TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1867.

Popular Sovereignty in Virginia. It is well for thinking men to fix their attentien upon the facts in regard to the work of reconstruction as they are actually transpiring before our eyes. In the founding of States, it is of the highest importance that there should be such a general participation of the people in the work of primary organization as shall give to the constitution and government which may be framed a truly popular character. The day for oligarchies, in this country, has, we hope, forever passed. It is a wise feature of the Reconstruction law, that all the steps in the work contemplated by it require the sano tion of a majority of all the registered voters of the State. Thus, a majority of all the voters in the State must first vote for a Constitutional Convention before one can be held; and, in the second place, when a Constitution has been framed, it must be adopted by a majority of all the voters in the State before it can have any

Much has been said in regard to the recent election in Virginia, and conservatism has poured out the vials of its wrath upon the result, as though there had been some great outrage committed upon popular rights; but we imagine that a careful examination of the vote cast will show the somewhat remarkable fact, that a larger proportion of the people of Virginia have participated in this movement than ever before united in any governmental act in that State; and that the holding of a Constitutional Convention has been sanctioned by a larger majority than any party in Virginia was enabled to command in ordinary elections before the war.

We find from the official statement of the recent vote, as given by General Schofield in his General Order for the assembling of the Convention, that the total vote was 169,229-107,342 being for a convention and 61,887 against it; so that the majority in favor of a convention was 45,455. This is by far the largest vote ever cast in Virginia. In the Presidential election of 1860 the total vote of the State was only 167,223, or 2006 less than on this occasion. But it must not be forgotten that in 1860 the State had not been divided, so that the figures just given include the votes of West Virginia also. Fortunately, we have before us a table of the votes cast in Virginia in 1860 by counties, so that we can get the exact figures for what constitutes the present State. The whole number in what is now Virginia was 115,167, or only 7825 more votes than were cast in the recent election for a convention. In other words, at the recent election the number of citizens voting in favor of voting population of the same counties in 1860; while the total number voting upon the question, for and against, was 54,062 greater than the total vote in 1860.

A most wonderful contrast is also afforded between the popular indorsement given to the present movement for a State Government in Virginia, and that accorded to the so-called government which it is intended to supplant. The conservatives have been vociferous in their demands that Virginia should be admitted to the Union under that spurious Government; and when the Thirty-ninth Congress assembled, eight anxious Congressmen were waiting at Washington to take their seats as Representatives of "the Old Dominion." The refusal to admit these private gentlemen to the seats they so much desired to occupy, is one of the great "outrages" that passionate Democratic orators are so fond of laying to the charge of Congress. Let us look at the votes which these men represented as compared with those given in the late election. The total vote cast at the Congressional election in Virginia in 1865, under the Pierpont Provisional Government, was only 44,525! Compare this with the 107,342 votes cast for a Convention, and the total vote of 169,229, at the recent election. Which looks the more in accordance with the principles of republican government? Which is the more truly demooratio? Which is the more consonant with the spirit of our institutions and the genius of the Constitution? Which would seem to afford the better guarantee of a stable and peaceful State Government?

These are very important facts. They show that the new government whose foundations are now being laid in Virginia, is a government of the people. The masses are taking part in it. It is not the work of a few individuals, the plot of a clique, the device of an oligarchy seeking supreme control in the State, but it is a movement of the great body of the people, and carries with it a power of popular sanction such as no other government in Virginia has ever had. Fifty thousand more voting citizens have participated in this fundamental act of State organization than have ever before in that State joined in any governmental function. If popular government means anything, if it is not a mere catchword in the mouths of demagogues, if the vox populi is ever the vox Dei, surely these facts in regard to the reconstruction movement in Virginia are most significant and important. They are in harmony with all that is most distinctive in our form of government, and are thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the Constitution. If the subsequent steps in the organization of the State government of Virginia shall have the same degree of popular sanction which has been given to the calling of the Convention, the new Commonwealth will be founded upon a rock against which the winds and waves of a spurious conservatism will beat in vain.

A Subject Worthy of Attention. Hon. WM. S. PRINCE yesterday delivered a sensible and forcible charge to the Grand Jury for the November term, and, among other things, impressed on their attention the fact that few, if any, of the keepers of gambling houses are brought to justice. He reminded them of how glaring the offense was, and how easy it was to detect the guilty, and expressed a hope that the wrong-doers would be brought before them and true bills be found. We warmly endorse every word that the learned Judge uttered. The crime has grown to such magnitude as to be an offense in the eyes of the people. No attempt has been made to suppress it, and it is seldom, if ever, that we hear of a case being called in the Quarter Sessions. The people are tired of the indifference or collusion on the part of certain law officers whose duty it is to see that the criminal is punished. They begin to see the absurdity of hastening to convict a beggar who has taken a loaf to satisfy his hunger, and yet allow the robbers of hundreds of dollars to go free and flaunt at the corners of all leading streets. Unless during the year now before us some reform is made in the course of prosecution, the people will attempt a remedy at the ballot-box. The charge of the Judge should not fall as idle wind. It embodies a great duty, and one which the respectable people of Philadelphia are determined to see fulfilled. We hope to be able to chroniole a decided reform in the past manner of conducting such cases, or rather of suppressing Important from Europe.

