For Which Side do the Finances Plead MR. WILLIAM A. WALLACE, the "coffee boiler" of our State politics, in one of his latest addresses, stated that the debt of the United States had steadily increased under the Republican administration ever since the close of the war, and even went so far as to give the number of millions per annum at which it had advanced. To the credulous and iguorant it is only natural that such a statement as this should be an argument against the Republican administration, but upon coming close to the bugbear, instead, we find its stately proportions are decidedly diminished. We are like the Yankee who was asked whether he did not have a brother blind in the eye who used to live in California. He replied he never had a brother who was blind; his brother never was in California, and finally he never had any brother at all. So we can say to Mr. Wallace. It has not been a Republican administration since the war, the debt does not show a strong increase. and finally the debt has not increased at all. Let us see what has been the tale told by the figures of the Treasury Department. The amount of debt less cash in hand on the fourth of March, 1860, was $66,180,855. On the first of September, 1865, it was $2,757,689,571 So that we can actually calculate that the total cost of the Rebellion, exclusive of life, suffering, and stagnated industry, was about $2,691,508,616. Who do we have to thank for that ? Upon the members of what politioal party should that war rest? Surely no sane man can doubt but that the Southern Rebels were directly responsible for this sum. Where are the Southern Rebels to-day ? Are they on our side of the battle? Without an exception worthy of note, the men who led and caused the war are with the Demouracy. aiding it, working for it, and prepared, if opportunity should offer, to fight for it as well. Does Mr. Wallace credit his friends with their share of the debt? But let us see where his increase is. The highest point reached was on the 1st of September, 1865. The last monthly statement, from the 1st of September, 1868, shows an indebtedness of $2,535,614,313. Which is the greatest, Mr. Wallace? The single rule of substraction will show. The sum shows a decrease of two hundred and twenty-two millions seventy-five thousand two hundred and fifty-eight dollars within three years. Yet Mr. Wallace says that since the war ended the debt has steadily increased. There is something rotten in the state of numerical Denmark. But the figures not only show us a decrease, but by examining the fluctuations we cau see where the greatest decrease is to be found. From the 1st of September, 1865, to the 1st of November, 1866, or for over a space of but one year and two months, the debt decreased two hundred and six millions three hundred and eighty" nine thousand five hundred and sixty-six dollars' For the two years since then it has only decreased in the total of about sixteen millions of dollars. Why is this? During the year which saw so tremendous a decrease the spirit of Rebellion was, to a great extent, crushed out. It had not yet been revived by the fostering heat of the Democratic affection. The Rabellion seemed dead, and great hopes were entertained for the future of the land. But soon the attitude of the Democratic party caused a revalsion of feeling. Arrogance and orime took the place of penitence, and it has been necessary, in order to prevent another war, to keep watch and ward over the Southern States. Hence the small decrease-hence the stagnation. Who is to be thanked for this-Republicans er Democrats ? To a careful man we think that Mr. Wallace would make a mistake were he to continue to press the question of debt as an argument in favor of supporting the friends of either Mr. Johnson or Seymour. On the dimunition of the debt being so slight during the last two years, compared with that of the previous year, we have another thing to which we would call attention. The revenue has suffered fearfally during the period elapsing since January, 1867, because of the dissension among those whose duty it is to have it in charge. The quarrels between the Johnson Democrats and the Republican office-holders, and between the President and the Senate has cost the United States Government millions upon millions of dellars. To secure even an approximately honest collection, it is essential that there should be perfect harmony-and that harmony can only be secured by the election of a Republican President. The Senate for four years at least must remain Republican. Shall we allow the quarrel to continue, and the revenue still to suffer? We urge upon all our readers a careful calculation of these questions and a candid answer. If after examining them in the light of intelligence they are convinced of the truth of the statements of Mr. Wallace and the force of his arguments, then vote for Seymour and Blair. If on the contrary they are shown to be false in fact and fallacious in reasoning, and of great pecuniary disadvantage to the nation, then we call on all as good citizens to lend their most earnest support to Grant and Colfax.

| ingly injured. Two members of the New Jersey Legislature were so badly treated that their lives are despaired of. It is to be hoped that this disgraceful affair will have some tendency to check the base-ball furore, which is one of the most intolerable nuisances of the age.

