During some recent alterations in the grounder the Lycee Napoleon, Bue Clovis, Paris, the workmen came upon a little pile of Roman gold coine. They have been examined and classified:

"There are 20 coins of Nero, 64 of Vespasian, 67 of Titus, 79 of Domittan, 67 of Trajan, constitute of 54 with Prajana hand. I representing of Titus, 79 of Domittan, 67 of Trajan, consisting of 54 with Trajan's head, 1 representing the Emperor on a triumphal chariot, 1 of Trajan in the costume of a Parthian king, and 1 so-called 'Restitution coin' (struck by later Emperors to show their high appreciation of the noble deeds of their ancestors) of Titus with Trajan, with the inscription 'A Trajano Restitutus Titus;' 103 coins of Hadrian, of which 96 are not reited. Hadrian, 1 of Edua, his nephew. are portraits of Hadrian, 1 of Æilus, his nephew, 3 representing the Emperor rendering divine honors to Trajan, his predecessor and adopted father, I representing the Forum Trajapum under the reign of Hadrian, and 2 with the portrait of Hadrian, and a reverse tall of most delicately wrought details; 123 of Antoninus and Marcus Anrelius; 29 of Lucius Verus, the Emperor's brother and colleague; 2 of the Empress Crispina, wife of the Emperor Commodus; 12 of the Emperor Commodus; 1 representing Commodus fighting in the Roman Circus; 3 of the Emperor Geta; 5 of Pertinax; 4 of Caracalla; 14 of Septimus Severus—one bearing the legend "Victor Parthorum." the other 'Restitutor Urbis; *Victor Parthorum.' the other 'Restitutor Urbis;
8 of the Empress Julia Downa, wife of Septimus
8 everus; 48 of Faustina I, wife of Antoninus 39;
of Faustina II, wife of Marcus Aurelius, one of which, not hitherto known, represents her with the attributes of Ceres; 8 of Luclius, the wife of Lucilius Verus; 1 with the combined portraits of Trajan and Plotins, his wife; 2 of Plotina alone; 1 of Plotins and Matilda, her daughter; 1 of Matilda alone; 1 of Marcuans, sister of Trajan;
1 of Eabina, the wife of Hadrian; 1 of the Emmeror Claudius; 1 of Augustus, in the corner of a peror Claudius; 1 of Augustus, in the corner of a Trajan coin (this single piece has been valued at 10,600 francs); 2 of Vitellius; 2 of Claudius Albinus, competitor of Septimus Severus in Gaul, and 149 other 'Aurei,' "

There are several theories as to the maoner in which these come happened to be where they were found. M. Fournier argues from the fact that the last Emperor found on them is Severas, that they were hid during his reign; probably by some one implicated in the insurrectionary at-tempt of Athinus, just on the eve of flight. M. Fallure, on the other hand, thinks the money belonged to a chief tax-gatherer of Paris. His ceason is the great number of Faustina coins in hoard. These coins being much heavier than those of a later period, were rigorously demanded in payment by the tax-gatherers, who pocketed the surplus value, until a special edict stopped the abuse.

The collection has been placed for safe keeping in the Paris Museum of Antiquaries at the Hotel Carnavelet.

Professor Biot on Ment,

I constantly hear housekeepers complain that they cannot get the pieces of meat they want, nor have them properly cut. This is too true, and the reason is plain. A man who was a shoemaker yesterday and a butcher to-day caunot be expected to know how to cut meat properly. It may not always be as bad as this, but the statement is not wide of the trute.

But there is another, and I think the main reason, why meat is generally so poorly cut, and the pieces asked for have such an unsightly appearance. A large share of the people live on becfsteak: 350 days in the year. As a consequence, butchers, in order to supply the demand for the favorite article, have recourse to every sort of articles—cutting, mashing, and bruising. sort of artisce-cutting, mashing, and bruising the meat. They are obliged to sell three-fourths of a beef under the name of "porter-house steaks," to satisfy the law of "demand and supply." What is the result? Steaks (I mean every piece of meat sold under that name) command a comparatively high price varying slightly, according to the name the butcher gives them.

No matter how large a beef may be, it has only two tenderloins, and they weigh about nine pounds each on an average; hence, as I say above, in order to supply the great demand for straks, butchers are obliged to sell some other parts of the beef as such. Even the addition of "porter-house steaks, rump steaks," etc., was not sufficient; every part has been turned into

It is complained, also, that butchers are unwilling to cut small pieces; that people are obliged to buy more than they want. If this is really so, people are very simple, and I do not wonder that the butchers impose large pieces on them. Buy ro meat at all, except a small piece, and that for a week only, and you will see if the butchers will not conde cand to use their knives .- Galaxy.

