"That Detestable Confederation." To THE northeast of the State of Maine, sepa , ated from it by the Bay of Fundy, is the almost island of Nova Scotia. It contains about half a million of inhabitants, and about 18,000 square miles of territory. For many years, we may say centuries, it has been allowed to make its own laws, elect its own officers, and in every way regulate its internal affairs, almost the same as an independent province. The only subjection to the British Crown was in the appointment of certain nominal officials, whose presence kept alive a spirit of loyalty, and reminded them, without offense, of their connection with the British Crown. Such was the state of the province-a sort of utopian state-if we can believe the Attorney-General-until the idea was conceived of perfecting the union of the provinces. Against this little Nova Scotia rebelled. She recognized clearly that in a general assembly, her laws would be made by representatives coming from an entirely distinct country-from a zone different from theirs. What could a native of Red River, or a resident of Hudson Bay know of the wants of Nova Scotia or the commerce of Halifax ? Then, sgain, she would have to bear a burden of taxation which to her was new and startling. They state, in a formal protest, published a few days since in THE EVES-INO TELEORAPH, that they pay more than double taxes, and do not receive half as many privileges as they did when they were independent. The result is that the members of the loval Legislature, with but one exception. protest against the union as tyrannical, and against the spirit of the British Constitution. They say that they are taxed by a Legislature not elected by the people, and governed by rulers in whose selection they have no voice. They are determined at every hazard to free themselves from so oppressive a condition by legal means if possible; but they are determined to be free. The Attorney-General, Hon. William Wilkins, in a speech delivered in the House, declared that he for one was realy for anything rather than "the detestable confederation." and hinted clearly that if no redress can be found at St. James they will see if at Washington assistance cannot be afforded.

We regret to see that certain papers in the States are inclined to ridicule the statement of the Attorney-General, and to speak despairingly of the wish of a people to be free, because they are small and weak. The fact, however, that from words spoken, the Attorney-General was called to account, and much alarm expressed at his "treasonable" remarks. indicates that he but gave voice to a popular sentiment. A Government, strong in itself can afford to treat with careless indifference threats such as those uttered; but when those threats but echo the thoughts of the people, the smallest mutterings should be well heeded. There is in the dissatisfaction in Nova Scotia food for reflection in the United States. The province is a rich one. It is situated contiguous to the United States, as it is the point furthest east to which all vessels come. The ocean telegraph extends from it. In truth, in many respects Nova Scotia would be an accession to the United States most welcome and valuable. If this dissatisfaction be wide-spread, surely it is not for us to laugh at it, or to use our influence to sooth it down. The conduct of the British Government towards us has not been such as to cause us to lend our aid to crush a rebellion in one of her provinces. Should we secure possession of Nova Scotia, as a member of our Union, an entirely new regime would be opened, we would control the key to all foreign intercourse, and, to a certain extent, require all to say our "open sesame" to gain admittance to this continent. A different state of society would be found there. No more would we see such a spectacle as that presented by the report of emigration to the Provinces, which says that "twenty-three thousand two hundred and seventy-six emigrants have arrived at Toronto during the present year, of whom only 3101 remained in Canada." One emigrant in eight remains in Car.ada ! Would such a state be continued if the wise Government of the United States had charge of the rivers ? This, too, as the proof of the first year of confederation, # 11 seems to warrant the "detestable Unio',,'' being so termed. We think that it is not impossible that the day is near when we vill have added Nova Scotia to our possessior .s. It is a jewel which the United States of overs most anxiously; and should the Alabam a claims not be settled, we think that they y night be assumed by the Government. on or addition of the cession of the peninsula. Such was done with Spain in regard to Florivita, France and Louisiana, Mexico and "l'exas, to a limited extent. Why should not the time-honored custom be continued, and we buy Nova Scotia by endorsing British duebills ?

was or was not to be chosen. Everything was uncertain when suddenly the great bronzed sword in the hand of that noble statute snapped asunder at the hilt. It was not touched by mortal hands—no human agency broke it. Some mysterious, invisible and irresistible power snapped it at the hilt, and the word went forth that the country was henceforth to have a statesman and not a soldier for a leader."

It thus appears that the ancient Roman custom of referring grave affairs to the decision of augurs, who were influenced in their judgment by the flight of birds, and equally pertinent circumstances, prevails in a modified form among the Democracy of the present day. Whether the mysterious destraction of the sword of the armed figure in Tammany Hall was rightly interpreted remains extremely doubtful. If a great moral and political lesson was to be taught by a circumstance that was probably purely accidental. Some augurs might have inferred that the destruction of the sword of Tammany meant that it had lost power forever, and that the members of the Convention had better go home without making any nomination at all in opposition to the irresistible Grant. The Seymour augurs, however, in imitation of some of their ancient prototypes improved the occasion by a false interpretation favorable to their design of slaughtering the soldier aspirant for Democratic honors.

