The Paraguayan War.

THE news from the seat of war on the Parana is, as usual, contradictory, but that received from both Paraguayan and Brazilian sources appears to agree on one point-the evacuation of the fortress of Humaita by the troops of Lopez, and its occupation by the Allied forces. The advices from Rio state that the fortress was finally reduced by the starvation process which has been so long under way; that two hundred and fifty cannon, and a large quantity of ammunition and small arms, fell into the hands of the Allies; that four thousand of the retreating Paraguayans had been cut off from the main body and surrounded in Gran Chaco; that three of the Brazilian iron-clads had succeeded in passing the obstructions on the Parana, and had joined the fleet in the bombardment of Lopez's position at the mouth of he Tebicuari; -in short, that all the indications pointed to an early termination of the conflict in favor of the Allies. From Paraguayan sources, it is acknowledged that Humaita has been evacuated; but it is claimed that all the large guns were spiked and the small stores removed, and that the stronghold was abandoned without the knowledge of the enemy, simply because Lopez had completed his new defensive lines on the Tebicuari. The Paraguayans are represented as being still hopeful that the Allies will not attempt to nearly all of their supplies and recruits from enter the interior; and that, through their Rio de Janeiro by water, a distance of two lassitude, the war will soon be terminated thousand miles! By reason of the slow proin favor of the former.

From the beginning, the conflict has been one of the most unequal of modern times. The following figures show the resources of the respective combatants, with the number of men furnished by each up to the 1st of last

Country, Miles. Biszil	Population 10.000.000 1,200,600	Furnished, $8 000 10 000 4,000
Tot. of Allies. 4.946 80 Paraguay 84 00		74.000 75,000

By reason of this great inequality in extent of population and resources, the sympathies of the civilized world have generally been thrown in favor of Paraguay, which has been regarded as a champion of true democracy, oppressed by the ambitious monarchy of Brazil. The history of Paraguay effectively disproves this theory. Dr. Francia, the founder of the Paraguayan nationality, was a model despot, who had no sympathy whatever with republican institutions. Under his sway Paraguay became one vast plantation with a population of slaves who were held in complete subjection to the Dictator or Supremo. He controlled the entire industry and commerce of the country, and governed it solely in his own individual interests. At his death, in 1840, after having wielded the Dictatorship for twenty-five years, he was succeeded by a creole named Lopez, who, although he had been obliged to remain hidden away for years, to escape murder at the hands of Francia, adopted in all its details the oppressive policy of his predecessor. Lopez remained in power until 1862, when he was succeeded by the present Dictator of the same name.

To arrive at the origin of the present conflict we must go back several years. Rosas, Governor of Buenos Ayres, having usurped the supreme power of the entire Argentine Confederation, contended that Paragusy also owed him allegiance, and to enforce it blocked up the La Plata, thus materially interrupting the commercial enterprises of the elder Lopez. A coalition between Lopez, Brazil, and Uruguay resulted, and after protracted fighting. Rosas was overthrown in 1852, and free communication established with the ocean. The Paraguay river, like the Parana one of the principal streams which empty into the La Plata, had been previously closed to Brazil by both Lopez and Francia; but the former, in return for the material assistance received at the hands of Brazil, guaranteed henceforth to that power the free navigation of all the streams flowing through his dominions. Advantage was at once taken of this concession by the leading commercial powers of the world. But Lopez soon showed his defiance of all treaty stipulations; the Waterwitch, an American man-of-war, engaged on a peaceful mission, was wantonly fired upon and several of her crew killed: Brazilian vessels were refused passage up the streams, and the Brazilian Minister ordered out of the country; and such highhanded operations were carried on by the Dictator until a new, but only nominal settlement of the difficulties was arrived at about the year 1858.

As soon as the present Dictator came into power, he commenced to strengthen his position, with a view to renewing the pretensions of his predecessors. Engineers and war material were freely imported from Europe, and in 1864 he struck the first blow by seizing a Brazilian mail steamer, and imprisoning at his capital a number of Brazilian officers, civil, military and naval, none of whom, it is said, have as yet been released. Vessels of war were sent up the river and several Brazilian towns seized upon, without any formal declaration of war; and then the Paraguayan despot fell upon the Argentine Confederation, simply because it refused to join him in his crusade against Brazil. The pretext presented was the alleged interference of Brazil in the internal affairs of Uruguay, with the view of he was constrained to exclaim:-"The way annexing that diminutive republic, in order you read that opinion, it tears me all to

I to obtain complete control of the mouth of the La Plata. General Flores, one of the aspirants to the Presidency of Uruguay, was installed in power by the aid of Brazil; the triple alliance between Brazil, Uruguay, and the Argentine Confederation was formed; and in June 1865 the unequal warfare was commenced in sober earnestness. One article of the tripartite treaty stipulated that the Allies should "not lay down their arms unless by common consent, nor until they have overthrown the actual government of Paraguay;" and in another article it was stipulated that the ultimate intention of the Brazilian Government "shall remain a secret until the principal object of the alliance be obtained." This ambiguous sentence is the only justification for sympathy with Paraguay; but even if it be the intention of Brazil to annex or divide Paraguay among the allies, the advocates of justice and true liberty cannot, in view of the oppressive and exclusive despetism of the Paraguayan Dictators, raise any reasonable objections.

