Slander Refuted.

THERE is a Democratic sheet known as the Age. Our readers are probably not familiar with its pages, even if its name be known to them. We would not intrude it upon their attention at present, were it not for the fact that the slanderous article for which the New York World yesterday held us responsible has found its way into the columns of the Age. Although we explicitly stated yesterday afternoon that no such language concerning Gaueral Tyndale had ever appeared in our columns, the Age follows the lead of the World, and maliciously insists that we are the originator of the slander. The Age knows that there is no truth in this assertion; it also knows the name of the petty sheet in which the slander first appeared. But it is desirens of putting a responsible name to a downright fabrication, and then of launching it upon the sea of politics, hoping thus to be able to inflict serious injury upon the character and prospects of General Tyndale. The device is one of the meanest to which the Democratic party of this city have been obliged to resort in order to make a respectable fight for retaining the ground which they were permitted to occupy a year ago through the apathy of the Republican party. Coffee-grounds, slander, and falsehood go well together, and are fitting instruments in the hands of the Hampton-Democracy for advancing the interests of Seymour and Blair. But we expect to see them discomfited despite all such reprehensible expedients.

The slander to which the Age gives currency under such dishonorable circumstances rans as follows:-

"Some time sincs, in the presence of some company in Mr. Tyndale's own parior, atten-tion was directed to a likeness of John Brown which graced the walls In the course of con-versation General Tyndale emphatically re-marked:--'That man', pointing to John Brown's picture, 'was a better man than Jesus Christ' As some of our radical friends have denied this charge, and others will doubtless do the same, we now openly declare our ability to prove its we now openly declare our ability to prove its truthfulness beyond the possibility of discute, and call upon Mr. Tyndale to answer it, yes

We are prepared and authorized to meet it. By General Tyndale's direct authority, we say that it is a lie from beginning to end. No such words ever fell from his lips, and no portrait of John Brown has ever "graced the walls" of his parlor, or of any other room or apartment in his house. Are the World, and the Age, and the author of the slander satisfied with the refutation ?

THAT very "white" Boy in Blue, yclept John A. McClernand, whose military record presents a continued series of failures, was at one time not quite so deeply imbued with the principles of the Hampton-Democracy as he is at present. He declared, in a very londmouthed fashion, with a slight touch of blasphemy in his words, that the leaders of the Rebellion "have been guilty of the most stupendous crime perpetrated since the crucifixion of our Saviour." But the gallant General was led to take a different view of their monstrous offense by the manner in which they received him on the field of battle. The soldiers who could put McClernand to rout could not be other than saints of the first water, redolent with the odor of holiness. Hence, as soon as the smoke of the conflict is cleared away, and McClernand is permitted to see just where he stands, he hastens to join the ranks of the men whom he so vilely slandered. Having never achieved a victory on the field of battle, he takes a different view of the crime of rebellion, regards the war as a failure, believes negro slavery to be a divine institution, favors the repudiation of the national debt, prates volubly about the beauties of a white man's government, and goes for Seymour and Blair with all the littleness of soul of which he is possessed. As a "white" Boy in Blue he is anexceptionably a model.

If Mr. Seymour should be thus cheated out of [his election, the act would be a signal for the renewal of our civil strife, and the standing motto of our leader is-"Let us have peace !"

GENERAL WILLIAM C. WICKHAM, one of the Confederate leaders, repudiates in toto the Hampton-Democracy, and declares himself for Grant and Colfax. He declares his position in the following sensible language:-

"The election of Grant and Colfax I regard as the only means of bringing back prosperity to the Southern States, by giving us a speedy and definite solution of all the difficult questions definite solution of all the difficult questions that now embarrass us; while, on the other hand, I think the election of Seymour and Blair would, by upsetting all that has been already settled by the Reconstruction scis, and by giv-ing new hope to the disunion party, which 'is not dead, but sleepeth,' bring upon us fresh dis-quietude, and, by keeping alive issues of race and section, involve us in further disasters."

General Wickham is a true friend of the South. He appreciates fully the gravity of the situation, recognizes the fact that disaster and ruin are as certain to follow the election of Seymour and Blair as darkness the setting of the sun, believes that the election of Grant is the only road to peace, union, and prosperity; and hence, like a gallant soldier fairly beaten in a square and open fight, is willing and anxious to put aside the past, and to contribute all in his power towards the pacification of the country at large and the happiness and welfare of his own people in particular. In this he shows himself to be as wise a man and as true a patriot as Longstreet, and a better friend to the South than the whole array of Blairs, Beauregards, Hancocks, Forrests, McClernands, and Hamptons combined.

