The cold snap which caused us all to shiver from our dusters during the week past was but the precursor of the stormy equinoctial, and our wise ones knew it well. With the departure of these annually recurring autumnal storms the last bloom and blush of sum-mer vanish, the whispering zephyrs of early fall give their final tune amid the leaves, the mercury swells once more to eighty degrees, and then goes down. Tree, bush, and sward will now don brilliant garments of many colors, the bosom of the ground will harden, the pleasant waters of the puriog streams will grow chill, the bees will retreat to their honeyed hives, and the merry little choristers of the forest will warble their good bye. The sweating labors of the farmer are over. The apple trees bend yet awhile with weighty fruit, then drop it, and winter is here. Little chaps who skate, how-

HEARINGS BEFORE UNITED STATES COMMIS-Sionen.—At noon its-day, before United States Commissioners Hibler and Phillips, a cross charge was heard by the two gentlemes sitting together. The captain of the brig Waverly, Jeeph K. Ferry, had brought a charge of mutiny against his second mate, Henry Arthur, and the mate had also brought a charge of unusual and barbarous treatment against the captain. The case against the mate was first heard:—

John Turner testified that he was first mate of the brig at the time of the occurrence; on the day in question the captain came to my room, bringing a saw with him, saying "the second mate has spoiled it, what is best to do with it? I will turn him forward, and he shall be second mate no longer; he is not fit to be second mate, and I will keep his watch myself;" I said that "it was not worth making a bother about—make him pay for it if he spoiled it." The captain then ordered the second mate to go forward and do duty as a seaman; Arthur refused to do it; the captain then directed me to get irons to put upon the second mate, that he had disobeyed orders; I came on deck and Arthur was then cursing at the captain; I told him not to make a fool of himself, but wait until he got into harbor; Arthur replied that the captain was making a fool of him and he would be — if he stood it; that he would find out what the Captain was made of; by the Captain's orders I told Arthur to do duty in my watch; he said he would as soon as he got his supper; about half an hour afterwards, Arthur came on deck and went to work; at night, when all hands were ordered to shoglen sail, Arthur refused to turn out, saying to me that he had the rheumatism; I reported his answer to the Captain, who then went to Arthur's room, and asked him "What is the matter?" Arthur replied, "Go away from there and shut the door;"the Captain repeated his command for Arthur to turn out, when the latter said, "Go away from there, will you!" and jumped out of his berth and shut the door; when the Captain told him in the morning that he must be put in irons, he said that he would not allow them to be put on him; the Captain then took hold of his wrists, when Arthur made two or three kicks at him; the irons were then handed to me, when Arthur said to the Captain, "I'll let him put the irons on me, but not you;" the Captain then ordered him between decks, when Arthur asked me what he had better, do, I told him to do as he was ordered; he was then put between decks; this was in the morning, and he was kept there until the following afternoon.

David Bryant, the steward of the vessel, testified that the mate did not refuse to go forward when ordered to do so by the captain at the time of the altercation. The remainder of his testimony corroborated that already given. Case held under advisement until to-morrow at 12 M. The case against the captain was next heard. The second mate took the stand, and detailed the circumstances of his first altercation with the captain:—I was sharoening a saw, when the captain came up and said that I was not sharocsptais came up and said that I was not sharp-ening it right; I replied that I was; he answered that I was not, and that it I gave him any more insolence he would put me in irons; I said that he might do it; he then went away, but after-wards came back and told me to go into the other watch; on the day when I was put in irons he came to my room and tried to aggravate me into doing something by which he could hold me.

The mate then went over the circumstances

DISASTER.

Fearful Explosion and Fire in Jersey City.

