NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12. The visitor to the Boston theatres will have remarked at one of them a pretty little balletgirl, whom, for the sake of convenience, we will call Jenny. Jenny was about sixteen, was very pretty, had no occasion to seek to render her charms more piquant than nature had made, and was the sole support of an invalid mother, who was worse than widowed-had, indeed, that widowhood of the soul forced upon her by the occasional presence of a dissolute and cruel husband. Now ballet-girls, as a rule, however resplendent they may appear upon the stage (and I have noticed that one remarkable point about them is their apparent disagreement as to which shade of pink in tights is a proper representation of the flesh), are not overpsid, and Jenny and her mother found it impossible to live mainly on five dollars per week. A companion of Jenny's, whom I will call Blanche, was in as sore a strait as Jenny herself, and when matters appeared to have reached their crisis, and both appeared to have nothing pleasant in store for these turners of pirouettes, comes along a smooth-spoken feminine devil, Kate Davis by name, who represents that in her home in New York, Blanche and Jenny may earn a good living in a decent manner, and find as many desirable young men at their feet as they ever would by remaining behind the footlights. Euough! The two young, frolicksome fools went with the They were clothed with expensive Davis. toileties, and taught arts which I cannot men tion here. After a considerable lapse of time, Jenny's mother, on the point of distraction, traced the two girls to this city laid the case before Inspector Ditks, and by means of his detectives discovered their residence. With unspeakable eagerness the two poor misguided young things rushed towards their deliverers, and thanked the fate which rescued them before the epoch when reformation is possible had passed. Happily for the feelings of the mother, the girls have succeeded in deceiving her and making her believe that while absent from home they have been engaged in a manufactory in this city. They swore that, since they have been living with Davis, they had brought in to the old wretch a weekly average of $175. This account appeared to be so true, for both of the girls are very attractiveand the woman Davis' account so false, that Superintendent Kennedy and Inspector Dilks took the liberty of informing Kate that unless she handed over a sum sufficient to defray the old lady's expenses hither and while in the city, as well as those of her going back with Jenny and Blanche, she must inevitably be locked up for an indefine length of time. Kate wept, and stamped, and swore, but, after dilly-dallying a long time, handed over the money, got into a carriage in waiting, and drove off. Cases similar to this are constantly occurring and constantly being suppressed. The numerous women who make seduction their business obtain the title of Queen in their respective lines, and their homes, be they humble or gorgeous, are the scenes of such transactions as by no possibility could enter into the imagination of those who have witnessed

Another sad illustration of city life occurred only a day or two ago. A woman named Ada lina Peck, and who once held a high social position, was arrested on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. The name she bore at the time was Louisa Louis, and she was only twenty-five years old. The short time that had elapsed since she was wealthy and respectable was of sufficient duration to afflict her with an incurable disease, and confirm her in habits which hastened her rapidly on toward her end-Her short life comprised a series of events whose climax was a tragedy. Her early marriage was not happy; her husband procured a divorce; she endeavored to console herself with attachments which should be the last consolations of a good woman. Dissipation on every side lent her a helping hand towards the grave. Upon being arrested she was committed to a cell on Spring street, and found dead there in the morning. How many women, with similar stories, struggle forward for years, to an equal fate in the end.

Do you remember the famous Eaton-Bourganani case? It has come up once more before the Jefferson Market Police Court, and the result is that Bourganani, the seductive and dark-eyed Italian, has been locked up for his refusal to pay Mrs. Eaton the weekly stipend of $10. Poor old lady! there is always something sublime to me in the utter upreasonableness of a grand passion. This wretch Bourganani, robbed Mrs. Eaton, after wronging her out of thousands upon thousands of dollars, of every penny indeed that she had in the world. To render his outrageous acts still more atrocious. he has enticed away from her her little granddaughter, and married her. Yet the noble though foolish young lady avows that she loves the knave still; that she is willing to forgive and Ignore his treatment of her, and the losses his perfidy has entailed upon her family, if he will only love her and live with her still. When it is remembered that the man is to all appearance not more than thirty, and that the lady is nearly eighty, the singularity of this strange passion will be comprehended. She first saw him, I believe, at a ball in Baltimore, where he likewise attracted the favorable regards of her two grand children. At the instance of one of them, Emily, he becomes a member of the family, and from that moment binds all his energies to the gaining possession of Mrs. Eaton's heart, hand, and property. Every cent of money she parts with in his behalf. Then he debauches the grand-daughter, marries her. and makes a four-years' tour of Europe, and is finally heard of as opening oysters in a Canadian oyster saloon. However, they have got him now, and I hope will keep him until Mrs. Eaton's fidelity dries out. ALI BABA.

DOORRAL.
There was once a rat-tan terrier purp, And a fat little fellow was he: With a bright black eye he was quick and spry As any tan terrier could be.

This stout rat-tan terrier purp, As you will presently see,
Was brought to grief and his life made brief,

By the bite of a murderous fles, One day this rat tan terrier purp. With his tail of the stumplest kind,

Near a rat-hole sat, as still as a cat, When he felt a sharp pain behind. Quick as thought this rat-tan terrier purp Made a dash for the foe in the rear; But he was so fat he could not get at

The spot by baif an luch clear. Then this beautiful rat-tan terrier purp Did worry and twist and turn,

Till nought could you see of this terrier purp But an luch of his tail astern,

Now that was how this terrier purp Was killed by a flea-bite severe; But his master goes to Stokes & Co.'s, Where fashionable clothing appear,

A FINE IMPROVEMENT,-Qur e teemed friend, Mr. John Doll, widely known as an importer of toys and fancy goods, is just putting the finishing touches to a handsome structure at No. 908 Market street, to which he intends a removal about the first of the coming month. The building, which has been fitted up with all the conveniences and requirements of a first-class establishment, is much larger than the one now occu. pled by him, and affords him ample facilities for the exhibition and storage of his stock, which has been much needed. The name of John Doll has been idenfied with the toy trade of Philadelphia for fully a quarter of a century, during which time his business has steadily increased, so much so that a removal to more extended quarters became an actual necessity. We, therefore, take pleasure in congratulating him on the completion of his handsome and commodious warehouse, and hearilly wish him a continuance of the flattering success which his enterprise and welldirected efforts have thus far been the means of accomplishing.

THE TEST OF TIME.—It is high praise to be able to say truthfully of any mechanical invention that it has stood and continues to stand the test of time. The Grover and Baker Sewing Machines (the Palladelphia agency for which is located at No. 730 Chesnut Street), have done a better thing. They have not merely stood the test of time, but have stood the test of competition with all the world as welland not only preserved their original popularity but greatly enhanced it. This is mainly due to the fact that the proprietors have steadily continued to add to the perfection of their instruments, until now, it is not overestimating the fact to say that the Grover and Saker Sewing Machines combine in themselves all the excellencies that pertain to any and all the other sewing machines extant. Of course they are the best to buy.

Newspapers, Periodicals, Fashion Plates, and Magazines—both English and American—may be had as soon as published of John Trenwith, the great news agent. His enterprise and energy have secured or him an extensive patronegs, which he continues o satisfy by jurnishing the New York papers several hours earlier than they can be obtained by the requiar mails, and by selling the periodicals and magazines at the lowest possible prices. Those desiring the latest intelligence should visit Trenwith's News Emporium, at No. 107 S Third street.