JOHN H. SURRATT was at last turned loose upon the world again yesterday afternoon by Judge Wylie, of the Criminal Court at Washington. This time his discharge is unconditional, and he is henceforth a free man, and can come and go without molestation, unless a new indictment should be found against him. This termination to the almost interminable prosecution of the last of the assassination conspirators is quite as satisfactory as we could expect, and in all probability the most auspicious that could be secured. He would never have been convicted by a Washington jury of any offense, unless that jury were a packed one. So it is better that he should be set at liberty without further attempts at bringing him to justice, although the new testimony which has been secured would doubtless have removed the slightest technical difficulty in the way of conclusively establishing his guilt. Whatever a Washington jury of Rebel sympathizers may say to the contrary, Surratt goes out into the world branded with a participation in the most revolting crime of the century. More than this, his heartless desertion of his mother in the hour of her peril proclaims him the most degenerate of sons. Altogether, his punishment is sufficiently great, and justice fully vindicated.

MAINE has done nobly. The official returns of the vote at the recent State election are now nearly all in, and a Republican majority of 20,404 is shown beyond all Democratic cavil. This gives a Republican increase on the majority alone of nearly 9000. If Pennsylvanis will do half as well in October, the November election will be a mere matter of form. We hope the Democracy will not take the official returns from Maine too much to heart. They have persisted from the first in declaring that the Republican majority would not exceed 15,000. An addition of 5000 votes on a majority is quite as significant as would be the lengthening of a man's nose by an inch. THE HAPPY FAMILY .- The impolicy of supporting Seymour when he has no chance of an election has caused no small amount of quarrelling in the happy family at the White House. The black spirits and white, blue spirits and gray, who compose that heterogeneous body known as the Cabinet, got up a sort of dance, at its last meeting, around the political caldron. From all accounts it seems that Schofield and Schenck are pronounced in favor of Grant, that Welles and Randall are in favor of Seymour, that Evarts is not known as yet, but will probably favor Grant, and that the President is for the great Horatio. At any other time, and under any other Administration, such a difference would have caused a dissolution, but the mongrel elements which go to make up Johnsonianism cannot afford to separate until the quarter day on the 4th of March next.

case which led L'Opinion Nationale to exclaim, "Thank God for this !" when it was announced by one of Napoleon's judicial tools, that the mere raising of the ory "Vive La Lanterne !" does not, according the latest revision of the Code Napoleon, constitute in itself an act o sedition. The liberal-minded journalists o Paris are so completely hemmed in on every hand that they are rendered profoundly thankful for the smallest sort of favors.

The Democratic Science of Deception. THE Democratic party bases its claims to the votes of the people on a tissue of misrepresentation, which in some cases goes so far as to amount to positive falsehood. It presumes on the ignorance of its followers, and they receive with immeasurable credulity all the fabulous statements made to them. In fact, they are excellently situated for just such deception. They are out off from the grand channel of communicating truth. Most of them are not in danger of being cursed as disciples of Faust, Few of the Democracy can read. It requires but the evidence of the senses to see it. In all branches of business the supply is gradated exactly by the demand. In Philadelphia there are eight Republican dailtes to two Demooratic. With such a field as this, the Democracy do not hesitate to make facts suit theories, and to delude with the most barefaced boldness the adherents of their party. We propose to show that the deception is systematic, and that it is the great cardinal rule of action by which the opposition hope to carry the campaign.

First. On the financial condition of the country they seek to deceive .- The addresses published by Mr. Wallace, Chairman of the Committee on Coffee of that party, assert as facts figures which are deliberately false. The old proverb that figures cannot lie is shown to be an error. He tells his readers that the public debt has increased-we think he says one hundred and forty millions-since the close of the war; that the Freedmen's Bureau costs something fabulous, and that it is still increasing. Now, the official reports of the Secretary of the Treasury show a decrease of two hundred millions since the final suppression of the Rebellion. In this respect, therefore, the system of deception is practised.

Second. As to the laws of taxation .- You can read in any Democratic paper, or hear from any Democratic orator, the assertion that the bondholders escape from the payment of the five per cent. income tax; that the rich men who are receiving this Government tax in the shape of interest do not pay to the Government anything in their incomes. Now, this is wilfully and maliciously false. Every form of income, whether from Government loans or any other class of property or security is taxed, at five per cent. if it is between one thousand and five thousand, and ten per cent. if it exceeds five thousand dollars per annum. From this rule no one is exempt. Thus in a most glaring and evident manner is the science of deception attempted.