The Ku-Klux Klan in Tennessee. A NOTICEABLE feature of the petition or address of the Committee of the Legislature of Tennessee, asking from the President military aid to maintain the peace, is the statement that the enmity of the Ku-Klux Klan is mostly directed against the negroes, of whom many who were employed on plantations for a year, with the understanding that they should get a part of the crop, are now forced to flee fo! their lives, leaving the result of their labors behind them ! For downright meanness, com mend us to the Southern chivalry. No othe race of men are capable of cruelty and baseness equal to that they are practising at this moment in the South. Claiming that their constitutional rights are invaded, and that they seek only to maintain the ascendency of a superior race, the practical commentary upon their professions is the ever-recurring proof that the object they have nearest at heart is to cheat the freedman out of his hard earned wages, and to continue to sustain their worthless lives of idleness, debauchery, and orime on the proceeds of unrequited toil. The pirates and robbers who openly prey upon mankind, are not more infamous than the murderous Ku-Klux villains, who systematically cheat, terrorism, the laborer out of by. just hire. The evil unfortunately his does not end with the first acts of injustice. False as the accusation that the freedman will not work under a free-labor system has proved, they can scarcely be expected to evince much industry after they have been repeatedly robbed of their earnings. The Rebel midnight assassins injure not only the freedmen; they strike a fatal blow at the prosperity of their own neighborhoods and States, and diminish the productive power of the nation. They also provoke a bloody retribution; they create the only real danger of the sanguinary war of races they are constantly predicting; and they obstruct the restoration of order and peace. These unmitigated villains are to a man advocates of Seymour and Blair. They would regard the election of the Democratic candidates as the signal for an open restoration of Rebel rule and Rebel regime in every Southern State, and in every ramification of Southern society. They deny that they intend to restore slavery-but there can be no worse slavery than that they are seeking to establish by their Ku-Klux-Klans. They allege that they desire only the restoration of their Constitutional rights-and they meanwhile prove that now, as in their past history, their real purpose is to trample upon every natural and legal right of a down-trodden race, and to rule or ruin the patient and patriotic people of the North.

GENERAL J. R. CHALMERS, of Tennessee "formerly in the Confederate Service," as the New York World naively puts it, has been talking to Mr. Seymour's "friends" in that city. This man Chalmers, who is still, if we are not mistaken, a paroled prisoner of war, closed his address in advocacy of Seymour and Blair with the following words:--

THE GRAND RALLT .- To morrow evening the city of Philadelphia is destined to be the scene of a grand political demonstration which will fairly rival in its proportions any of late years. The meeting will take place on Broad street, in front of the Union League House, where there is ample room for tens of thousands of people to collect without being uncomfortably close together. Among the speakers will be several of the most prominent statesmen, soldiers and orators of the country, the list including such names as those of Generals Sickles, Hawley, Rawlings and Logan, Governors Geary, Curtin and Pollock, Mesars. Stanton, Sherman, Hamlin, Cameron, MoPherson, Kelley, Dougherty, Attorney-General Brewster, Mayor McMichael, and General Hector Tyndale, the Mayor that is to ba. Let every citizen of Philadelphia, whose heart is in the cause, be present.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA .- The first term of the collegiate year at this institution opens to morrow. We learn that the efforts made by the Trustees and Faculty to extend the curriculum have proved entirely successful. and are meeting with substantial tokens of the public appreciation. The new Freshman class will contain certainly seventy students, and may exceed this number, being nearly double the size of last year's class, and more than double the classes of years previous to last. The Fac ulty, too, has been enlarged, and now includes fourteen professors and instructors. The course has been slightly modified in order to perfect the elective platform, and since the appointment of a United States Professor of Military Science and Tactics, will include civil engineer ing in addition to the milliary subjects. We wish every success to the University, and can not too strongly advise our citizens to assist in the work of elevating it to a still biguer stand-

DRAMATIC.

