MUSICAL AND DRAMATIO.

"The Rivals" at the Arch. A perfect work of art or a perfectly acted play are things that experience forbids us ever to expect to see; and the most fastidious of connotsseurs must derive as large a portion of his pleasure from the exercise of his critical functions as from the contemplation of what is indisputably excellent in an artistic effort. When, however, we do meet with an approximation to perfection it is quite as well to go in for a hearty enjoyment of it as to quibble over the fine points and minor deficiencies. The representation of Sheridan's comedy of The Rivals last evening by the Arch Street Theatre company was about as near our ideal | is achieving. of a good play well acted as we think we are likely to see. As regards completeness and finish. it was much in advance of the performances of Monday and Tuesday evenings, and the slight deficiency in harmony between the different characters which we noticed on these occasions was not apparent last night, but the whole five acts were gone through with in the most animated and vivacious manner; and the audience was dismissed at the fall of the curtain in a smiling condition, and with a sense of satisfaction at having witnessed a thoroughly good performance, unmarred by blunders, mishaps, awkwardness, or incompetency. The different characters were remarkably well represented from first to last; and where all are entitled to credit it is unnecessary for us to go into details, so we merely give the cast, as follows: -"Lydia Languish," Mrs. Drew; "Captain Absolute," Mr. Barton Hill; "Sir Anthony Absolute," Mr. Mackay; "Bob Acres," Mr. Craig; "Faulkland," Mr. Everly; "Sir Lucius O'Trigger," Mr. James; "David," Mr. Hemple; "Fag," Mr. Meagher: "Mrs. Maloprop," Mrs. Thayer; "Julia," Miss Lizzie P.ice. Mr. Craig's "Bob Acres" agreeably disappointed us, for we scarcely thought that he was equal to the task of rendering the part in such a manner as to merit decided commendation. We will have to retract a little of our yesterday's opinion about Mr. Craig's abiiities as a genuine comedian, for his acting last evening in the part of "Bob Acres" was intelligent, careful, and, with the exception of a few antics, which were rather out of the line of legitimate comedy, there was no attempt to overdo the matter, and the error, if he erred at all, was on the right side. Mr. Craig's personation of "Fighting Bob," the gentleman who kept a private graveyard, and who killed a man each week, lacked the unctuousness of humor which good points of its own to recommend it nevertheless. In the duel scene, the mortal terror of "Acres" had an air of reality about it, which, however ludicrous it might be to a mere lookeron, was anything but a laughing matter to the hero of the adventure himself. The difference in Mr. Craig's performance last night and on the night previous was just the difference ba tween good and bad acting, or between a careless effort and a conscientious attempt to win applause by striving to deserve it. If Mr. Craig does as well at all times as he did last evening

Mr. Clarke infuses into the part; but it had and if he refuses to allow himself to be influ enced by the flattery of indiscreet friends, he will advance even more rapidly than he has hitherto towards the position in his profession to which we presume that he aspires, and we shall be among the first to give him credit when he really does a good thing.

Mr. James' personation of "Sir Lucius O'Trigger" would have been improved by a little more richness in the brogne, but this gentleman acted much better than he usually does, and he is critical to praise accordingly.

COLONIZATION. Soldiers and Sailors!

A Stupendous Scheme of Baltimore Rebels Unearthed-How Pennsylvania is to be Carried by the Democracy, and the Election of Seymour Secured.

Etc., Etc., Etc., Etc., Etc., Etc.

FROM BALTIMORE.

A Democratic Scheme to Colonize Voters in ; Philadelphia - How Ballot-boxes are to be Stuffed-Political Movements.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. BALTIMORE, Oct. 1 .- This morning the Baltimore American exposes an adroit Democratic scheme to colonize Democratic voters in Philadelphia and other parts of Pennsylvania for the October and November elections.

