Aggressive Warfare.

MR. WM. A. WALLACE, Chairman of the Demooratic Central Committee, has issued his address of directions to the faithful of the State, and in it he lays down as a cardinal direction for the entire policy of the campaign some excellent directions. He says: -

"Let your warfare be oggressive. Dafend no-thing. The radicals in power are responsible for the unhappy condition of our country. Charge upon them their extravagance and their orimes Demand of them an account for your treasure wasted, your Union not restored, your treasure wasted, your business destroyed, and race desraded, your business destroyed, and your Government prostingted.

Now there is but one fault to be found with the doctrine, and a fault which will, we fear, cause the unhappy followers of the great Wallace no small amount of trouble, and that is, it is not practicable. If a host of active enemies are attacking a city it is all very well for the occupants to agree that warfare should be aggressive, but it is not so easy to carry out the idea. The R-publican party are arraigning the Democracy for the orimes it has committed - crimes of no small magnitude. It is charging them with favoring treason and traitors, with seekthe nation in a covert manner, with traducing the soldiers, and villifying the best men and opposing the best measures. For all this we are holding them to an account. They must be on the defensive. A criminal in the dock cannot but seek to defend himself, and the loyal party of the land, they must purge themselves of the great misdeeds of which they have been guilty. A logical and sensible people will not consent to give their suffrage to a party which dares not answer the attacks made on it. It is because the charges against them are undeniable that Mr. Wallace directs all Democratic orators to make their warfare "aggressive."

The Advantages of Life Insurance for Rich and Poor.

THE recent formation of several important new life insurance companies, of which the National is the most prominent, forms another indication of the increasing interest in enterprises of this character. We have heard that, in round numbers, there are now about three hundred thousand persons insured in the United States, about twenty thousand of whom consist of citizens of Pennsylvania. Large as is this aggregate, it is evident that the busi- stood up with his 'winsome leddy,' the flush ness is still only in its infancy, and we should of youth on her young brow and a pleased not be at all astonished if, before the present smile on all her features. Solemn and holy | silent sorrow and universal esteem, that gave proof of his standing in the popular regard. He will be buried on Monday, and, by order of the Governor, all flags on public buildings of the State will, on that day, be placed at half-mast.

The Champion of the P. R. Overcome. MR. MICHAEL MCCOOLS, the renowned bruiser, the champion of a hundred battles in the P. R., has at last been overcome. This Samson has met his Delilah, and she has bound him hand and foot, and captured him for life. The hero was married in St. Louis this week to a lady whose maiden name was Mary, written Mollie, however, for short. The ceremony was performed according to the ritual of the Romish Church, and at it was a veritable Jenkins, who has saved the smallest incidents of that elegant occasion from oblivion. A very Boswell has he proved himself, and from the breadth of Mike's shirt front to the drawing-on of his No. 15 kid gloves, is all alike chronicled. In fact, there were two Jankinses present, one representing the St. Louis Democrat, and one the St. Louis Republican, and both dilate with unction on the proceedings. Thus we are assured that "He behaved like a man." Highly probable ! as it would be a difficult matter for the six-foot giant to behave like anything eise. The happy Jenkins tells us he was dressed in full dress, and that to add to the celat in the middle of the ceremony he "slipped on a pair of lavender-colored kids." Great heavens ! Imagine the size of the kids that could be slipped on to Mike McCoole's hands. Of course, they were made to order. To show the elegant polish which characterized the groom, the infatuated reporter tells us that the moment the service was ended "he sent his thumb and forefinger on ing for repudiation, with aiding the enemy of a diving expedition into his vest pocket and drew out a handsome fee." We see Mike has already learned the little idiosyncracies of good society, it being the invariable rule for the groom to stand in front of the altar, and pay the officiating clergyman upon the spot. Nothing like setbefore the Democracy dare venture to attack tling your bills, Mike, the moment they become due ! We judge from the names of the party as entered on the registry, that most of those who took part in the ceremony, either as principal, witness, or priest, were of Celtio origin. The narrative tells us that in the book the priest wrote the following :-"August 9, 1868, Michael, son of Alexander McCoole and Annie Quinn, and Mollie, daughter of Daniel and Catharine Norton, and also the names of Joseph J. Dugd and Anne Roogau, and the name of A Malholland, the officiating priest." The intense charms with which Jenkins heard the usual marriage ceremony, watched as it was by a crowd of the elite of Irish society- acrowd, the nature of which is witnessed by the drawing of the carriage of the groom by the delighted audience, is depicted in the melodramatic sentences describing the affair. "Brave and erect, under

Mone Indian outrages upon frontier settle ments in Kansas are reported. Thus th irrepressible conflict between civilization and barbarism goes on. They are irreconcilable and bloody outbreaks are inevitable while th Indians remain near the wan of the march o empire.

