OPENING OF THE THIRD NATIONAL BARK .- TO day the new building of the Third National Bank at the southwast corner of Market and Merrick streets, is thrown open for public inspection and the regular transaction of business. Upon the site it occupies there formerly stood a large four-story brick structure, dashed with cement. This was built for the Western Baving Fund, but was never occupied by it. The City Railroad Department for many years occupied the main lower floor, and the Poly-kechnic College the upper floors.

About a year since the work of making alterations and improvements on the old edifice began, and resterday the painter made his last sweep with his brush—the mason with his trowel. As improved and adorned the bank building is one of the prettiest and most stately in the whole length of Market street. It faces on Market street and has an imposing front, being fully fifty feet in width. It is constructed of Pennsylwanta marble, and is four stories high. The design is most beautiful. The doorway is masgive, and the windows are elaborate. Over the doorway, in bold letters, are the words "Third National Bank," carved on the marble. The building extends a distance of about one hun-dred feet back on Merrick street, better known West Penn square. The interior is a model of convenience and neatness.

The lower floor front is appropriated to banking purposes. It is a spacious room, 47 feet by 27 leet in extent, with a beautifully frescord ceiling and walts, executed in the highest style of the art. The desks are composed of cited walnut, and are elaborately carved and fitted out with clear French plate glass. The floor is tited with white marble, and the washboards are composed of rich black marble.

To the rear and south of the banking room are the private offices of the President and Cashier of the institution. These rooms are similar in appearance, and enter into each They are 17 by 12 feet in extent, and are richly furnished with oiled walnut tables and cases and green carpet and upholstery. They are separated from the banking room by an oiled walnut partition with stained glass windows, and between these offices and the banking room are several pillars of "scagholi," presenting a most beautiful appearance. The second floor is reached by means of a massive winding starway, composed of marble, and is divided into four spacious, well-ventilated rooms, suitable for business offices of different kinds, all opening into each other by means of doorways. The upper story consists of a very large room, suitable for a public hall. It is 47 feet by 59 feet in extent. There are numerous small rooms on either floors, used as washrooms, store rooms, etc. The basement contains a well-arranged kitchen and dining-room. The Directors' room is in the rear portion of the second story, and is a large, we'l-furnished apartment, facing on Merrick street.

The building is heated by patent heaters, and is well lighted throughout. The new building was designed by Architect Hutton, and Mr. John Sunderland was the builder. The totlowing are the names of the officers of the bank :-President, D. B. Paul; Cashier, R. Glendin ning; Directors, Joseph Harrison, Jr.. J. B. Creary, William C. Alli-on, Zophar C. Howell, Thomas K. Peterson, and John Supplee; Solicitor, John O'Byrne, Esq.

The Third National Bank was chartered in February, 1864. When operations were com. menced they had a capital of $100,000. Within two years from that time this was increased to

The entire cost of the improvement will amount to about $60,000. A number of gentlemen connected with the public press paid the institution a visit yesterday, and were most hos-pitably entertained by the officers.

DISEASED CATTLE .- At a recent meeting of the Board of Health, the subject of the arrival in this city of diseased cattle was brought up, and after a short consideration was reterred to the Sanitary Committee, consisting of Thomas Stewardson, M. D., R. La Roche, M. D., Charles B. Barrett, Henry Davis, and Edward Bennett, Equ., who at the meeting held vesterday, sub-mitted the following report and resolutions, which were adopted by the Board:-

Your committee are of the opinion that the most simple and effective plan to accomplish the above object would be to appoint certain individuals with ful power to enter the drave yards of this city, and examine all horeed cattle received there and should they find any diseased or dead, to make such cisposition of the same a in their judgment may seem proper, under supervision and direction of the Parent They. REPUBLICAN INVINCIBLES .- This splendid organization opened the campaign last night with its first parade. It was commanded by Marshal Benjamin L. Taylor, and presented a fine ap-pearance. By invitation it visited the grand mass meeting in the Southern section of the city. A stand of colors was presented them by a lady, the pre-sentation speech being made by William H. Ruddiman Esq. They were received on behalt of the Club by its President, Colonel William McMichael, in an appropriate speech. The Club marched past the Union League after the adjournment of the meeting. ROBERT BURN, living at No. 204 Carter street, was arrested by Reserve Officer Rawlings last evening, in the restaurant, No. 125 S. Taird street. It appears that Burn went into the restaurant and procured something to eat, for which he refused to pay. When Wilson Hopkins, the proprietor, demanded payment, Burn drew a knife and threatened to use it. He afterwards left, but again returned, renewing his threatening language and flourishing his kutfe. Mr. Hopkins fled to the cellar for safety, when Burn departed. The third time, however, he came back, and this time displayed a club. His exploits were then ended by arrest. Alderman Beider held him in $1500 bail to appear.