Our readers are already familiar with the progress of the conflict on the banks of the Parana. Paraguay has striven manfully to hold her own, and the heroic devotion of he, soldiers has justly excited the admiration of he world. But everything has been in their avor. Nearly all of the inhabitants are native Guarani Indians, who are under complete subjection, and when thus restrained they make excellent soldiers. After making two or three unsuccessful attempts at carrying the war into Brazilian and Argentine territory, Lopez retired, as early as September, 1865, behind his elaborate entrenchments on the banks of the Parana, where he has been enabled to hold out for nearly three years, by reason of the marshy nature of the situation and by an occasional bold sally. The Allies, on the contrary, have had almost insurmountable obstructions to overcome, chief among which has been the fact that they have been obliged to transport gress made, dissatisfaction has been rice of late, both in Brazil and the Argentine Confederation, and a strong peace party has arisen in each country. But, if the news from Brazilian sources should prove to be true, this "fire in the rear" will be effectually sup_ pressed, and the war will be brought to a speedy termination in the best interests of humanity and republicanism.

Not to be Poisoned.

THE following handbill was recently posted on the walls of Helena (Ark.), where it will be remembered that the Freedmen have been especially well organized and prosperous: -

BARBECUE AT LAGRANGE! Thursday, August 13, 1868. COMEGNE! COMEALL! B 7TH WHITE AND BLACK! AS the infamous he is in circulation that the means for colored persons will be poisoned, we hall that Radical trick to the counter by offering CHOICE OF TABLES to our colored friends, or we will divide places with them.

H. N. HUTION,

PAUL F. ANDERSON,

LEE BEANDALES.

J. B. BRANDON, Committee. How are the mighty fallen! We used to hear from the border ruffians that the negroes were not human, and that the white man who asserted that they were so only held his due station when ridden on a rail in a panoply of tar and feathers. But now the negro has a vote, and his devoted Democratic brethren urgently invite him to a feast, and beg him to accept either a choice of tables, or, better still, to permit his white brother to sit side by side with him. There would be fun in this if we were at liberty to look merely at the ludicrous position of the repentant ruffians; but there is a deeper meaning in it; a fact lingers beneath that is a condensation of all the sins and suffering of the past. The negroes have heard that the meat is to be poisoned-and they believe it !

The black is the natural friend of his former master: he finds in him a defender against his Northern deceiver; he is ready to rush into his arms: so we hear on every balmy breeze wafted from the homes of the unreconstructed but it really looks as if it was the master that was desirous of rushing into the embrace of the enfranchised slave.

Democracy must be having a hard time of it among the freedmen of Helena, and the leaders have suddenly put their minds and heads into the work of proving the sincerity of their new professions. The instincts of the negro teach him with unerring certainty that their meat will be poisoned by their old pro-slavery enemies, and the suspicion, in a political sense, does credit to their sagacity, for figuratively, if not literally, it is undoubtedly well founded. The end and aim of the Seymour and Blair organization is to give "poisoned meat" not only to the negroes but to the representative of every loyal interest.

Judicial Courtesy.

A DAY or two ago a certain attorney, in argu. ing a case before Judge Barnard, of New York city, mildly expressed the hope that they "might get on as expeditiously as possible;" whereupon that distinguished jurist exclaimed: 'I get along as expeditiously as I want to. You take care of your business, and I will of mine." It is barely possible that the attorney may have overstepped the limits of forbearance in requesting no unnecessary delay; but it appears to us that no mere petulancy on the part of counsel should lead a man who occupies a seat upon the bench so far to forget the dignity of his position as to use such insulting language as that which we have quoted. Subsequent developments in the course of the same case show the mental and judicial calibre of this profound dispenser of justice. The same attorney endeavored to avert a threatened decision of the Court by reading from one of the Judge's own previous decisions; and so astounded was Judge Barnard at the views which he had formerly held, that pieces. I will have to take time to look it over." The whole affair is a fitting commentary on the efficiency of an elective judiciary, and presents a striking argument in favor of doing away with the system, as we have repeatedly urged.

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT'S RETURN .- We see that Admiral Farragut returns to the United States in October. His trip abroad has been a great success, and the money expended in it is well invested. It has given to Europe a correct idea of the greatness of the naval power of the United States. The grand old officer is just the one, with his splendid war record, to receive the honors, and the manner in which he has been received in every port attests the appreciation which the Old World has of his

WE CAN hardly credit the rumors published this morning that a rebellion has broken out in Arkansas, and that arme i men have closed the Courts. Bad as we know the condition of the South to be, it seems incredible that it should be as bad as this. If it should prove to be so, we hope it will be suppressed with the strong arm of military power, and all who instigated it be tried, and, if convicted, be executed. There must be an example made, and there is no better time than the present.

VERMONT holds her State election to morrow, and for a marvel the New York World is constrained to say that "there is confessedly little in a Vermont election to excite the interest or enthusiasm of the Democracy," although it appears to think that "one may reasonably expect some Democratic crumbs of comfort even from the Green Mountain stronghold of the Radicals." Precisely what form these "Damocratte crumbs of comfort? are to assume we are not informed. The following is the glorious record made by the little tistronehold!! doelno

WHEAT IN FRANCE.-Every year France sows about 14,000,000 acres with wheat, which yields a variable crop of 225,000,000 to 300,000,000, and even 230,000,000 bushels. The best wheat land pays a rent of from $10 to $20 per acre, and yields from 37 to 52 bushels per acre. On many other lands, however, the yield is only 14 to 18 busnels
