VALLANDIGHAM.

What he Says after his Hemination for Congress.

Mr. Vallandigham was waited upon at his residence in Dayton on the night of the 18th instant, and in answer to the congratulations of his friends upon his nomination as the Demopratic candidate for Congress from the Third

Ohio District, said: It is well known that the nomination is not such as I expected. It is not what I desired, and at another time, and under different circumstances, I might well hesitate to accept. By no wish, and no act of mine, direct or indirect, am I a candidate. My position is not the result of any ambitious application of my of the result of any ambitious aspiration of my own it is a duty imposed upon me. I would gladly shrink from its labors, its vexations, and its responsibilities. But at such a time, and in the midst of a political campaign like the present, I am constrained to yield obedience to the emphatic demand of the convention. In accepting this trust I lay aside all indivividuality. I have no personal claim upon the support or the vote of any man, nor do I desire any citizen to regard his suffrage as a matter of mere personal favor to me. I stand before the people of the district me. I stand before the people of the district not as an individual, but as the representative of the ancient principles and present policies of the Democratic party—as the representative of not the dead past, but the living present; of the questions pending to-day between the revolutionary and destructive organization known athe Republican party as it now exists and the Democratic and conservative masses of the people, without reference to former issues and past differences, whether of five years or fitteen years ago. It is not what was done or omitted by parties as they were organized in 1854 or 1863, but what is to be done to-day and to-morrow and next year for the relief of the people. (Cheers.) As a candidate | represent the views and feelings and purposes of the party, and the men who demand that the further domination of the radical Republican faction, with its military despotisms, its negro Governments, its disregard of the Constitution, its hate of the old Union, its high, oppressive tariffs, its burdensome and vexatious taxes, its enormous and increasing Government debt, its exemption of the rich from equal taxation, its demand of gold for the bondholder and paper for the people, its gigantic peculations, plunderings, and corruptions, and its most profligate and extravagant expenditures in time of profound peace shall come to su end forever. (Loud cheers.) Whoever of either party thinks that these taings ought not any longer to be endured caunot hesi-tate as to his vote, for these are the questions of the present and the future. (Applause.) If this nomination, my friends, however gratifying, is to be regarded as a mere personal favor to me as an individual, and if votes are to be given or withheld upon any such consideration, I most respectively decline it. If, however, every citizen is by his ballot to express his views and his convictions upon public affairs, I accept it, since you, my friends, have not deemed me incompetent or untit to faithfully represent and carry out the principles and policies which are the t-sues in this election as I have just set them forth. As to the result of the canvass allow me a word. You know that this district was, six years ago, made heavily Republican, as that party was then organized; but times are changing and election returns with them, and the vote six years or two years ago anywhere is small evidence of what it shall be in October or November next. Resting the campaign solely upon the great questions which new come home to the hearts and pockets, too, of the people, and asking the judgment of the voters of this district wholly upon them, I have but little more of personal interest in the result than any other citizen. But my confidence in the in elligence and honesty of the people and in the power of these issues is very great, and, without sounding manifesto or astful promise or pledges, I only say to you boastful promise or pledges, I only say to you that I propose caimly, steadily, quietly, and with determined purpose to go to work and carry this district. (Great cheering.) Whether I shall succeed I can tell you better on the morning after the election. (Laughter.) But meantime, my friends, while you spare no honorable effort for success, do not concern yourselves about either the idle boasts or the vulgar assaults and talsehoods and fabrications of the enemy. It is the mission of little creatures to abuse Valiandigham, and it is his business to pass them by with profound it is his business to pass them by with profound contempt. (Cheers.) As for myself, I propose to deal fairly, honestly, and kindly with all adversaries. In this spirit I shall at the outset meet the gentleman who is to be my competitor, and it is for him to say whether he will reciprocate the courtesies usual among gentlemen. And now, my friends, once more thanking you for this kind and corolal "surprise party," an occasion most unexpected, and trusting to meet you again when better prepared to extend the hospitalities of former times, I bid you good

VICTORIA.

night. (Loud cheers.)

The Altempt to Assassinate the Queen of England.