THE INDIANS.

A Collision Between the Sloux, Cheyenne, and Pawnee Indians.

The Fremont (Nebraska) Tribune contains the following account of a very recent Indian

About a month ago the Pawnees, Omahas, Winnebagoes, and Poncahs, numbering about 1500 warriors, united their tribes for a great hunt. Major Frank North, with about half his command and some six or seven white men who were on a hunting trip, accompanied the expedition. They crossed the Platte river in the vicinity of Fort Kearney, and went down to their old hunting grounds, on the Republican. Not long since they were attacked by a small war party of Sloux, but after a short engagement, drove off the enemy without loss to them selves. About one week ago another attack was made on them by the Sioux and Cheyenne tribes, and parties of other tribes, in who lming numbers, while they were hunting buffalo. Owing to the forces of the Major being buffalo. scattered on the hunt, the attacking party suc ceeded in getting in between the detached parties, thus securing a material advantage. At one time during the battle Major North and warriors were cut off from the friendly Indians, and compelled to dismount and fight on foot until assistance came to them; during this time the Major lost three men killed and a number wounded out of his small party of fifty men.

The battle commenced about the middle of the forenoon and lasted until evening, at the close of which the parties of friendly Indians had all got together and made a stand, when the Sioux and allies withdrew, not caring to lose men in a pitched battle.

It is not known how many of the attacking party were killed, but it is supposed that quite a number were, as the friendly Indians were much better armed.

The Pawnee loss was five killed, the Poncabs one killed, and numbers of both tribes wounded.

Major North and his command returned to Grand Island last Saturday, and report the remainder of the party coming in slowly, fearing o remain among so many enemies.

The New York Broadway Theatre Com-

This morning's New York Tribune relates additional particulars about the Fout Play at the Broadway Theatre. It says:It was generally supposed by the public that the fracas in the Broad way Theatre upon Monday evening would have begun and ended with-out any further action in the matter save that n the usual course of legal procedure. It was destined to be otherwise, however, and the contretemps of last evening at the theatre narrowly escaped again being in a sanguinary melec. The facts of the disturbance of Monday evening have been fully reported in the Tribune, and it will be sufficient to say that the summons which was attempted to be served on Mr. Harkins at that time did not reach that gentleman, as he effected his escape from the building during the fray. Last evening, the performance had reached the third scene of the second act (in which a tableau of great int-rest is presented by the meeting of General Rolleston with his daughter's preserver), and the excitement of the audience was at the highest pitch, when a darkvisaged, respectably dressed man ran swiftly down the centre of the orchestra stalls, and, climbing over the O. P. side of the stage, pre sented a legal document to Mr. Harkins. aghast were both audience and actor by this sudden and totally unexpected act, that moment the most impressive 'silence prevailed. The band stopped, the characters forgot their roes, while the spectators sat with their eye riveted upon the interrupted scene. The author of this extraordinary effect had sufficient regard for his own safety to take advantage or temporary stupor and retire. After the first momentary feeling of astonishment and findignation had subsided, the actors, with highly commendable nerve, finished the remaining portion of the act. No sooner, however, had the curtain descended than a perfect hurrican-of applause shook the house, and frantic calls for "Harkins" caused that gentleman to come before the curtain. Before the vociferous cheering in the auditorium had ceased he joined upon the stage by Mr. W. A. Moore, the business manager of the house. This gentleman, in appropriate words, deplored the interruption that had occurred, which he characterized as disgraceful, and stated that in the absence of Mr. Barney Williams, the lessee of be house, he should continue to support Mr. Harkins in the fulfilment of his engagement at the theatre, having every reason to believe that representations of that gentlemen were correct. Mr. Harkins remarked that the actions of an honest man were his best indicators. He also thanked the audience for their kind support throughout the unpleasant intrusion. The performances were concluded with out further interruption. .

THE MENKEN.

Some Specimens of Her Doggerel Rhymes.

From the London Star. The death of Miss Adah Isaacs Menken in Paris will strach peculiar interest to a volume of semi-religious poems in the press, which will be published in a few days under the title of "Intelicia," and dedicated by special permission to Mr. Charles Dickens. In the meantime it may not be uninteresting to quote the letter from Mr. Dickens which is prenxed to the vol-ume of poems we have just ailuded to:— "Gads Hill-Place, Higham-by-Rochester, Kent, Monday, Oct. 21, 1867.—Dear Miss Menken:—I shall have great pleasure in accepting your dedication. I thank you for your portrait as a highly remarkable specimen of photography. I also thank you for the verses inclosed in your such inclosures come to me, but few so pathetically wroten, and fewer still so modestly sent. Faithfully yours,

Charles Dickers."