The First Night of the Season at the Arch. The reopening of the Arch Street Theatre on Saturday evening was a more than usually en, joyable affair, which we hope may prove to be the auspicious beginning of a season of pros perity for the management and pleasure for the public. To begin with-the house looked clean, bright and comfortable; it had been repainted. regilded and redecorated throughout; new carpets and mattings covered the floors, and everything looked so tasteful and so cheerful that it was impossible not to be predisposed in favor of the performers before the prompter's beli gave the signal for the rising of the curtainwhich introduced them to the audience. One of those fine old comedies of sterling merit which delighted our grandfathers, and watch' like pure wine, lose nothing of their flavor, bus rather become mellowed and improved by age, was chosen for the purpose of displaying the capabilities of the company. The actors were well up in their parts, the costumes were correct and elegant, the scenery was good. and the performance altogether was one of far more than ordinary excellence. The theatre was filled with a large and fashionable audience. who apparently had come determined to be pleased anyhow, and the actors, as they appeared upon the stage, were welcomed in a manner that must have inspired them to do their best. Mrs. Drew may congr stulate herself on the success of her opening night, as it was one of those occasions that will be remembered with satisfaction by all who were fortunate enough to be present. The company she has brought together is one of unusual strength and is capable of presenting almost any play in a capable manner. Under these circuit the present season at the Arch ought to be one of great gratification to all lovers of refined and intellectual amusements, and we do not doubt but that it will be. Goldsmith's comedy of She Stoops to Conquer is a play that has kept possession of the stage solely on account of its intrinsic merits as a piece of dramatic composition, in spite of the changes of time, taste, and fasuion. It makes large demands upon the credibilities of the audience, but the incongruities of the plot only make it the more enjoyable when they are joined to brilliant and sprightly dialogue and well-drawn characters. Like all of Goldsmith's writings it has a peculiar charm which is to a certain extent undefinable, but which will always cause it to be a favorite with a large class of playgoers whose preference for the style of plays known as old English comedy is something more than the result of education and prejudice. Mrs. Drew's "Miss Havdcastle" is one of her best comedy personations, and as a dramatic portrait it is every way worthy of being placed beside her "Lady Teazle"-a character in which she has no superior on the stage. Mr. Barton Hill's "Young Marlow" was also a fine per formance, and in this connection we must express our satisfaction at having Mr. Hill again attached to the Arch Street Company. Mr. Craig, as "Tony Lumpkin" was excellent, but some of the "gags" which he saw fit to introduce were scarcely improvements on Goldsmith or worthy of so intelligent an actor. Mr. Mackay, always a careful, and often a very fine actor' was the capable representative of "Mr. Hardcastle," and Mrs. Thayer was fitted with a part well suited to her abilities in "Mrs. Hardcastle." The other characters were well represented, as follows:-"Hastings," Mr. L. L. James: "Sir Charles Marlow," Mr. W. H. Wallis; "Diggory," Mr. S. Hemple; "Miss Neville," Mrs. T. A. Creese; "Landlord," Mr.;Osborne; and "Letty,' Miss Mahon. At the conclusion of the comedy Mr. Hill was called before the curtain, and made a nea" speech, in which he alluded to the fact that he had assumed the duties of stage manager, and asked for the indulgence of the audience for his short-comings. He then spoke of the fact that Miss Fanny Davenport was about to make her first appearance in Philadelphia, and requested that she might receive a kind greeting for her. father's sake. Mr. Craig was also called out and he made a brief speech. The farce of Jenny Lind, which concluded the performance, was selected for the purpose o introducing Miss Davenport, the new soubrest: of the company. The daughter of so fine an actor and so worthy a gentleman as Mr. E. L Davenport could safely have been assured of a favorable reception by a Philadelphia audienc : on the occasion of her debut, and when she ap peared the applause was as hearty as could be desired. Miss Davenport is a blonde, very good. looking, somewhat inclined to embonpoint, but graceful, and her acting indicates careful training. Her voice is a pure soprano, of excellent quality, rather light, but of sufficient compass for a moderate sized house like the Arch. As an actress Miss Davenport is vivacious and sprightly, and, if we mistake not, she is destined to become a great favorite before the season is far advanced.

