MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1868.

How Sworn Officers do their Duty. Every now and then the curtain of political mystery is lifted, and the honest, simplehearted public obtain a glance of how things are done behind the scenes. We hear a great deal about fraudulent naturalization-about the ease with which the foreigners recently arrived on our shores are enabled to obtain a vote. But as to how this result is accomplished, we, in common with thousands of our citizens, are almost entirely ignorant. When the law is read, and the numerous precautions which are thrown around the process of naturalization are considered, we can but wouder at the means resorted to to defraud the people. On Saturday the public were allowed a glance behind, and the manner in which the Demooracy manage things was made clear. A more vile and systematic arrangement for defrauding the citizens of Philadelphia would be difficult to conceive.

The Supreme Court, through its Prothonotary, Mr. J. Ross Snowden, has the power of granting naturalization papers to foreigners. Before this can be done the applicant must be sworn, and a voter produced who will vouch under oath for the truth of the applicant's statements. When this is done the papers are signed by the Prothonotary, and given to the new citizen. Of course, the power which Mr. Snowden possesses is a great one, the duty is clearly marked, and in its exercise the ntmost vigilance and strictest adherence to rule are required, as both a moral and legal obligation. Now we do not hesitate to say, after the revelations of Saturday, that the manner in which the important process of naturalization is conducted is net only careless in the extreme, but criminally wrong. Let us state how the case stands. By an accident-i there is such a thing as an accidentit came to the cars of certain Re_ publican gentlemen that a German named Leckfeldt and a number of other low characters had been swearing as vouchers for foreigners about whom they know nothing. These scoundrels were arrested. A list of fourteen names was found on one of them, seven of whom had had papers made out. The evidence showed that a wholesale system of fraudulent papers had been inaugurated. Let us look at it. One witness, named Huninger,

"I was in the Rebel army from 1862 to 186 Schnitzet asked me how long I had been in the country, and I told him; he asked me if I had my citizen paper; I said no, and he said I could get it without much cost; we went to Nos. 495 and 497 N. Third street, to a Democratic commit-tee; he put his name to a paper and paid tea cents, and got a ticket; we then came to the Court; Schnitzel also swore for George Meinich he said taking an oath was nothing; at Leckfeldt's he said:—"I can swear fifty times for glass of beer."

Another, named Mollock, swore:-

"I am forty-two years old; have been at Leck feldt's for fourteen days; I came there from New York; a man named Snyder swore that I resided here one year immediately before I made the application; I never saw him before, nor have I

This is evidence of how the perjury was done. Is it not natural to ask if a proper performance of duty on the part of the Democrat who is Prothonotary, and the Democrats who are clerks in his office, could not have put some sort of check on this sort of fraud? Do we find them, when the crime is detected, doing what they can to secure its punishment? Let their evidence speak.

"Colonel J. Ross Snowden was examined, but he did not recognize any of the men. His duty was to attach his name to the papers when brought to him by the tipstaves of the Court, and he ad nit-ted that his name might possibly be attached to some of them without their having been sworn to. some of them without their having been sworn to. He also stated that the tipstaves were naturalizing persons while he was then in the Alderman's office, but qualified the statement by saying there was a Judge on the bench.

"Thomas B. Worrall sworn—I am orier of the Supreme Court; I or Mr. Schell swear the petitioners and vouchers, but do not mark the papers to that we can recognize them; I have administered in the wast ten days from two to four thousand oaths."

Under the circumstances of the case, we would like to know what protection there is afforded against fraudulent naturalization to the most unlimited extent? Mr. Saowden confesses that he delegates the high authority vested in him to the irresponsible office of crier and tipstave, and that it is not impossible that his signature might be affixed to papers without any oath having been administered at all. This condition of affairs is frightful. It is a premium on fraud. It is opening wide the door for perjury and crime. It is necessary for the safety of the people of this Commonwealth that this mode of procedure be stopped, and, if it is no', that the officials who thus neglect their duty be punished by removal from office. Mr. Snowden is acting with a negligence which is criminal, and we are astonished beyond measure that a gentleman of his standing should so far forget what is due to his oath of office. We hope that taken to stop this course of wholesale oaths. of attesting affidavits by the pound of paper, without the officer knowing what he is signing. It is a disgrace to those engaged in it, and a crime against the honest and qualified voters of Philadelphia. THE GERMANS have a phrase, "Krieg in Krieg," or War in War, but the Democratio party may well boast of the ingenuity it has shown in variations upon the same theme. It can freely claim the invention of the two mottoes-Peace in War and War to Peace.

