Jet and Steel Ornaments-Shell Fish Shaped Decorations-Muslin Drapery-Eugente's Dress in the Legislative As-Esembly-Hat Trimmings-Basques and Sashes-Fashionable Philosophy and Overstrained Morality.

PARIS, Nov. 23 .- The new gilt, jet, and steel ornaments worn on sashes have assumed em-blematic shapes since my last. Ladies now wear arrows, lyres, large barns, and a crawling dragon flies behind. All the crustace a are in favor, not forgetting lob ters, which are thought becoming in the har.

A novelty is the elegant while mustin drapery worn on low bodices. I must describe them as plaited braces. They are worn in the slyle of the Italian braces of last year, only they are kept to the waist by a belt, and the ends flow in front and behind like scart ends. A bow on each shoulder with this constitutes a sleeve

The Empress Eugenic wore, on the opening of the Legislative Assembly, a white satin, bro-caded with gold laurel leaves, a fichu of the same with carmelite (brown) velvel sash ends, and rouleaux of the same on the satin skirt. She wore over this a black lace shawl. Her bonnet was made of the same and trimmed with a lovely aigretic, admirably placed on one

Princess Murat was in pearl grey and Alencon point. Black velvet underskirts, with black satin tunics, trimmed with deep lace all round, were the quietest toilettes in the gal-leries. Jewels in bonnets dashed on many a brow

The favorite ornaments on bonnets are steel and gilt-thus, a gilt band with steel leaves, and gilt and steel ears on gilt rims.

Young ladies' hats are something between tur-bans and caps. The prettiest diadem bonnets puffs of velvet in iront, somewhat high with a plain rim on the forenead and an aigrette of sparkling steel, crystal or jewels.

Sashes made of the same material as costumes are short and bordered with satin. Ribbon sashes are longer. A lovely leaf for trimming is the wide ivy edged with lace; it is blue on grey, or light brown on dark.

Basques of satin are cut in one, with square, low bodice.

The opening of the Legislative Assembly and the Emperor's speech on that occasion, have given occupation to hundreds of court pur-veyors and thousands of spirited political leaders; a leader without the private opinions of the writer on the intended amendment in the laws of the country, on the fictionary Congress, on the liberty of the press, and the encroach-ments of Prussia, would not be a leader any more than a tashion letter would be fashionable if it were not a faithful account of sull the second if it were not a faithful account of all the scandal of this wicked world and of its attire,

This correspondence shall therefore relate both, beginning with what concerns the state of society. It appears to me, after close scrutiny in the elevated circles, that war and peace are at present on the best terms. All the powers want peace, and something with it. The Em-peror has shown the example by wishing to be friendly with every one, and to have a bigger army besides. Victor Emanuel has had enough for the Pontifical Zonaves, still he is ever harping for the Pontifical States. The King of Prussia wants peace, but he must have the South of Germany with it; and while on one hand Napoleon III continually announces the advent of a Congress of nations, on the other the representa-tives of the said European powers are not forthcoming. England is waiting for Kussia to send on some encouragement first, and Russia will not come forward before England has shown the example. Bavaria has enough to do with Wagner for a prophet, without the Pope. Spain has nothing at all but fervent enthusiasm. Austria has had too much to do with the Italian question already, and the Pope himself does not mean to be dictated to by any Congress. So how such an assembly can be called peaceful, or deliberate, with any comfort, is a mystery. People who are hard up for an operate should take the Congress for a subject; all the kings would draw as well as the Grande Duchesse, if brought in as cleverly as the Congress ever is in all the Court speeches

Monseigneur Dupanloup has also expressed some clever things, but about the education of women in Franch, which I hasten to communicate to the fair sex. It appears that French ladies have until now been brought up in the

MEMORIAL SERMON .- A memorial sermon on the late Rev. Dr. Engles was delivered yesterday afternoon, by the Rev. Dr. Shields, of Princeton, in the Seventh Presbyterian Church, Broad street and Penn square. Dr. Shields took as his text 1 Peter, chapter

v, verse 4, "And when the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that indeth not away." The heroes of ancient times struggled for a crown, but it was the of those that faded; the crown promised in the fext to Christians, is one of glory, that will never fade.