The New York Tribune, of this morning, records the following:-

The oil refinery of Messrs. Richard, Sons & Verplanck, situated in South Eighth street, near Prospect street, Jersey City, was totally destroyed yesterday by the explosion of a quantity of gas which had escaped from the naptha still located in the main building. To this ensued a fire, which destroyed all that part of the building of the street o ing not affected by the explosion. The refinery contained about 2000 barrels of oil, in various stages of preperation, which was all destroyed. The engineer, Joseph Leisenberger, escaped to the street uninjured, but after the second explosion he went back to open the valves of the boiler to guard against its blowing up, and while thus engaged the third explosion occurred the was caught in the debris of the building and burned to death. After a long search he was found lying on his back, not a stitch of clothing about him, his flesh and bones burned to a crisp, and his legs and arms drawn up and contracted, presenting a fearful sight. Among the most seriously injured of the sufferers yet surviving is August Beitto, one of the yard men; his legs, body, arms, and head are covered with blisters. and the poor fellow was not expected to survive until merning. He has a wife and one child living at West Hoboken. Henry Udhea, one of the stillmen, was also dangerously burned in the face and on the right arm, and was conveyed to his home at No. 156 Morgau street, where he has a wife, but no children. Theodore Hildebrand, the foreman of the refinery, was also burned about the face and both arms, and was also conveyed to No. 156 Morgan street, where he has a wife and two children. Some of the burning debris and oil was blown across the cove, and set fire to Warner & Cats-callen's stable, in the rear of a small tenement, which was destroyed. Loss, $500. The relinery was owned by Robert Verplanck, a resident of Jersey City, together with Messre. Benjamin Richards & Son, of No. 46 South street, New

The total loss will probably reach from $30,000 to $40,000, upon which there is a partial insurance. The foreman, Hidebrand, was burned at a fire on the same premises last winter.

COURT OF QUARTER SESSIONS—Allison P. J.—William H. Ruadiman, Prosecuting attorney.—The morning sessies was taken up by the trial of a ball case that has been long pending in this Court, and which was formally placed before the jury just before adjournment yesterday, in order to give it p ecclence ever any other cause to day. It was that of the C. m. monwealth vs. John W. Thackers, the indictment charging the isrceup as ballee of certain shares of stock in the Eagle Mining Com, any of Colorado, belonging to Thomas N. Subers. The matter was heard some months past upon a writt of habeas corpus brought for Mr. Thackers's dischars, at which time we gave the testimony in detail. The allegations on the part of the prosecution were the following:—In March, 1865, Mr. Subers, brother to Mr. Thackers's wife, entered into the employ of this company as wagon master, and purchased in August ten shares of st.ck, fulfilling a condition imposed by the company on all who became their employer, for which he gave his promisory note to Mr. Thackers, who was a director, and then acting a superintendent of the company. This note was to bear interest at 10 per cent, the legal rate of Colorado. For his outfit he also gave his due-buil, which was soon afterwards paid. On the night of the twenty-eighth of November following he met Mr. Thackers in Europic City, and paid the promisory note to him the principal being $20 — 120 per share, and 10 per cent interest, though but three months of the year had ruo, the whole amounting to $20. At the same time he took an account of salary then coming to nim. Mr. Thackers and so nim. Thackers for sale keeping. On the first of December the started with one of the Company's trains for Colorado. The started with one of the Company's trains paid. and another for $2000, upon which payment was reined. In consequence of the failure of this latter draft, the train was seized at Colorado City and sold by the sheriff in Merch, 1887, he came to Philadelphia and demanded his stock from Mr. Thackers, and was told by that gentleman that he had transferred it to Mrs. Thackers in o detthat it might be secure, but would be returned to him in a few days. But he never received it, and upon investigating the matter he discovered that Mr. Thackers, failed y representing that he acted under nower of attorney for him, had transferred it to Mrs. Thackers for his ewn purposes.

The defense, at the close of our report, had not been opened.

The Riot at New Orleans—One Negro

New ORLEANS, Sept. 23 .- The trouble last night originated from a man on the sidewalk shouting for Seymour and Blair as the rear of the Republican procession passed shouting for Grant and Colfax. The negroes in the procession are said to have rushed at the Democratic shouter, who took refuge in the confectionery at the corner of Canal and Bourbon streets. The attendants commenced closing the doors, when the negroes demolished the glass windows and the doors. Indiscriminate firing then commenced, when the negroes ran, but re' turned, when they became involved in a row with a portion of a white Democratic Club, and several of the latter were hurt. The white club were unarmed, except with their torches. The negroes spread through the Second District, demolishing the windows of the confeetlonery at the corner of Rampart and St. Peter streets, which they also attempted to set fire to. The building was saved by the timely arrival of the policemen. One negro was killed, and, as far as ascertained, a number of both colors were wounded. It is stated that several policemenwere slightly hurt. There is but little unusual excitement this morning.

