EDITORIAL OPINIONS OF THE LEADING JOURNALS UPON CURRENT TOPICS—COMPILED BY KEYS DAY FOR THE EVENING TELEGRAPH.

Fright of the Republicans.

The Republicans dare not have Congress adjourn last night... Reconstruction... the members return to their homes...

When the Chicago Convention met it congratulated the country, in its platform, on the assured and triumphant success of the reconstruction policy...

Special Despatch to the Evening Post. An error in the July 22 meeting of Southern men, including most of the new members of Congress...

The meeting was addressed by General Fremont, who said it would be highly injudicious for Congress to adjourn without leaving additional protection for the newly-constituted governments...

Resolutions were adopted which asked legislation authorizing an election in Virginia, and for investigation of frauds in the Mississippi election...

A new impeachment of the President, a new patching up of the Reconstruction acts, and a prolonged session of Congress, are deemed necessary to the salvation of the political party...

which so lately bore itself with an air of insolent triumph... Their reconstructed State governments have failed to return to the inventors...

By issuing bonds at five or four per cent. interest, according to duration, a larger saving may be effected than is attainable by any other measure...

Something is due, moreover, to the exigencies of the public credit. Just now, two serious dangers menace the country. One is the possible creation of difficulty in the Southern States by an attempt on the part of the President to carry out the Blair doctrine...

The Recusant Senators. The New York Times is not pleased with the Tribune for what it calls our attacks upon Senators who voted against impeachment...

Mr. Hendricks, Dem. (Ind.), in reply to the remarks which had been made, said that he considered this a most dangerous bill, because it proposed to arm one political party against another...

The Bond Question. Enough has transpired in the debates on the funding bill to prove the impolicy of leaving the bond question in its present shape...

Enough has transpired in the debates on the funding bill to prove the impolicy of leaving the bond question in its present shape... The proposal of the Republicans to resort to such means of success, shows how little hope they have if they permit a free election...

when introducing his scheme some months ago. Both are signs which it were criminal to neglect. We may pronounce both Mr. Boutwell and Mr. Sherman wrong, but by no dogmatism can we escape the fact that legislators, whose desire is to preserve unscathed the national integrity, confess the possibility of doubts as to the precise extent of the creditors' claim...

But, wisely or unwisely, the question has been raised, and in one way or another must be met. How is the query which Congress is trying to answer with an indifferent prospect of success...

Whatever popular feeling exists on the subject may be traced to impatience under oppressive taxation. The outcry for taxation of the bonds is undoubtedly attributable to this circumstance...

Our German Voters. The Zanesville Germania repudiates the Tammany nominations and platform, and declares that they were "only the work of a wide and broad-spread secret political clique..."

President Johnson and Tammany Hall. From the N. Y. Herald. If ever without a party at his back there was a happy man in the White House it was John Tyler...

His first positive and unqualified movement in this direction was in the Philadelphia Johnson conservative experimental national Convention of August, 1866...

Party conventions, however, like republics, are ungrateful. The recent proceedings in Tammany Hall have thoroughly convinced Mr. Johnson that this is true. The shock, however, thus sustained, instead of diverting his mind to the consolations of religion or philosophy, seems to have awakened in the President something of the direful wrath of King Theodosius...

They have asserted, in the grandest manner bear. The Democratic politicians, if further appears, are becoming uneasy at this attitude of Achilles in his tent. They want him to come out. They had employed several strolch-peacemakers to bring him out, but all to no purpose...

Rebel Anxiety and Patriot Fidelity. From the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser. We cannot too highly commend the anxiety of ex-Rebel officers and soldiers to save the country. To be sure, only seven years ago hundreds of them abandoned their allegiance to the Union...

One of these "Union savers" is General Buckner, who was induced to "git up an' git" from Fort Donelson when Grant appeared there one fine day in 1862, and now this fugitive, coming North, finds Grant arrayed against him. So he goes into the Democratic Convention, and declares that he is in harmony "with every brave soldier in the effort to rescue the Constitution from indignity or violation..."

The Democrats, however, are not the only persons who have "their say" in this matter. There are returned Union soldiers who demand a hearing, and they long since set their seal of condemnation not only upon Rebels in the field, but upon the Pettibos and Seymours, and all their kind and kin...