This morning's European despatches contained the meagre account of an attempt made to assassinate Queen Victoria at Lucerne, Switzerland. The New York World thus com-

The Queen of Great Britain has numerous personal virtues to recommend her to her people. Coming of a bad race, taking charge of a Court by no means purified from the indecencies of the Regency, she has ever shown herself highly sensible of her moral obligations and careful to make her courtiers feel the same. On this account, whatever may have been her weakness as a political ruler, she has constantly merited the esteem of her subjects, and of numbers, too, who owe her no allegiance. If any sovereign in Europe were likely to escape assassination it would be Queen Victoria. Unfortunately, however, her life has on more than one occasion been the object of an assassin's aim. In June, 1840, while yet a girl, a poor wretch named Oxford, more than half deendeavored to assassinate her, but bappily in vain. Scarcely two years afterwards John Francis was sentenced to be hanged for a similarly unsuccessful attempt, but the excellent young Queen would not permit the execution of the sentence. In July, 1842, John Deau was sentenced to imprisonment for eighteen months for another attempt. In these cases the criminals have been invariably Englishmen. Epeaking of attempts on the queen's life it may not be out of place to call attention to the rumors prevalent some thirty years ago, of the more than legitimate anxiety of her woele, the Duke of Cumberland, afterwards King of Hanover, to have her removed from his path to the throne of the Georges. On account of this well-known feeling her mother, the Duchess of Kent, constantly circulated romors of the young Princess' decilning health. Tuese had their effect, and no known attempt on her life was made before the first just mentioned. The cable tetegram of this morning, which, with meagre detail, announces a rumored at tempt on her Majesty's life in Switzerland, it is not necessary to state, requires continuation. And that portion which impliedly charges a society embracing a large section of the Celtic race with coldly and deliberately planning as unnecessary a crime as there is recorded, needs very strong evidence in its support. We hesitate to admit that even a bona fide attempt has been made by some enthusiast, like the Victorian, G'Farrell, rendered senseless by brooding over Celtic wrongs and re-sponsible only for himself. At the present moment the tide of popular feeling is setting strongly in England towards "justice for Ire-land." The strength of that current involves the existence of a great political party now ruling the country, and the neaven-born minister of these latter days might not be scrupulous as to the means he may employ in diverting the tide. Until it is placed beyond all doubt that this alleged attempt at assassination was plunned by the Fenian organization, let our readers remember the k, ndly feelings of the Irish people towards the Qu'een personally, and that knowing who is to be the next King of

THE CELESTIALS.

China in Bostom-A Grand Banquet and Speeches. The corporation banquet to the Embassy at The corporation banquet to the Embassy at the St. James Hotel, Boston, last night, was elegant and interesting. Mayor Shurtleff presided, and introduced the speech-making by a complimentary allusion to the illustrious Embassy, and the ancient dynasty which it represents. Governor Bullock, on the part of the State, remarked that no duty remained for him save to officially assure the distinguished quests of the hearty concurrence of the Execuguests of the hearty concurrence of the Executive in the honors tendered by the City of Boston.

You may ask, it you will, why China comes here with an American citizen for her Embassa. dor, to demand a high place of dignity among the countries, and she answers with the eloquence of a long and masterly history, that sae comes offering only terms of international equality, as one of the peoples and Governments the world of to-day, compacted and ribbel the victseitudes of fifty centuries, self-baseting against all efforts to assail or invade her, but willing and anxious now to welcome the sails of your commerce into her ports, the voices of your missions ries into her interior, and the rights of your citizens within her jurisdiction. In that spirit, and in that cause, I welcome Mr. Burlingame and his associates and bid them God speed on their way to the other countries.

The Hon. Charles Sumner spoke at length, pronouncing a warm eulogy upon Mr. Burlingame, in which he said: -"Mr. Burlingame was not only my personal friend, but an honored associate in representing the good people of this community, and in advancing a great cause, which he championed with memorable eloquence and fidelity. Such are 10 common ties. Permit me to say that this splendid welcome, now offered by the municipal authorities of Boston, is only a natural expression of the sent ments which must prevail in this community. Here his tabors and triumphs began, Here in your early applause and approving voices he first tasted of that honor which is now his in such an ple measure. He is one of us who going forth into a strange country has come back with its highest trusts and dignities. Once the representative of a single Congressional district, he now represents the most populous nation of the globe. Once the representative of a little more than a third part of Bosion, he is now the r-presentative of more than a third part of the human race. The population of the globe is estimated at 1,200,000,000, that of China at more than 400,000,000 and sometimes at even 500,000,000. If in this position there be much to excite wonder, there is still more for gratitude in the unparalleled opportunity which it affords. What we all ask is opportunity here, opportunity on a surpossing scale, to be opportunity on a surpossing scale, to employed, I am sure, so as to advance the best interests of the human family; and if these are advanced no nation can suffer, with justice and generosity as the reciprocal rule, and nothing else can be the aim of the present mission. There can be no limits to the immeasura-ble consequence. For myself, I am less solicitous with regard to concessions or privileges than with regard to that spirit of friendship and good neighborhood which embraces alike the distant and the near, and when once established tenders all else easy. Mr. Sumuer then gave an interesting review of the visit of Marco Polo to China, in the thirteenth century, as described by the Venitian historians, and drew comparisons between the experiences of Polo and Burlingame. In conclusion, Mr. Sumner said: And this brings me, Mr. Mayor, to the treaty which you invited me to discuss. But I will not now enter upon this topic. It you did not call to order for speaking too long, I am sure I should be called order in another place for undertaking to speak of a treaty which has not yet been pro-claimed by the President. One remark I will make, and take the consequences. The treaty does not propose to do much, but is an excellent beginning; and I trust through the good offices of our tellow-citizen, the honored Plenipotentiary will unlock these great Chinese gates, which have been bolted and barred for long centuries. The mission is more than the treaty, because it will prepare the way for further intercourse, and will help that new order of things which are among the promises of the future.

