanalian female rightly in custody. At Broad and Arch streets, a policeman of the Sixth District started after this pseudo-official, when the latter, letting go his hold, it con inently fled. He was caught, and this morning the lady mentioned testified against him, causing his committal by Alderman Jones in default of $1000 bail. Christopher paid dearly for his short experience as a police officer. PLAYING POLICEMAN. - The latest manner of Pastoral Call.—The congregation of the North Broad Street Fresbyterian Church, at a meeting called for that purpose on October 21st inst., duly elected Rev. Edward I. Clarke, of New Haven, Cann., to the pastorate, and at the adjourned meeting, on the 28th inst., ratified, by a more than two-thirds vote, the election. It is very much to be desired for the growth and usefulness of this young and important congregation that Mr. Clarke will accept this call. He is a young man of vigor, a fluent-speaker, of excellent pulpit abilities, and of rare social qualities. He will be warmly and heartly sustained in his prinisterial duties amongst this people, should be accept the position.

CHARGED WITH STRALING A WATCH. - A | CHARGED WITH STRALING A WATCH.—A young man named John Elsenfording was arrested in the Fifth District, last night, for drunkenness. This morning he told a pitiful story, and was brought to the stand in the Station House to be reprimanded, when, it is alleged, he stole a watch lying there, and swore it was his—stating that he also had a pin and ring, but did not care for them. The watch was one belonging to another person, and identified by a label upon it. Instead of being reprimanded and iet off, he was turned back to his cell and is committed for largeny.

Passing Counterpeit Monsy .- John Kaufine was at the joilification at Ladorr's Military Hall, Third, below Green street, last night. From the Mexican Standard, Oct. 10. The triumph of Juarez is even more complete than the most sanguine anticipated. Of the 320 electors, 245 voted for Juarez for President, and 185 for Lerdo for Vice-President (President of the Supreme Court). In the evening of Monday, when the election took place, the populace began to collect in front of the President's dwelling, and by 9 o'clock the crowd had increased so much that the street was one mass of human much that the street was one mass of human beings, swaying to and fro, each man eager to get as near as possible to the President, in order to shout his congratulations. Nothing could to shout his congratulations. Nothing could possibly demonstrate the extreme popularity of Juarez more unequivocally than the overwhelming majority he carried off at the election, and the unbounded enthusiasm of the people when the result of the poll became known. The cathedral bells pealed forth the news to the inhabitants of the city and to the neighboring villages until past midnight.

Washington, Oct. 29.—Returns from all the counties in the State of Virginia except two have been received at military headquarters in Hichmond. The total vote poiled is 184,198. Of this vote 194,289 were for a convention and 59,180 against it, the majority for a convention being 45,109. 89,533 negroes voted for the convention and 629 against it; 13,090 whites were for and 58,033 against a convention.

In response to General Scholeid's answer to his protest, Mr. Glimer, as regards the extension of the time of voting, says it is a mere question of power, created and imparted by the law of Congress, the proper solution of which reals with the administrative branch of the military department. If there was no power to extend the time, there could not be created, outside of the law, say constraining or forcing functions anywhere save in the judicial branch of the United States Government, If the Convention can estimate construe, and abridge or reached your powers, derived under and imparted by the law of Congress, then much more can the people of the State, when they come o pass upon the soft of the convention of the c by the law of Congress, then much more can the prople of the State, when they come to pass upon the act of the convention as to the adoption or re-jection of the Constitution, exercise the same high functions. "In regard to the vote on the adoption of the Constitution made by the convention, he mays no the Constitution made by the convention, he mays no constitution passed by a convention, five of whom, members reternedfrom this cay, was elected under the circumstances attending the third day and night of voting, will ever be sanctioned by the people of Virginia. He then says:—"If you remove the power to pass on your acts to the convention it will naturally and legitimately base from that body to the people, and no one who knows acything about the real popular sentiment of the State, nightly conservative and sminently law-abiding as it is, can for a moment doubt what action would be had in the premises." He concludes by saying:—"What is now passing will tell with fearful import on our whole country and the destiny of our children when you and I shall have passed away and sleep with our fathers."