The selection of candidates seems to have been made to suit, for its proposed President has shown himself the advocate of "Peace in War," zealously preaching "War in Peace."

and the proposed Vice-President has been immediate and summary measures will be

patent to all their leaders that from the first they have not gainsaid it. But they are laboring under a difficulty in this connection which would intimidate any man who had not espoused a cause utterly desperate. The platform adopted at the Tammany Convention on the 7th of July last ignored the fruits of the war. It was, to all intents and purposes, a mere reiteration of the Chicago platform of 1864, in which the war was emphatically pronounced a failure. On that platform, and with George B. McClellan for a candidate, the Democracy appealed to the people and to the army. Decided as was the rebuke then ad ministered to them by the people at large, the almost unanimous repudiation which they received at the hands of the loyal soldier, demonstrated the faithfulness of the army, and the utter futility of placing upon it any reliance for support thereafter on a platform of this character. Being unable to meet the Chicago platform of 1868 by any half-way issue; comprehending fully the fact that, if two candidates avowing essentially the same prin ciples should go before the people, the one who became the standard-bearer of the party which preserved the Union would be certain of securing the support of the loyal North in preference to the one allied to the party of obstruction; it appeared necessary and expedient to the Democratic leaders that they should join issue with the Republican platform in a square and open way. Hence they come before the people in the present contest on a platform which ignores the fruits of the war for the Union; which practically declares it to have been a failure; which pronounces the Congressional policy of reconstruction "unconstitutional, revolutionary, and void;" and which repudiates the just and lawfully incurred obligations of the Government. This platform was dictated by the unrepentant Rebels, headed by Wade Hampton, who held seats in the Convention; it was framed with the express view of receiving the support of the Confederate soldiers; it could anticipate no countenance whatever from the army of the Union, save from such members of it as were willing to repudiate their record and to march arm-in-arm with the men whose hands are still reeking with the blood of their com, rades, in a new crusade against the integrity of the nation and the cause of liberty, justice,

"Boys in Blue."

Placed on this platform, the Democratic journals and orators have systematically, from the opening of the campaign, heaped upon the General of the Army and his followers the most unstinted and slanderous abuse. The men who fought and bled in behalf of the loyal cause have been denounced in the most unmeasured terms. They have been taunted with their devotion to justice, liberty, and equality; they have been pursued with all the resources of opprobrium at the command of their detractors; they have been arraigned for the crime of high treason against the nation, because they would not forget and forego the past, and join hand-in-hand with their late antagonists upon the field of battle, in the attempt of the latter to regain possession and control of the Government which they essayed in vain to destroy.

In this bitter crusade it has been reserved for the Democracy of Pennsylvania to take the lead, and in downright vindictiveness and maliciousness to distance all competitors. In proof of this we have only to reproduce the fellowing despicable document, which, in accordance with the request at the end, is being given currency by the Democratic journals of the State and country:-

"Caution to the Democrats of this and adjoining State:—A so-called Soldiers' Convention is to be held in this city, under the auspices of the radical party, on the 1st and 2d of October. The additional assessment of voters is to be made on the same days. From information in our possession, it is believed that the convention was appointed for that time with a view to bring here persons from other places falsely to bring here persons from other places, falsely pretending to be soldiers, and to assess and vote them in this city.

"Our friends in this and other States are earnestly requested to jurnish us, at the earliest every man leaving their respective localities to attend the convention, in order that he may be identified should it be attempted to register or rote him. The fraud contempted to register or vote him. The fraud contemplated may thus be prevented, and those who attempt to perpe-trate it brought to punishment. "WILLIAM A. WALLACE, "Chairman State Central Committee of Penna.

"Samuel J. Randall.,
"Chairman Joint Committee of Organization

for city of Philadelphia. "Democratic papers please copy."