The Grave of Braddock,

Among the many things which time has brought to light is the answer to the oftre-peated query, "Who killed Braddock?" During that memorable retreat of the British and Provincial troops, Braddock ordered that his men should not protect themselves behind One Joseph Fausett presumed to disobe this order, when Braddock, in a passion, struck him down with his sword. Thomas Fausett, who was but a short distance from his brother, saw the whole transaction and immediately shot the General through the lungs. The Hon. A. Stewart, of Uniontown, Pennsylvania, says his father often heard Fausett acknowledgeth's. After Braddock fell his body was carried by the troops for four days, when he expired. He the troops for four days, when he expired. He was interred in the middle of the road, so that all of the soldiers, wagons, and horses might pass over and obliterate all vestiges of his grave from the eyes of the savages. About twenty-nine years ago some laborers who were repairing the road came upon the remains, and after taking a number of the most prominent bones, reinterred the others. Some time afterwards the scattered bones were collected and sent to Peale's Museum, which was in Philadel-phia at that time. Braddock's grave is in Fayette county, this State, and is marked by a plain shingle nailed to a tree, where part of the bones are interred. This is the only monument which serves to point out to the traveller the last resting place of the proud and brave but unfortunate victim of Indian warfare,

United States Senator from Maryland. Hon. William T. Hamilton, of Washington county, is announced as a competitor with Gov-ernor Swann for Hon. Reverdy Johnson's seat in the United States Senate. Mr. Hamilton is an able lawyer and keen politician. He represented his District in Congress for two terms, and came within one vote of being the Demoeratic nominee for Governor at the late election. In all things he is Governor Swann's superior, and can be trusted with power without fear of deserting principles for personal aggrantize-

A CURIOUS TURKISH SUPERSTITION. - The Musselmen, besides believing in the rosur-rection of the body, also think that this body must have a free and separate chance to leave its earthly tomb at the summons of the Archangel's trumpet, unimpeded by the super-position of other bodies. A curious phase of this superstition has recently occurred in Coustantinople. A noble lady-the widow of a great dignitary-died in that city in the Chrisgreat dighttary—died in that city in the Chris-tian faith, which she had always professed. Loving her husband, she asked to be buried by his side, and he had been buried in the holy ground of Eyoob, near the shrine of the saint and martyr, companion of the prophet Eyoob. Accordingly she was so buried with much pomp, as became her rank. When her husband's relatives heard of it they were much scandalized at an infidel being buried in hely ground alongside their graves, and de-manded that the body should be taken up and buried elsewhere. Here, however, the Turkish superstition about interference with the bodily resurrection by the crowding of mortal resurrection by the crowding of mortal remains upon each other, was craftly taken advantage of by the authorities, who asked the kinemen if the body of the Giaour woman was buried in one of their graves, and on getting a negative answer, told them she could do no harm by lying alongside of them, as it would not impede the resurrection of their dead, and they got nothing by their motion.

The Coming Presidential Serenade

Movements of Philadelphia Politicians.

Etc., Etc., Etc., Etc., Etc.,

[SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO EVENING TRLEGRAPH.] WASHINGTON, NOV. 12.

The Democrats and General Grant. The Democrats and conservatives here are cheming to draw from General Grant some declaration as to his political principles, and are even more anxious on this subject than the Chase Republicans, Leading conservatives assert that if Grant does not define his position within ten days, they will nominate General Sherman as the conservative candidate for President, and thus place Grant in the position of running against Sherman.

The chief obstacle in the way of the success of this arrangement is, that it is not certain that Sherman will consent to have his name paraded under the circumstances as a candidate, and may repudiate it. He is expected here in a day or two, and the wire-pulling conservatives are determined to trot him out as a candidate, or compel him to state whether he will run or not. The Presidential Screunde.

The serenaders to the President, to-morrow evening, intend having artillery in the procession, which will be fired at intervals along the route. General Grant has loaned them a number of flags belonging to the War Department, and altogether they intend making a prodigious sensation. There will be sixteen one-legged soldiers in the procession in carriages. The President says he intends making only a short speech, but this promise does not amount to much, as every one knows that when once he gets started on a stump speech he never knows Philadelphia Politicians. Colonel William B. Sipes and a score of small fry Philadelphia Democratic politicians are here working up small jobs, or doing some lobbying for more important personages in Philadelphia who stand in the background. Sipes is understood to be an applicant for John Miller's position, and there is likely to be a spirited contest between Sipes and Charles W. Carrigan. who is also on the track for the same place. The Cabinet session to-day was short. All the members were present except Secretary Welles, whose health is improving slowly, but he is not yet able to go out.

The End of the Prize-Fight. The prize-fighting crowd, arrested by the military over the river, were taken to Alexandria. and, after being held in durance several hours, were all released.

The affair caused much amusement, as many of the parties were well-known citizens, claiming to be respectable, who were intensely morined at finding themselves caught in such a di-graceful plight, Several newspaper reporters were among those arrested.