of glory, that will never fade. Dr. Engles was born in this city, in 1797, and at an carly age he entered the University of Pennsylvania, where he completed his colle-giate studies. After graduating at that institu-tion, he studied theology for three years with Rev. Dr. Wiley. He then travelled through the western part of this State, and it was during this journey that he preached, without notes, his first sermon. Beturning to this city, he was, in 1820, called by a body of English Cal-vinists, who worshipped in an edifice called the Tabernacle, in Banstend place, and who subse-quently moved into this building. Accordingly quently moved into this building. Accordingly he was ordsined and installed as their pastor, which position he held for fourteen years, when the bad state of his health compelled him to

Subsequently he was offered the position of chief editor of the Presbylerian, which he ac-cepted. When he took charge of it he found it opposed by enemies and surrounded by competitors and rivais. He immediately chaoged its course from one of vacillation to one of sound, unswerving orthodoxy, and to his judicions management it is to day indebted for the posi-tion it now holds, that of the recognized organ of the Church. As critic he read all the literary productions of his time, which-being fond of books-afforded him many hours of intellectual enjoyment and lostered an educated taste; yet never did he forget the moral standing of an author. In his criticisms he may have wounded unwittingly the vanity of some, who would be capable, at an opportune moment, of unjust and revengeful retaliation; but the stranger who p ctured him as bristing with controversy found him the mildest, meekest, most amiable of men. Many of you perhaps remember meeting him, starting out upon one of his rambles to the banks of the Schuylkill, every nook of which he knew, now stopping to speak to the laborer of his work, now sindly addressing a stranger, or a little child, now stopping to gaze upon a bird or squirrel, perhaps—things that the crowd never noticed—now stooping to pick up a piece of moss, or an autumn leaf, and then forgetting everything in deep admiration of its beautiful

His last words, as he left the office of his paper, were that before long some one would be talking of him as he had just been talking of one departed. His last editorial was the Walk to Zion, and the mark in his book where he had last read was that made to "Grave, where is thy victory ?'

FIRES .- About half-past 11 o'clock on Saturday night a fire broke out in the third story of the building No. 1805 Ridge avenue, below Girard avenue, owned and occupied by Owen Brady, tobacconist, and before the flames were extinguished they extended to the properties Nos, 1807 and 1809 on the north and No. 1803 on the south. No. 1803 was owned by J. and H. Quantrell. The first floor, in connection with a one-story structure on the south, was stock sustained heavy damage by water, and was not insured. They were the owners of the properties Nos, 1801 and 1803, on which there s no insurance.

The dwelling part of 1803 was occupied by a Mr. Stewart, who sustained considerable loss by fire and water. The whole upper portion of the building was destroyed. The second and third building was destroyed. The second and third stories of 1805, where the fire broke out, were also much damaged. Mr. Brady's loss is covered by insurance. 1807 is occupied by a barber named William Higgins, who is insured. 1809 is occupied by William Jones as a cigar and stationery store. The roofs of the two last buildings were burned off, and the occupants suffered damage from the water. They were owned by Mr. Alexander Cook. The fire origi-nated in a wardrobe, and is supposed to have been caused by sparks of a candle with which bosom of the church, and that they are hence-forth to be turned over to the arms of the university. M. Dupanloup thinks this very improper, and all thinkers are taking the question up as enthusiastically as if their sisters, mothers, and daughters were being exposed to insult. Some say that the bosom of the church was not positively degenerate, but that the arms of the university are not to be trusted, and the said arms carry the debate off in a way which must rufile the susceptibilities of the church. Something is going to be settled, for, it appears, ladies in France must either be cradled by one or nursed on the other, and some perturbation is caused by uncertainty in the morals of the nation

Talking of morals, a case has this week been laid before justice by an indignant father, who has sued a lady, an opposite neighbor, for watering her flowers at her balcony in a yellow neglige, of which the style was so flowing that the aspect thereof was not very modest in the eyes of his family. The lady was requested to select some other garment for her morning avocations, but she refused to do so. It is probable she is an Austrian by birth, and partial to yellow. Princess Mathilde wore a yellow satin robe and casaque, trimmed with fur, at the opening of the Assembly, and this lady very likely prefers yellow to the Metternich green at the opening of her windows. She was threatened with a lawsuit, which suited her, doubtless and law proceedings lei her before the President of the Police Court, where the following questions and answers were exchanged :-

President to complainant-State the object of your suit.