The State Central Committee of the Soldiers and Sailors of Pennsylvania have promptly met this wretched appeal to passion and hate by the publication of an address, which will be found on another page of this paper. The issue has been squarely met and fairly refuted, and every intelligent voter should read and reflect upon the response. But this scathing rebuke will not be the only one which Mr. Wallace's vile slander will encounter. Philadelphia in the past has made an enviable record for hospitality and loyalty, which this week is destined to be cast into the back ground. The people of this city will welcome the loyal soldiers and sailors whom they have invited to their homes in a way that will put to shame the Hampton-Democracy of the State. This welcome will be unstinted in generosity and enthusiasm-a generous and enthusiastic outgoing of true and loyal hearts which have not yet permitted the past and its memories to slumber. Mr. Wallace, the anthor of the slander, stands before the people of the city and State convicted of the very crime which he seeks to fasten upon the men who cast aside all the endearing ties of home in behalf of the national safety, who bore the brunt of the battle, and reckoned their lives as naught in the scale. The resort to this device on the part of the Pennsylvania Democracy is but a part of the disreputable record which they have made during the past few months. It will serve but to add to the weight of approbrium under which they will sink into obtivion.

OBITUARY.

Robert P. King. Last evening there died in our city one of the biggest-hearted, most social, and honest citizens that Philadelphia possessed. Robert P. King, of the firm of King & Baird, breathed his last. To those who knew him, it almost idle to write a panegyric. He was a politician of the school of polities which were honorable. He mingled in the arena only to keep it pure. He held it the duty of the citizen to take his part in the details, and he wielded a commanding influence in his ward, and wielded it always in the cause of purity. He was a stern and devoted loyalist-Throughout all the war he was among the foremost and most consistent Republicans. Socially he was genial in the extreme, "Big-hearted" is the best adjective we can suggest. United with dozens of organizations, he mingled in them only to promote the good feeling and friendship which should characterize man and man. He was in every respect a model citi-Zen and a true friend. The numbers who lament his death attest how near he was to the hearts of those who knew him. Mr. King had been ill for about two weeks of typhoid fever, and it was thought at one time that he would recover, but yesterday morning he grew worse rapidly, and at 6 o'clock last evening he passed away from

Mr. King was born in Philadelphia on the 3d of April, 1815. He entered the china store of Messrs, Reed & Gray when he was thirteen years of age, and worked there for two years, when he was indentured to the printing businers. On the 5th of December he started pustness for himself, in connection with Mr. Alexander Baird, and the firm of King & Baird has been well known for the last thirty years Mr. King was at one time a staunch Whig, and when the Republican party was called into being he became a warm advocate of its principles. Mr. King interested himself much in political affairs. without ever being a seeker after office. In 1849 he was elected a member of the Board of Guardians of the Poor, and in 1854 he was elected to the same position for six years, under the Consolidation act. Two years of this term Mr. King acted as President of the Board. In 1860 Mr. King represented the Republican party as Presidential elector for the Second Congressional District, and in 1884 he represented the First Congressional District in the same capa-

In 1863 Councils elected him a member of the Bounty Fund Commission, and the Commissioners elected him President, Mr. King was an active Mason, and was Past Master of Frank. lin Lodge, No. 131, A. Y. Mr. King was a member of various other business, benevolent, and political organizations. In fact he was interested in all public matters. and as an active business man, a large-minded and liberal citizen, and a pleasant, genial gentleman, he will be much mourned by a large circle of trienes and acquaintances.

Robert W. Barnard.

Mr. Robert W. Barnard, Sr., died on Saturday afternoon, in the 69th year of his age, after an illness of one week. Mr. Barnard was a printer by trade, and for over thirty years he was con-nected with the Inquirer as roreman. In 1860 he became the senior partner in the firm of Barnard & Jones, in Minor street, and as such carried on the printing business for a number of years. He was subsequently appointed to a position in the Revenue service, which he held up to the time of his death. Mr. Barnard was one of the originators of the Philadelphia Typographical Society.

Charles II. Graffen.

It is with profound regret that we are compelled to announce the sudden demise of Mr Charles H. Graffen, for some time one of the attaches of the Sunday Mercury, who departed this life early this morning, at the residence of his parents, No. 537 Pine street. This intelligence will carry sorrow and a sense of desolation to many a heart, for his geniality of temper and social qualities had won for him many and steadfast friends. He had for many years been connected with the press of this city as correspondent and editorial assistant, and by the industry and ability he had manifested in his various and arduous labors had won a credi table reputation. For many years prior to the Rebellion the deceased was connected with the Sunday Dispatch, for which he contributed a column known as Religious Intelligence. At the breaking out of the war he was employed by the New York Herald as army correspondent, and remained as such until its close. On returning to the city, he identified himself with the Mercury, and continued the column of Religious Intelligence, but was more prominently known as the base-ball editor. He was about thirty-five years of age, and was one of the originators of the Press Club in this city.