Third. In regard to the condition of the Southern States.-This is a most femilial means of deceit. The feeling existing between the two sections is such as to prevent any very general knowledge of the state of the South

THE New York World has conceived the brilliant idea that Seymour will be cheated out of his election. Referring to the unreconstructed and unrepresented States of Virginia, Mississippi, and Texas, the World is anxious to know whether their votes, which will not be received at all events, are to be counted in making up the total of the Electoral College. If they are to be so counted, the total will be 317, requiring 159 to elect; if they are not so counted, the total will be but 294, and only 148 will be necessary to achoice by the people. Now the World is quite well assured that, if General Grant receives 148 votes and no more. the question will not be raised, and he will be duly declared elected by the Rump Carpet-Bag Congress. But the World is greatly troubled lest Seymour should receive precisely 148 votes, in which event has discovered that Congress will deslare 159 necessary to a choice, and thus throw the election into the House of Representatives. The World is getting itself into hot water without cause. Horatio Seymour does not stand the ghost of a chance of receiving 148 votes. If he obtains one-third of that number, Democracy will achieve as decided a triumph as it did in Maine, and will doubtless be in a very amiable mood. But if Seymour should receive 148, and no more, no same man believes that he will not be duly declared elected. The Republican party is the party of justice-of "moral ideas," as the World delights to say-and will not at this late day be guilty of repudiating its glorious record.

THE DEMOCRACY have been shouting over Colorado, but they failed to wait until they were out of the woods. The complete returns are now in, and the Republican candidate for delegate to Congress is elected by a majority of 79-not very large, but decidedly better than the election of his opponent. The gains in Colorado seem to resemble those of Maine.

THE ASSESSORS meet on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday of next week to make up the extra assessment list. Every citizen should personally see that his name is not omitted. A tax of fifty cents must have been paid within two years.

THANKFUL FOR SMALL FAVORS .- Not long since quite a serious disturbance arose in the Boulevard St. Michel, Paris. The police made arrests, as a matter of course, and the affair came before a tribunal, which, in deciding the case, declared that the cry of "Vive La Lanterne !" is not an act of sedition. This was altogether unexpected, for the Government has found in M. Rochefort such a formidable antagonist, and in his sarcastic effusions so much of a character which threatens the stability of the Empire, that it has been forced to resert to the most extreme measures against him. With a heavy fine and a long imprisonment hanging over him, he has been obliged to take refuge in Brussels, where La Lanterne is still issued, and whence it contrives to find its way by thousands into the French capital, despite the vigilance of the police and the surveillance of the mails. It was this view of the actual observation. Therefore the bv romancers of the Democracy give us wonderful accounts of the haloyon times in the late Rebel territory. There is, if we can believe them, a state of fraternal regard existing between the late slaves and their late masters. True, there is every now and then some awkward evidence to overcome. 150 negroes are killed in a single month, and this must be explained away. To do this a bold game is attempted. The White Sulphur Springs and its comedy of a convention is the result. By a gigantic and systematized effort is the real condition of the Southern States sought to be concealed from the people of the North. The Democracy fear the result if the truth should be known. The warm heart of the Northern yeoman would soon be beating in unison with the oppressed Unionists, and a majority such as would annihilate the party be the result. They both falsify facts and originate statements. To an art have they reduced the plan of turning real events into an entirely different channel of deductions than is allowed by logic. They appreciate the truth of Tennyson's lines:-"A lie that is part the truth is ever the blackest outright. But a lie that is part the truth is a harder matter to fight.

A lie that is all a lie can be met and fought with

It has been, however, an idle task, this seeking to deceive the people. Popular intelligence is too wide-spread. Popular knowledge is too much extended to make a universal deception possible in this age and country. The falsehood, if not self-detecting, is soon ferreted out, and is soon nailed. The great body of the Northern masses read facts through the filmy curtain of misconstruction. They see the iact that hundreds of negroes are killed even if there be peace at the South. They see the fact that the printed income returns do not exempt Government bonds. They see the fact that the debt and the taxes have been decreased, and they care not what unfair inferences the Democracy may draw. By a majority, we predict, that will settle all hopes in the future of successful deceit, the people will evince their opposition to the party which, building itself on popular ignorance, is pressing one step too far on popular credulity.

DOWN WITH THE LEAVES.

The leaves are loosening from the trees. And gently down are tumbling, We hear the chilly aniumn breeze A mong the forest rumbling. The shivery equinortial storm Like distant thunder's mumbling, And folks who like to have it warm. Because of cold are grumbling. The leaves that linger on the trees

Are turning red and sellow: The pears and apples, if you please, Are getting ripe and mellow. We're singing pleasant autumn tunes, Of host, and o' umbrellas, Of sutum coats, and pentaloons, To comfort clever fellows,

Unlike the falling autumn leaves,

We try to move on, steady, To where each thinking man believes He'li find Fall Garmen's ready. Or if we'd have them made, so neat,

According to our measure, ROCK HILL & WILSON, Chesnut strest, Will fit us out with pleasure, The trees are getting their clothes off, but we need be getting ours on, for the Fall and Winter,

Let us get on THOSE ELEGANT CHINCHILLAS, THOSE MAGNIFICENT PIQUES, THOSE ENDURING REAVER CLOTHS.