The poems to which a fac simile copy of this letter acts as a kind of preface are about thirty in number. The first poem in the books is called "Resurgam," and it may not be inappropriate at the present time to quote the following passage: —

"Why did I die?
Olove! I waited—i waited years and years ago.
Once the biaze of a far off edge of living Love crept up my horizon, and promised a new morn of poesy.

As all a full die!
A soul's full die!
A soul's full die!
A soul's full die!
And promised that my voice should ring trancing shivers of rapt melody down the grooves of this dumb earth.
And promised that echoes should vibrate along the purple spheres of unfathomable seas, to the soundless folds of the clouds.
And promised that I should know the sweet sisterhood of the stars.
Promised that I should live with the crooked moon in her eternal beauty.
But a midnight swooped down to bridegroom the day.
The blazing sphynx of that far-off, echoless promise, shrate into a drowsy shroud that mocked the crying stars o. my soul's unuttered song.
And so i died.
Died this uncoffined and unburled death,
Died atone in the young May night,
Died with my fingers grasping the white throat of many a prayer."

HEAVY ROBBERY.

$16,000 Worth of Gevernment Gold Cortificates Stolen.

The New York Heraid of this morning contains the following:—
A police case with a mystery is by no means an uncommon experience, it being the fashion in these days with our small imitators of Fouchs to invest every little matter entrusted to their Bureaus for professional research, development or execution with such an air of procound mys teriousness that intelligence of the straying away of a horse or the larceny of a pocket handkerchief is considered by them contraband, and their deputies are restrained under severe enalties from communicating aught they know of the internal workings of this huge ma chine, the pol ce establishment, to outside parties. All this reticence may be excused upou he ever ready plea that undue publicity would defeat the ends of justice; but when, in so far as such ends can be satisfied, the case has been worked up and brought to its conclusion, a plain, direct statement of all the facts involved n it as far as can be learned can be of no injury. Of such a nature is a case that has recently occupied the attention of the police authorities and which yesterday culminated or fizzled in some extraordinary way, it is not exactly clear which, but concerning which there is an evi-dent mystery, the particulars gathered from various sources being as follows:-Detective Henry Vaughn, of the Central Office, arrived in this city yesterday from Buffalo with three men in custody, named respectively George Clark, John Ray, and James Lee, who were arrested in the latter place on Monday last, while endeavoring to dispose of a $100 gold certificate, on suspicion of being concerned n a recent largeny here from the person of Mc Robert J. Walker, well known as a former Secretary of the Treasury. It appears that on the 18th of the present month Mr. Walker, while in this city, lost or had stolen from him in some mysterious manner yet to be learned, four certificates of deposits of gold in the States Treasury of the aggregate value of $16,060, the thief, said to be a woman, succeeding in escaping before Mr. Walker became aware of his loss. Three of the certificates were for $5000 each, and are non-negotiable, the remaining one being for $1000, and transferable. occurrence, was lodged at the Central office, and the usual muchinery set to work for the detection of the criminal or criminals, without suc cess, until the close of last week, when a despatch was received from the Chief of Police of Buffalo, stating that three men (those mentioned above) had been arrested there as before re lated, and Detective Vaughn was immediately sent thither to examine the prisoners, and see if the suspicions entertained cerning them were correct. On his arrival in Buffalo, and beholding the prisoners, the officer at once recognized them as well known New York chevatiers d'industrie, and they, promptly acknowledging the situation, and seeing the game was up, gave him such information as resulted in the recovery of two of the $5000 certificates, the $1000 being already in the ban le of the police. The third certificate for $5000 is still untraced; but as payment of all of them has been stopped, it is of no use to tuose in whose possession it may happen, and is, in fact, more a source of danger, as counceting its possessor with the robbery, than of any present or prospective profit.

The three prisoners were brought before Jos tice Dodge, at his residence, during the day, and temporarily committed, but were afterwards, it is said, discharged from custody, Mr. Walker declining to prosecute.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. Negotiations for Reciprocity with Ca-

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 .- Secretary Seward, in accordance with an informal vote of Congress, has entered into negotiations with Mr. Thornton, the English Minister, for a new reciprocity treaty with Canada. The old treaty forms the basis of the negotiations, which will soon be in a condition for transmission to the imperial Government and the Canadian au-

It is expected that the treaty will be effected in time for ratification by the Senate at the December session of Congress.

The President Is detained here, notwithstanding the danger to his health, chiefly in consequence of the dead lock in relation to the appointment of the heads of the new revenue districts.

The revenue suffers severely from the difficulty which arises from the inflexible determipation of Commissioner Rollins to appoint Republicans to office, in opposition to the wishes of Secretary McCulloch and the President. It is asserted that the result of the elections in the doubtful Southern States largely depends upon Mr. Rollins' firmness.