When the American people adopt the con. clusion that "the country is henceforth to have a statesman, and not a soldier, for a leader," they will want some better ground for this decision than the mutilation of the brittle wares of Tammany Hall. The best soldiers of this country, Washington and Jackson, proved superior statesmen and the best of Presidents. The qualities that ensured their triumph at the head of their countrymen in the field, ensured wise and successful action in the Executive Mansion. Wielding unbounded influence over the people, it was never prostituted to bad ends, but uniformly exercised for the attainment of beneficent and patriotic objects. Above all, peace was maintained, for foreign foes and domestic traitors consider well before they arouse the anger of a nation headed by a famous military chieftain.

GENERAL GRANT'S letter of acceptance contains this significant promise: -- "If elected to the office of President of the United States, it will be my endeavor to administer all the laws in good faith, with economy, and with the view of giving peace, quiet, and protection everywhere." This clear declaration, coming from a man who uses but few words, but who knows exactly what they mean, and who faithfully fulfils his pledges, gives to the country every assurance that patriotic men can desire that the affairs of the nation will be administered, under the coming President. with an eye single to the welfare of the whole people. Grant's comprehensive promise is worth a thousand times more than the vaunted statesmanship of the Democratic candidates. Horatio Seymour, before his nomination, was publicly committed to doctrines diametrically opposed to those promulgated by his party, and he sacrificed his principles to his ambition in accepting the Tammany nomination and indorsing the Tammany platform. His readiness to abandon his acknowledged convictions at the behests of his party having thus been exposed, the people are warned at the outset that he will continue to obey in the future, as he has in the past, the commands of the leaders of his organization, his boasted statesmanship serving no other end than to frame excuses for new betravals of the real interests of the American people. His triumph would be the signal for a revival of all the worst passions engendered by the Rebellion, and the people would be compelled to witness a reversal of all the verdicts won by the hardearned victories of the war. Animated by the same spirit which prompted James Buchanan to say, "I am no longer James Buchanan, but the Democratic platform," Horatio Seymour, if elected, would become like his last Democratic prototype, the servant of the Southern conspirators, and under their guidance there could neither be economy, peace, quiet, nor protection for the loyal citizens of the United

The great anxiety observable everywhere is as to Philadelphia. "What will the city do ?" is the universal inquiry. If we but follow the example of the country, and work as hard, we predict a majority of over 20,000 in the Key-stone State in October, and far more than that in November next.

the pool k LETTERS from gentlemen and ladies who are in the South continue to depict a most fearful state of disorganization. From one whom we know to be reliable we hear that as soon as a Northern man arrives in Mississippi, he is called the most opprobrious epithets by the gang of ruffians who loiter around the railroad stations, and if he escapes with his life he may be thankful. Like the palmy days of Kansas outrages, they beat every new settler if he is a free-trade man, and if he declares himself a slavery man, they beat him the more for telling them a falsehood. To steer between the two is impossible. Anarchy reigns in many portions. The dreadful case of tarring a woman, which was published yesterday, is the best commentary on the uncivilized condition of that region. What a contrast is presented from what could have been secured had but reason and Christianity been allowed to govern the action of the Southern people. Instead of business stagnation and social revolution, they would have had that vast inflax of Northern capital which was ready to at once hasten to them the moment that the war was ended in spirit as well as in the body. Railroads would have developed resources as yet undreamt of. Enterprise would have marked every State, and the entire country been on the high road to renovation of the past. Instead of that we see to-day a spirit of rebellion rampant. No capital dares to enter the region cursed by such a source of villainy. The South is the strong man dead to all reason through his insane passion for riotous living. The spectacle is a sad one, and makes pertinent the question, what shall we do to arouse him ? It requires some decided blow, and that blow must be given by the election of Grant and Colfax by a majority which will make further delusion impossible.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

THE ARCH STREET THEATRE OPENS for the display of her powers.

THE ENGLISH OPERA

THE ENGLISH OPERA Company, presided over by Miss Caroline Rich-ings, will commence a two weeks' engagement at the Arch Street Theatre on Monday evening of next week, opening with Flotow's delightfal opera of Mariha. Among the noveities pro-mised during the season are fit Trovatore and Crispino and the Fairy. All the old favorites of the troupe are still connected with it.

AT THE CHESNUT STREET THEATRE The White Faum, with all its gorgeous spectacles and bal-let still holds the boards. Tais is the fourth week, and the interest of the public appears to be undiminished. A matinee will be given to-morrow afternoon.