THE European news by telegraph is of the highest importance. If it can be relied upon, it settles the movement against Rome. It seems that Garibaldi has been defeated, and either killed or taken prisoner. We fear there is too good cause for crediting the account. It is only what we had cause to expect from the action of the French. So often has the Papal throne trembled that it would seem that we must anticipate with Macauley "that she will be great and respected when some traveller from New Zealand shall in the midst of a vast solitude, take his stand on London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul." With this fruit the policy of Napoleon comes a brief despatch from London which states that there have been riots in several parts of Paris, but that they have been suppressed. The coincidence is worthy of note, for a Parisian riot generally precedes an overthrow of the estaolished dynasty. It is the first affair of the kind which has afflicted Napoleon III, and may be but a forerunner of his own downfall. We would say to him, while he holds up the tottering thrones of his neighbort, "Physician, heal thyself."

Judicial Dignity.

To-DAY it is expected that the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, sitting in bane, will deliver an opinion on the subject of whether Joseph H. Bradley, Sr., shall be allowed to practice before the Court. We cannot doubt the decision. Should it be otherwise than adverse, the Court would so far demean itself as to be unworthy of its high a convention was nearly as great as the whole | office. It seems to us the height of impudence for Mr. Bradley to demand to be reinstated. There is not another court in the United States, unless it be in the wilds of unsettled Idaho, which would have tolerated one-half the insolence of that lawyer. We would like to see any practitioner in Philadelphia attempt such a tone before any of our courts. We do not think that his name would remain long on the list of attorneys. It is time that the insolence of a certain class be rebuked, and a wholesome lesson will be taught them by the action of the Court to-day.

> Probable Result of To-day's Elections. To-DAY the States of Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Kansas, and Minnesota elect State officers. In Massachusetts, Maryland, Wisconsin, and Minnesota a Governor is to be chosen; in all the rest nothing but inferior officers, and members of the Legislature. Wisconsin and Minnesota choose a Legislature to elect United States Senators in place of J. R. Doolittle and A. W. Ramsey. It is probable that the Democracy will gain largely in many of these States; so largely as to reduce our majority in Massachusetts, because of the liquor question, and probably to carry New York and New Jersey. Judge Bond does not stand the ghost of a chance in Maryland. We would prepare our friends for a continuation of our late defeats. The Republican party are not yet aroused to a sense of the importance of carrying the minor officers, but with a great Presidential contest the whole vote will be polled, and we will more than regain all that our mistakes and apathy have lost us this fall.

EDUCATIONAL MOVEMENTS .- On our third page to-day, we give the material portions of the interesting address delivered by Edward Shippen, Esq., the President of the Board of Control, on the occasion of dedicating the Hollingsworth School Building, a few evenings'since. His sketch of the rise and progress of the public school system, which is one of our greatest glories, will be read with pleasure by all who are interested in its prosperity, a class which includes both the young and the old:

On our eighth page will also be found a detailed account of the Crozer Theological Seminary, which is soon to be established at Upland, Delaware county. It will be read with interest by all.

Letters from Europe.

JOHN W. FORNEY, Esq.,

Secretary of the Senate of the United States, Proprietor and Editor of the "Philadelphia Press" and "Washington Chronicie."

With a Portrait of the Author on Steel, by Sartain, and a Complete Alphabetical and Analytical Index.

Colonel Forney's Letters from Europe.

T. B. Peierson & Brothers have now ready to pack and send off to agents and canvassers, and will publish on Saturday, November 16, the public letters written by couned John W. Forney during his late Kuropean tour. They form a large duodecimo volume of over four hundred pages, orinted on the finest paper, and handsomely bound in cloth. These letters contain C-ionel Forney's observations on European society, politics, amusements, manufactures, and educational and religious institutions. That the Colone's field of observation was an extended one these missives attent by the many different condities and cities from which they were written. Colonel Forney visited and describes London, Liverpool, Oxford, Windson, Hallar, the birth-place of Shakespeare, Paris, Berne, Lake Leman, Baden-Baden, Heide berg, the Rhine, Brussels, Antwerp, the Hagus, and many other places on the Continent of Europy. This collection of letters will prove a valuable and acceptable addition to our series of books of foreign travel, Colonel Forney disdained the use of guides and guide books, frame do his own opinions as to what was worth sering and admiring, and gives his experiences and conclusions in the boid and decided style for which be has become noted. His book will therefore be fresh and original in tone, and worthy the attention of all intelligent readers. It contains an excellent and life-like portrait of