THE SURRATT TRIAL.

A Plea that He Was Included in the Amnesty Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 .- In the Criminal Court this morning Mr. Merrick continued his argument, contending that Surratt was within the scope of the President's Amnesty, and not one of the exceptions mentioned in said proclamation. Mr. Biddle, for the Government, held that by the act of 19th of January, 1867, repealing the authority of the President to grant general amnesty, Congress only had power to make such pardons, and questioned whether the President, under the Constitution, possessed unlimited power to issue a general amnesty. He also contended that Surratt in no way came within the scope of the meaning of the proclamation, and that he is one of the persons excepted from its provisions, both by person and by designation of the offense charged against him.

The New Rebellion-A Party of Regulators Attack the Negroes, and are Repulsed with Loss.

pecial Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. LOUISVILLE, Eept. 23. - A gentleman who arrived in the city last evening from Sanford reports that about fifty men had banded together in the county of Pulaski, in this Statefor the purpose of punishing a white man and a negro who are reported to have been the leaders] in the numerous outrages recenticommitted in that section. But by some means the white man and negro became aware of the intention of 5the Regulators, and upon gaining the information they immediately called together one hundred of their friends, and being well armed waited in ambush for their expected visitors, and as the Regulators approached the house of the white man they were met with a volley from the concealed party, killing one of their number and seriously wounding three others. The greatest excitement prevails in that region, as the Regulators were so exasperated by the killing of their comrade, that it is feared all of the suspected party will be killed in retaliation.

Paris, Sept. 23 .- Madrid is reported quiet. Estrada is appointed Minister of Marine.

The rebels are everywhere proclaiming Espartero President.

London, Sept. 23 .- The Times has a letter from Paris containing the following:-

General Prim started from Paris and met the Generals exiled by the Spanish Government at Cadiz. At Cadiz Commodore Malcampo, of the Spanish iron-clad Zaragoza, who had declared for the insurgents, brought his guns to bear on the barracks and compelled the royal troops to surrender the city. Having pronounced for the revolution, each general sailed to prearranged points on the coast, where each raised the standard of revolution, and set the movement on foot in his appointed theatre of operations.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. The Case of Mr. O'Neill.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 .- Mr. John P. O'Neil . calling himself the United States District Attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. arrived here this morning, to consult Attorney-General Evarts upon the anomalous condition of affairs in Philadelphia, resulting from Judge Cadwalader's refusal to acknowledge him. Mr. Evarts left this city last evening for New York, so O'Neill laid his case before Acting Attorney-General Ashton. The Sub-Committee on Retrenchment

had before it this morning Assistant Attorney-General Ashton, to state what were the instructions issued to Mr. Courtney in the New York investigation in which Binckley so immortalized himself. No official report from the military authorities in Georgia concerning

The Camilla Massacre has yet been received at the War Department or Grant's Headquarters. Spanish Commercial Regulations.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.-Information has been received at the Treasury, through the State Department, that a royal Spanish edict was issued July 31, 1868, extending the period for the admission of foreign breadstuffs into the Spanish peninsula and the adjacent islands until July 1, 1869.

The President

ordered his carriage to-day, and rode out to the State Department, where he had a long interview with Mr. Seward. This circumstance caused much comment, from the fact that Mr. Seward declared for Grant at the Cabinet meeting yesterday, and it was re-ported to-day that he had offered his resignation to the President, in case he desired it. Mr. Seward is shrewd, and wants to desert the sinking ship of Democracy. It is understood that Mr. Johnson is desirous of concillating him, and sought a private interviow with him with that object.

The matter of Bogus one dollar greenbacks, gotten up by the Democrats, which are circulating throughout Pennsylvania and the West, has been referred to Solicitor Jordan, of the Treasury Department, for an opinion as to their illegal character. It is asserted that they are clearly unlawful, and that all who circulate or traffic in them in any way are liable to heavy penalties and imprisonment. Congressional Nomination.