has an exceptionally igood company, and the actors as well as the public would doubtless be pleased if they could more often appear in plays that will-allow them to display their talents to the best advantage.

The Theatres This Evening.

At the Arch Street Tuestre this evening the Richings English O, era Troupe will appear in Flotow's opera of Martha. This troupe are established favorites, and are sure of an appreclative reception. At the Wainut Foul Play will be performed. Tois is the last week of this plece. At the Chesnut the flue spectacle of The White Foun continues to attract crowded houses, and the interest in it appears to be as great as ever. At Hooley's Opera House several new performers will appear. At the American there will be an attractive entertainment of a miscellaneous character.

THE BASE BALL NUISANCE has at last brought forth some of its legitimate fruits. A few days ago the crowd of gamblers who always hover over a match game, like birds of prey over a carrion, fell upon the victorious players at Newark, and a number of persons were shock-

"When I bear a Southern man cry loyalty methinks I souff treason in the tainted gale. When I hear a Northern man cry loyalty me-thinks I hear the bugle blast of the robber

Just so. Loyalty in the South, to the supporters of the Tammany candidates, means treason of the most heinous sort. For the leaders of the Rebsllion and their nefarious crime of attempting to subvert the Government, there is now no word of reproach. naught but the most cordial greetings, the most lavish encomiums, the most abject servility. But as soon as a man breathes a pro fession of loyalty south of the Potomac and the Ohio, be he white or black, he is sum n arily branded as a traitor and hounded down by every conception of diatolical ingenuity. Even here in our very midst the situation is but little better. So long as modern Democracy chooses to be interpreted at the North by unrepentant Rebels, the word loyalty is made synonymous with downright rascality, and the party which saved the nation from destruction is openly arraigned for all the crimes in the pro-slavery calendar. Loyalty as a principle of merit has become extinct, to the Democratic mind. "Reverence and regard for the Union" are now the words, and Lee, Beauregard, Hampton and Forrest are "representative men" in their professions of devotion to the Government, by whose unwise leniency they are permitted to come and go in peace, with the most infamous and treasonable rantings falling from their lips. This is what comes from "making treason odious" after the Johnson system. Vote for Seymour and Blair. and you will strengthen the cause which, supposed to be a lost one, yet retains sufficient vitality to proclaim in a Northern city that loyalty at the South is treason and at the North highway robbery !

THE TERRIBLE KARTHQUAKE on the Pacific coast of South America, of which we present a full account to-day, was perhaps the most disastrous of modern times. The number of lives lost is estimated at 32,000,000. The earthquake which laid the city of Lisbon in ruins on the first of November, 1775, engulfed not less than 60,000 human beings in six minutes; Lut, fortunately, its disastrous effects were confined in the main to one locality, while that of the 13th of August extended along almost the entire coast of South America, and we fear we have not yet heard the whole of its results. It is estimated that the destruction of property will reach $300,000,000, a fearful index of the wide-spread rain which prevails. What with convulsions of the earth and commotions of the people, South America presents just at present not a very desirable locality for either a permanent residence or a tempo rary sojourn.

We hope that the new plays which Mrs. Draw contemplates putting on the stage will be varied occasionally by old-established favorites. and it would be a rare pleasure if we could have a series of standard comedy performances at the Arch during the present season, Mrs. Drew