-Rochefort has had a "communicated note" from the Government, long enough to fill on edition of his paper. He is hesitating whether to print it at an expense of 6000 francs, o omit to take 1000 francs fine.

generation passes away, more policies would be secured by citizens of this State alone than are now held in the entire Union.

Life insurance commends itself alike to the rich and the poor. The struggling head of a family, whose annual receipts are nearly equal to his expenditures, cannot look forward with hope or confidence to a period at which he can secure a competence. At any moment his death may suddenly deprive those dependent upon him of their only means of support, and he has only one sure method of guarding against the calamity which perpetually threatens those who are dearer than life itself. A little extra effort, or extra economy, will always enable him to secure a sum sufficient to pay the premium upon a policy large enough to ward from his wife and children the worst evils of hopeless poverty. When we consider how many thousands of persons could easily gain the security for the future, which is so essential to their own mental satisfaction, and to the safety of their families, it is rather singular that the present number of life insurance policies in this State is not numbered by hundreds of thousands than that some twenty thousand pelicies have already been issued.

To the rich, life insurance is scarcely less important than to the poor. The hazards and complications of business enterprises are especially numerous and dangerous in the United States. Men engaged in extensive transactions, and enjoying a large income, are rarely free from numerous obligations and entanglements. If they die suddenly, the resources which, under their skilful management, prove highly productive, may suddenly cease to yield a single dollar of current revenue. A thousand accidents may retard the settlement of their estates, and fraud or folly may greatly reduce or totally destroy their value. A life insurance policy, however, can easily be released from all such entanglements, and the comfort of a wife or children can, by the aid of an investment of this description, be rendered absolutely secure. Many of the most successful and shrewd business men of the country testify their practical appreciation of the adwantages of life insurance for the reasons we have given, and if the subject was carefully considered by this active and useful class of the community, we have no doubt that they would, with scarcely a single exception, imitate the numerous examples to which we have referred.

THADDEUS STEVENS TAKEN HOME .- Amid the tolling of bells and the solemn discharge of minute guns, Thaddeus Stevens was borne from the Capital to Lancaster city. The people, they with whom every action of his life was in harmony, turned out en masse to honor him, and by uncovered heads and silence proved how deeply they regretted his loss. It is such a testimonial that proves that one man's life has not been in vain. It is these lamentations of a great people, the lets.

the organ pealed forth, earnestly and calmly Father Mulholland repeated the marriage ceremony, and for response and approbation the pleased congregation looked and murmured their delight."

the grand glare of the chandelier, Michael

But the elegance which characterized this recherche affair did not end at the church. There was a reception and a set-out. The nature of the repast is stated by Jenkins. From his account it seems that the newly married couple "received" in their bed-chamber-a novel reception room, but "chacun d son gout." The furniture of the apartment is particularized by both guests who recorded the events. "Furnished elegantly with a Brussels carpet and rosewood set, a marble-topped washstand, and four glorious old decanters brimful of generous port-stout old brandygood old Irish whisky. None of your long, lank, lean decanters were they, but fat old fellows, and happy were we to drink the bride and groom's health in their sacred presence." But lest we should wrong McCoole and lead the reader to imagine that "there was a flow of soul, without a feast of reason, we deem it simple justice to say that for his lighter hours Mike had a handsome set of Rollin's Ancient History. The choice probably being caused by the somewhat lengthened description of the P. R. of the good old times-the gladiatorial games, if games they can be called. What with Rollins and rye, we don't doubt the crowd that filled the bed-room-we mean the reception room-went away charmed with the accession of another member of the first families of St. Louis. Altogether it was a model wedding and one which we do not doubt will be largely imitated by the other members of the upper ten thousand. To all ladies we commend the Spartan-like spirit of Mrs. McCoole, who, when asked by her mother, how if Mike get killed in a fight, heroically and elegantly replied, "I don't care, I'll have him if he's killed in two hours, for he's my man and I love him."

THE greatest modern success of the newspaper world is the Lanterne, of Paris, which suddenly rose to a circulation of 120,000 by it<sup>8</sup> adroit attacks upon the Emperor, securing for its editor, as gossip reported, a salary of $2400 per week, for a limited amount of literary labor, and for its owners large profits. It appears, however, by a telegram forwarded from Paris yesterday, that the risks of this enterprise were commensurate with this profit, for the announcement is made that "the owner of the Lanterne newspaper has, in his absence, been sentenced to pay a fine of 10,000 francs, and be imprisoned one year in jail." This news is not very definite, but it is sufficiently explicit to indicate that Napoleon has resolved to return blow for blow, and that he will no longer tolerate bold criticisms of his policy. Freedom of the press is evidently not to become one of the fashions of the Empire, and the haughty hero of the coup d'etat does not scruple to violate all his professions of liberality when he is stung by newspaper pelThe accumulate advantages which over Twent four Years Eave given us and the important is provements recently introduced render the cour of instruction at this institution unequalicd, PRACTICAL BOOK KEEPING in all its branches.