AT THE WALNUT STREET THEATRE Foul Play is still under way, and promises to maintain its place for an indefinite period. The people have concluded to overlook its many crudities for the sake of their interest in the story, and the scene of the scuttling of the ship. A mati-nee will be given to-morrow afternoon. HOOLEY'S MINSTRELS are now increasing and substantiating the very favorable impression which they created last spring. The Seventh Street Opera House is crowded nightly with audiences that are kept throughout in the best possible good humor. AT THE AMERICAN THEATRE a varied and entertaining programme is presented every evening.

Military and Civil Presidents. JOHN T. HOFFMANN, the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, in a recent speech at Buffalo said :--

"Upon the platform stood two bronze statu-ettes of noble soldiers, one leaning upon a great bronze sword. The Convention had been in session for several days; ballot after ballot had taken place. First one was up and then another, and at last a gallant General, whose name has never been mentioned anywhere save with respect-I mean General Hancock. No man knew whether on the next ballot he

HORATIO SEYMOUR is still in the speech-making line. Yesterday he discoursed to a large assemblage at Saratoga on agricultural topics, ignoring politics, and paying special attention to the watermelon prospects, which Horatio, as in his famous watermelon epistle, regards as unusually brilliant. After the watermelon speech a serenade was tendered the standardbearer of the Democracy, and he again responded, this time very briefly, and without any reference, near or remote, to either the watermelon or Presidential prospect. Horatio was also inclined to be facetious, and while in this amiable mood he introduced to the audience General Gordon Granger, in these words:-

States.

"We have with us to night a gallant soldier, who has done much to sustain the character of New York upon the battle field."

What a covert sarcasm is herein implied upon his own course during the Rebellion General Gordon Granger did do the State of New York and the country some service on the field of battle. But what a contrast is presented by his record, and that of the leader under whom he has now arrayed himself-Rosecrans, Hancock, McClernand, Granger, Custer, and Franklin-this is the Democratic roll of "White" Boys in Blue, and in close company with them are found Lee, and Beauregard,'and Hampton, and Forrest, and almost every man of high or low repute who wore the uniform of grey. They are all now marshalled under Horatio's banner, and are al equally "representative in their reverence and regard for the Union 1"

CHEBRING !- Reports received from different parts of the State in regard to the manuer in which the campaign is progressing are most encouraging. The Republican party is at work. Not only is it holding meetings, but it is quietly engaging and preparing for the fight.

DEFAMING GRANT.

How the Democracy Does Not Do It. One of the Committee on Resolutions in the late Tammany Convention writes to the Sun and asks:-"Does the World desire to deteat Governor Seymour for the Presidency?" He and asks: -- Does the World desire to deleat Governor Seymour for the Presidency?" He then proceeds to say:--Under what influence, and for what reason, does his paper persist in assaulting the military career and private character of General Grant, when it is a recognized lact in American politics that the abuse of a candidate by his enemies is more boneficial than the most elaborate encomiums of his friends? The attacks upon the character of General Grant charac-terizing the leading editorials of the World, are doing the Democracy and its candidates more injury than anything the Republican editors and orators can write and say. I was a member of the Democratic National Convention, and a member of the Com-mittee on Resolutions, and (speaking after the manner of a modes, man) believe I uncerstand the sentiments of that body. The Convention appealed with sincerity to the "late ligence of the American people," the World seems to rely for auccess upon the passions and prejud ces of a portion of that people. There assaults by the metropolitan or that people and the defeat of Horatio seymour. The simple unit and intelligent vo.es, and if persisted in will result in the defeat of Horatio seymour. The simple used to its to be the World is even us to used in will result in the defeat of Horatio ceymour. The simple A DEMOCRAT. New York, Sept. 7 1888.

It has for a long time been clearly apparent to every intelligent observer in the canvass that the deliberate attempt being made by the World and other Democratic sheets to rob Grant of his military laurels, and make him out a "drunkard," "damnable butcher," "cotton speculator," etc. etc., was materially swelling the number of his supporters. The opposition could not have adopted a more suicidal mode of wartare. It has already, as the above writen declares, cost the party thousands of "indeperdent and intelligent votes," and if persisted in will render every Northern State certain for Grant. Within a few days the World has Grant. seemingly woke up to a realization of this fact, and it has accordingly held up on its billings-gate and abuse. -N. Y. Eve. Post.

JUDGE WOODWARD ON GRANT .--- The Democratic papers in this as well as other States are in the papers in this as well as other States are in the persistent habit of calling General Grant an intemperate man. These same papers will not dispute the authority of Hon. George W. Wood-ward. Democratic Congressman from the Twelfth District, lately renominated by his party, who, in a speech at Great Bend, Susque-hanna county, two weeks ago, said: --"It is said that General Grant is intemperate." that General Grant is intemperate. I know the charge to be false. My intimate social and military association with General Grant through nearly all his campaigns leads me, as an honest man, to declare that the worthy chieftain is not only innocent of this unjust charge, but that he is in every respect temperate, and in all the walks of life a gentlemau."-Pittsburg Commer cial.
