however, came to him, and painted to him in lowing colors the sweetness of the apple, the Insciousness of the date, and the succulence of the orange. In vain: the first man remembered the command laid upon him by his Maker. Then the fiend assumed the appearance of an effulgent spirit, and pretended to be a messenger from Heaven commanding him to eat and drink. The man at once obeyed. Shortly after, a pimple appeared on his leg; the spot enlarged into a tumor, which increased in size and caused him considerable annoyance. At the end of six mouths it burst, and there emerged from the limb a beautiful girl.

The father of all living turned her this way and that way, sorely perplexed, and uncertain whether to pitch her into the water or give her to the pigs, when a messenger from Heaven appeared, and told him to let her run about the garden till she was of a marriageable age, and then take her to himself as a wife. obeyed. He called her Bahouna, and she became the mother of all races of men.

There seems to be some uncertainty as to the size of our great mother. The French orientalist Henrion, member of the Academy, however, fixed it with a precision satisfactory, at least, to himself. He gives the following table of the relative heights of several eminent historical personages.

Adam was precisely	s high.
Eve
Noah	. 85
Abraham	84
Moses 13 	12
Hercules	84
Alexander	86
Julius Coser 5 "	44

It is interesting to have the height of Eve to the decimal of an inch. It must, however, be stated that the measures of the traditional tomb of Eve at Jeddah give ber a much greater stature. "On entering the great gate of the cemetery, one observes on the left a little wall three feet high, forming a square of ten or twelve feet. There lies the head of our first mother. In the middle of the cemetery is a sort of cupola, where reposes the middle of her body, and at the other extremity, near the door of egress, is another little wall, also three feet high, forming a lozenge-shaped in-rlosure. There are her feet. In this place is a large piece of cloth, whereon the faithful deposit their offerings, which serve for the maintenance of a constant burning of per-fumes over the midst of her body. The dis-tance between her head and feet is 400 feet. How we have shrunk since the creation !"-Lettre de H. A. D., Consul de France en Abyssinie, 1841.

But to return to the substance of which woman was made. This is a point on which the various cosmogonies of nations widely differ. Probably the discoverers of these cos mogenies were men, for they seldom give to woman a very distinguished origin. But then the poets make it up to her. Nature, the singer of the Land of Cakes, tells us:-

"Her prantice han' First tried on man,

And then she made the lasses, Of Guillaume de Salluste du Bastas (b. 1544; d. 1590) composed a lengthy poem on the Creation, in which he does ample justice to the ladies. His poem was translated into Latin by Dumonin (Joan. ed. Dumonin; Beresithias, sive Mundi Creatio, ex Gallico Sallustii du Bastas expressa. Parisiis, 1579), and into German, Spanish, Italian, and English.

A specimen will suffice:-

"The mother of morinis in herself doth combine The charms of an Adam, and graces all Divine. Her tint his suspasses, her brow is more fair,

From the ashes she took a loaf, Heavy and thick, with bran mixed; More baside she laid upon the board; There is set a bowl of broth on the table; There is a calf boiled, and cates the best." Then he goes to the house of Amma, the

She set forth salvers, silver adorned, Fail of game, and pork, and roasted birds, In a can was wine, the cups were costly.'

Not a word of disparagement of woman is found in those old coamic lays. The sturdy Northerner knew her value, and he respected her, whilst the frivolous Greek despised her as a toy.

The Provençal troubadours caught the classic misappreciation of woman. Massilia was a Greek colony, and Greek manners, tastes, and habits of thought prevailed for long in the southeast of France. They idolized her as an idol-puppet, but they knew not how to commend, and by commending develop in her those qualities which lie ready to germinate when called for by man-devotion, selfsacrifice, patience, gentleness, and all those homely yet inestimable treasures—the domes-tic virtues. Pierre de Saint Cloud, in the opening of his poems on Renard, has his fling at poor Eve. He says that Adam was possessed of magic rod, with which he could create animals at pleasure by striking the earth with it. One day he smote the ground, and there sprang forth a lamb. Eve caught the rod from his hand and did as he had done; forthwith there bounded forth the wolf, which rent the creation of Adam. He struck, and the domestic fowls came forth. Eve did likewise, and gave being to the fox. He made the cattle, she the tiger; he the dog, she the jackall.

Turning to America we encounter a host of myths relative to the first mother. The sa-cred book of the Quiches tells of the gods Gucumatz, Tepn, and Cuz-cah, making man of earth, but when the rain came on he dissolved into mud. Then they made man and woman of wood, but the beings so made were too thick-headed to praise and sacrifice; wherefore they destroyed them with a flood; those which escaped up tall trees remain to this day, and are commonly called monkeys. The three gods having thus failed, consulted the Great White Boar and the Great White Porcupine, and with their assistance made man and woman of white and red maize. And men show by their head-strong character that the mighty boar had a finger in their creation, and women by their fretfulness indicate the great porcupine as having had the making of

The Minnatarees have a story that the first woman was made of such a rich and fatty soll that she became a miracle of prolificness; she came out of the earth on the first day of the moon of buffaloes, and ere it waned she had a child at her breast. Every month she be-stowed upon her husband a son or daughter, and these children were all equally fertile with their mother. This was rather sharp