CRIME.

A Woman Cuts the Throats of Her Two Children with a Razor, and then Attempts to Kill Herself. From the Sedalia (Ohio) Times, Oct. 24.

A week ago to-day there was committed in this county, five miles east of Sedalia one of the most horrible and revolting tragedles we remember of ever recording. Between 9 and remember of ever recording. Between 9 and 10 o'clock on Thursday morning Mrs. Elizabeth Norton, wife of Newton Norton, a respectable farmer who lives near Farmer City, procured a sazor, and, while laboring under a state of mental aberration, cut the throats of her two little girls, aged respectively one and three years, almost severing their heads from their bodies, and causing instant death. bodies, and causing instant death.
Having done this, and, as she now says, not wishing to survive the awful deed, she at-tempted to take her own life by inflicting several gashes on her left arm, and one serious wound on her throat. The horrible sight was first discovered by Mrs. Sarah R. Norton, sister of the unfortunate woman, who called ther bro-ther, at work near the houst. Mr. Lamb forced ther, at work near the hous. Int. the door open and found the two little children both dead, and at first supposed his sister was dead also, but she afterwards gave signs of life. dead also, but she afterwards gave signs of life.

Mrs. Norton seemed to be impressed with the idea that her children were not "light," as she expressed it—that they were not like other people's children. She has often been found at the cradle of her younger child, weeping as though it was dangerously ill, and when questioned as to the cause of her distress, she would analyse. "My children are not right—they are tioned as to the cause of her distress, she would reply:—"My children are not right—they are not like other children." Sometimes she would farcy that the head of the older child was too large, and express a fear that it would be an idiot. But the children were as bright and beautiful as any we ever saw. Upon this subject alone, it is generally believed by her most intimate friends, Mrs. Norton was insane, and that her great desire was to get the children out of trouble. She seem to realize now that it was an awful

She seem to realize now that it was an awful deed, and when asked why she did it, said:—"I could not help it; I wanted to get my children out of trouble, and I wanted to go with them. Something forced me to do it." Mrs. Norton had made two previous attempts to take her life and the lives of her children—one in July last, by attempting to drown herself in a pond, and one two nights previous to this tragedy, by placing herself and children on the railroad track. When found by her husband she was sleeping on the track, with her children on either side of her. She refused to go with him ustil she made him promise not to tell any one ustil she made him promise not to tell any one about finding her there. She is now in a very critical condition, and her friends think she will not recover.

Twenty-third Ward at the late election. The following allegation on the part of the Commonwealth was made—

In the afternoon of election day William Rossom went to the polls to vote, and handed Knorr a Republican ticket; persons who were watching from the outside saw the defendant drop to his side the hand in which he had the ticket, and saw him start towards the ballot-box; a cry of fraud was raised; some one reached in, seized the defendant's left hand, and drow it through the window, and in this hand was found a Democratic ticket; this exasperated the crowd, and when the excitement seemed to threaten a serious disturbance, the defendant handed out the Republican ticket that Rossom had given him. It was inferred from this that the defendant had attempted to put into the ballot-box a vote of a different party to that which Russom had given him. It was inferred from this that the defendant had attempted to put into the ballot-box a vote of a different party to that which Russom had put in.

The defense explained as follows:—Just before this occurrence one Isaac Ronsail had given in a ticket which was not full. It had been distributed, and the Inspectors were discussing whether they should put in the vote as it was, or should send for Bonsail and lef him understand the maiter and make such alterations as should be deemed proper; but while they were thus engaged Russom came to the window and handed in his ticket. He was about to distribute it, and still had it in his right hand, when the cry of fruid was raised, and he was setzed by the crowd. As soon as he could be returned the ticket to Russom, and the latter afterwards voted according to his desire. Verdict, not guilty.