A Lynching Mob Fired Upon and Oae Killed. The Hopkinsville (Ky.)

date says:-John Coombs, as our readers will remember, has figured for some time past, and on various occasions, in our police reports, charged with the offense of whipping his mother.

In the opinion of some of the young gentle men of our city, the arm of the law was too short and weak to inflict a punishment commensurate with the magnitude of the offense charged. These young gentlemen determined to take the law in their own hands. We do not approve of any violence of mobs and the like. We were not, however, the legal adviser of these young gentlemen. They, according to Coombs' state-ment, disguising themselves as negroes, proceeded to his house, determined to punish him as they thought he deserved. A imittance being demanded by these disguised parties, Coombs being thoroughly arned, determined to give battle. From his station at an upper window, he fired upon the assairing party. The ball took effect in the head of Robert Hunter, shattering the skull and causing instant death. Hunter's companions then retreated. The deceased was well known in this community, was a carpenter by trade, and a clever, kind-hearted man. Coombs was arrested, tried, and acquitted, ashe was justifiable in the premises. The same paper contains a card, signed by Coombs' mother, in which she states that her son had not upor the occasion spoken of, or at any other time, abused her or used any violence towards her.

Whree Indiamians Assassinated in Mo. The New Albany (Ind.) Commercial of Wednesday last says:—

By a special despatch from Crawfordsville we have the following particulars of a most horrible triple assassination. The despatch says:
- "The citizens of Crawfordsville have been very much shocked by the receipt of a letter from Carthage, Missouri, containing the distressing intelligence that three former citizens of this place. Mr. Israel Patton, his son, and nephew, Mr. Nelson Moore, were recently assassinated near Carthage. It seems that they nad been missing reveral days and a search was made for them, which resulted in finding their bodies hung to a tree, with their throats cut, evidently having been left in that condition for several days. Mr. Patton lived within a few miles of Crawfordsville for a number of years, and possessed an excellent moral character. served in the army credibly, and was in many respects a most worthy man, Mr. Moore, the nephew, was remarkably quiet, never saying a word to give offense to any one. We are unable to learn the probable reason of the outrage, and from the well-known character of them all, lett to infer that they are the victims of Rebel batred, as they were all thoroughly loyal and lovers of their country. Their death has occasioned a feeling of sa iness in the community, and we wait with much soncitude the particulars in the case,"

THE EXPRESS ROBBERS. and Ander on Discharged at Windsor and Rearrested.

The Detroit (Mich.) Tribune, of August 20, Yesterday the case of the United States against Frank Rene and Charles Anderson was called ap again before Police Magistrate Caron, at Windsor, for further examination. When the case was called, Albert Prince, who was employed to conduct the examination for the proecution, renewed his motion of yesterlay for the admission of certain documentary evidence. The magistrate declined to receive it, unless the prosecution would produce Harklus, the main witness against the defendants, in order to give them an opportunity to meet him face to face and subject him to a cross-examination. He said be had examined the statute and had come to the conclusion that it was entirely that knowing who is to be the new lips the re-Britain there is constantly on their lips the re-mark of Charles to his brother:—"James, they mark of Charles to his brother:—"James, they stances he should exclude it. At the suggestion of Mr. Prince, a note of this discussion was made by the clerk, and the counsel then an-nounced that he should not introduce Harkins, a ir would be give any reason for his non-pro-duction in Court. He announced at the same time that he could not proceed further with the tions. The Court offered to give him fur her time to procure testimony, but the offer was declined, and the magistrate then discharged he prisoners.