Complainant-It is not a suit at all, Monsieur le President; it is a dressing gown. President-What is objectionable in this gar-

Complainant-In the first place, it is yellow, an anti-national manifestation in favor of out-ward politics which the youth of France have nothing to do with; and besides, it is of such a cut that-

President-Pray continue. Complainant-Instead of being high in front, especially for the purpose of watering flowers, it is very low in the bodice and high behind. President to defendant-What is the name to the style of your morning-robe, madame? Defendant-An antique, Monsieur le Presi dent; Casar's wife wore one. (Laughter.) President to complainant-What family have Complainant-An only son.

President-How old is he? Complainant-Twenty-one months, (Great laughter in the court.)

Fresident (gravely)-I do not think the morality of your infant is in imminent danger, and the Court, therefore, decides that --Defendant-The dressing pown may be dropped. (Much languter). Complainant-Then I must give notice to leave my present dwelling, as I cannot live in a house in front of which public morals are set at defiance.

Another instance of this klud, tending to correct the loose manners of the age, is shown at the Porta St. Mardin, where we are to have a review; but the ballet is not to represent three hundred partially attired dancers-they are to be clothed as vegetables. We are to have a quadrille of asparagus, another of turnips and carrots, in which it is hoped not so much as a chignon will be discertible. M. Fournier, the chiphon with be discrimine. m. Fournier, ine manager of the theatre, is thus striding towards reform. The pew song now abroad is called "The Polonaise and the Swaliow"-s very inno-cent title. It is sung in the comic bouffonneric of the "dEil Czeve," at the Folies Dramatiques, and the music is by Herve. I do not suppose the sense of the romance is as innocent as the title nor as pretty as the music; but I state that song is momentarily creating, a furore.-F. Y. Herald.

CABL SENTZ'S MATINEE of Thursday will be attended by an interesting first appearance in Philadelphia of a superior musician, Mr. Jerome Hopkins, from New York. We bespeak for Mr. Hopkins a warm reception, for he is well and favorably known in the higher and religious circles of our city, but has never been heard before as a public performer. He is a son of the Right Rev. Bishop Hopkins, from whom he inherits his musical genius, which, indeed, runs through the whole family. He is a pianist, organist, composer, and critic; has attended by an interesting first appearance in a planist, organist, composer, and critic; has great versatility, and throws into his efforts all the power of an energetic, impulsive, and active organization.

His style is full of vigor and force, and ho delights in dashing, brilliant effects, having more of the Liszt than the Thalberg in his play-Nevertheless, he shows hard study among ing. the old fugue writers, and in evidence announce a furue by Cherubini as one of his pieces for next Thursday, thereby providing a foil for his own brilliant composition, the "Mermaid's Rhapsody." The orchestra will perform two of his instrumental compositions, viz., a "Dirge, founded on a motto by Tennyson, and a new "Wedding March," both of which have made great sensation at the author's concerts in New York.

THE SALE of season tickets for the La Grange Brignoll Opera Season will commence on Wed nesony at the Academy of Music, and the sale of single seats and tickets begins on Thursday at Trumpler's music store.

MES. LANDER plays Mary Stuart at the Academy of Music to-night for the last time but one. On Wednesday evening Medea will be presented. Thursday, Elizabeth, last time; and on Friday, for her larewell benefit, Macheth.

MR. EDWIN ADAMS appears at the Arch Street Theatre this evening in his pleasing ro'e of "Frank Hawthorne," in Falconer's play called Men of the Day, supported by Mrs. Thayer, Miss Price, Mr. Mackay, Mr. Hemple, Mr. Craig, and others. Who Speaks First? is the afterpiece, in which Mr. and Mrs. Walcot will appear.

This is the last week of Mile Marie Zoe at the Chesnut Street Theatre. She appears as the "Dumb Girl of Portici" to-night, in the drams of Masoniello. The new farce, by Woolf, entitled That Nose, will also be played.

TICKETS and seals for the Janauschek nights at the New Chesnut Street Theatre are now on sale at Wittig's music store, No. 1021 Chesnut street.

AT THE WALNUT Mr. John Brougham will continue his new play, The Lottery of Life, all this week.

AT THE AMERICAN the wonderful slack-rop. performer. Martin Chiriski, will appear with the Variety Troupe.

TUNISON & Co., at their new Opera House, in Seventh street, below Arch, have an entirely new programme this evening.

MR. KENNEDY, the great Scotch singer, give two more concerts at Musical Fund Hall, next Friday and Saturday. CARL SENTZ will give his asual matines at Horticultural Hall, on Thursday afternoon.