No sooner had they been set at liberty than No scotter had they been set at horry that they were rearrested on a warrant charging them with having committed an assault with intent to kill Americus Wheedon, conductor on the Jeffersonville, Madison and Indiana Rattroad, in Indiana, on the 22d of May last, issued by Gilbert McMicken, another of the magistrates in the town. This action was not entirely unexpected, although the source from which the warrant emanated created a little surprise. The prisoners, about noon, were arraigned before Mr. McMicken, pleaded not guilty, and the examination was adjourned until 230 o'clock, at which time the Court reopened at Sandwich. T. G. Harkins, the messenger alluded to above, appeared in propria persona, and swore positively that Frank Beno and Charles Anderson, Sen., are the men who robbed the express car. He declared that he could not be mistaken in regard to the identity of the prisoners, and gave his testimony in such a manner as to leave little, if any, room to doubt its correctness. Mr. Wheedon, the conductor of the train which was rooted, and who preferred the charge of assault with intent to kill, failed to identify the accused. Some other testimony of an unimportant nature was taken, when, owing to the inteness of the hour, the case was adjourned for a further hearing at 10 o'clock A. M. to-day,

It is understood that the British Minister at Washington has written to the Canadian Government, requesting them to use every honorable effort to secure the extradition of Reno and Anderson, and the Adams' Express Company are determined they shall come over if they are guilty. The defendants, on the other hand, have strong hopes of proving an aubi.

EXTRAORDINARY LARCENY.

A Woman in a Paper Collar Manufactory Defrauds her Employers out of

The New York Times of this morning says:-A very remarkable case of embezziement was made public yesterday at the Tomos' Police Court, before Alderman Coman, when a forewoman employed in a paper collar manufactors was attraigned on a charge of embezziement. It appears from the statements of the complainant in the case that Messrs, Mersserole & Lipby have been for some time extensively engaged in the manufacture of paper collars at their premises, Nos. 76, 78, and 80 Centre street, and have had in their employ, as forewoman and superintendent of the "patching-room," one Mrs. Poer, who had under her direction from they to eighty girls, who placed in position the small pieces of linen used to strengthen the button-holes of the collars. She had full con-trol of the girls, and on her recommendation these operatives were either engaged or dis charged. Mrs. Poer kept a pass-book containing the names of the girls under her direction, in which she entered the amount of work performed by each. These girls "patched" collars by piece-work, receiving from sixty to eighty cents per thousand, according to the demand for and price of collars in the market. When a girl had "patched" say 1600 collars on a certain day the forewoman would credit them with 2000 or over, and at the end of the week, when the operative had drawn her money, she would be compelled, under threat of discharge, to return the surplus amounts to the forewoman, who, of course made a considerable sum each recurring weekly pay-day. She would also insert the names of girls who had been discharged from the manufactory in the pay-roll, and induce certain dipes of her own to step up and draw the money creatted to these discharged bands and surrender the greater part to Mrs. Poer.

The bim have been making, as they supposed a large number of collars, and it was only yes-terday, when an invoice of stock manufactured had been taken, that the firm discovered that they were out 2,383,353 collars, or rather, that they had paid for the "parching" of that number, when the work had not been performed. This was the lowest calculation that the members of the firm could make, and they are not yet sure that the amount embezzled does not reach a higher sum than $1907.50, that being about what the missing number of collars would have cost had they been honestly made. The sum obtained by Mrs. Poer, through her "dommy" operatives, cannot be well estimated, though it is supposed to reach over $2000.

When a further investigation was made in the matter the girls employed in the "oatching" room laid bare their share of the transaction, and the entire ramifications of this complete system of embezzlement were made manifest, these "patching" girls are all of tender age, and the majority are without homes, relatives, or mental training, several of them being regular inmates of the Girls' Lodging Houses, or the Working Women's Home. The firm has con-tinued to keep nearly all of them employed throughout the year, and trusted Mrs. Poer implicitly in the management of the details of her department. Several girls who proved conta macious regarding the money system inaugurated by the clear headed for woman were dis-charged on her representations of ill conduct and careless work; but in many instances their names were used by Mrs. Poer as a cover for renewed embezzlements.

The New York Herald this morning says:—

'The railway share market was less unsettled today that for several days past, and although Erie

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Mexican Mission. Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

Washirgton, Aug. 22 .- Though it has not yet officially transpired as to what are the special objects of General Rosecrans' mission to Mexico, still the assertions are that he will, in the name of the United States, lend such aid to the authorities of that Republic as will be sufficient to place it upon a firm basis. The report further is, that he will be empowered to give navalfassistance, if necessary, to carry out the plans of the governmental authorities. As it is at present, Mexico is disorganized most completely by internal factions, which are almost without number. To destroy these, and to harmonize the people, are to be, if we can trust current report, the chief objects of General Rosecrans' mission.