A prominent Democratic worker, who is au employe of the State, and is also one of Governor Swann's aid-de-camps, attempted yester day to purchase one hundred of the reduced fare tickets which have been issued by the Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Rail, road Company, for the approaching soldiers and sailors' celebration in Philadelphia. In this attempt he was foiled, as he could show no authority for the purchase; and attempting to bribe the ticket agent into selling him these tickets, and failing, he ordered one hundred tickets at the full fare for Philadelphia. After obtaining them he left the office. It is said that two hundred Democrats were to leave Baltimore last night and to-day for Philadelphia, there to be assessed as residents, and vote the ticket on the 13th. The assessment offices will be closed in Philadelphia assessment offices will be closed in Philadelphia on Saturday, and the managers of the project probably supposed that among the thousands of people who will visit Philadelphia during to-day and to-morrow these two hundred would not be noticed, especially if they could slip them ever on soldiers' tickets. A meeting of prominent Democrats was held in Baltimore on Thursday evening last, at Rechabite Hall, for the purpose of raising money to be used in Philadelphia during the campaign. It is rumored that Governor Swann contributed five hundred dollars to the purpose. Those who remember the to the purpose. Those who remember the Gevernor's record of ballot-box stuffing in the past will not doubt the statement.

The William T. Walters of Baltimore who is published as offering to bet twenty thousand to five thousand dollars that Grant will be elected President is one of our most intelligent, prominent, and wealthy mer-chants. He has always been a straight-out and active Democrat, possessing great influence, and is now one of the City Finance Committee, with Franc's Newcomer, another wealthy, influential merebant, who, like Mr. Walters, oders to bet on Grant, and it is understood that both will vote for him. They are each of them large bondholders, and think these securities safest in Grant's keeping.

The steamer Baltimore, of the Bremen line.
sailed for Bremen this morning, full of freight Large numbers of Boys in Blue left here this morning to join the Philadelphia celebration.

The Republicans had large enthusiastic meet ings in several wards last night; they gain strength and numbers unprecedentelly. The Democra's at elections yesterday renominated most of the existing first branch City Council members.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A False Report.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. WASHINGTON, Oct. 1 .- There is no truth in the report telegraphed from here that A. M. Lewisof New York city, has been confirmed as Super visor of Revenue for that district. Commis. sioner Rollins nominated a Mr. Kirby for that position, which comination was rejected by Secretary McCulloch, since which time no new nomination was made by Rollins. This nomination is the only one rejected by Mr. McCulloch to date, all others remaining as they were when Rollins left.

Desputch to the Associated Press. Sickness of General Hancock, Washington, Oct. 1.—A letter has been re-ceived from Carondelet, Missouri, stating that Major-General Haucock has been confined to his bed three weeks, on account of the reopening of the wound he received at the battle of Gettysburg, and it will probably be a month before he will sufficiently recover to return to Washington.

Sound the bugle! Beat the drum! The soldiers are assembling! The veterans are on the march again, tramping to the City of Brotherly Love, crowned with their well-earned laureis of victory. Veterans in war—heroes in peace. And thus the grand Convention of the Boys in Blue of the United States is being ushered in.

The streets of our city have presented all day a most animated appearance. Nothing like the excitement has ever occurred here in the land, we may say, except that which was exhibited at the celebrated review of the armies at Washington at the close of the war. The delegations, exclusive of those that arrived yesterday, and who reported this morning, number about 5000 men, and have been assigned by General N. P. Chipman to the quarters designated below:— Sound the bugle! Beat the drum! The sol-

Delegations will continue to arrive until 10 o'clock to morrow morning, and officers have been detailed by General Owen for duty at the depots and steamboat landings, to direct them depots and steamboat landings, to direct them to their proper quarters.

The New York delegation, accompanied by Generals Sickles and Pleasonton, left New York at 11 o'clock, and arrived about 2 o'clock; and as we write "a few carpet-baggers from Massachusetts," a fine-looking body of men, dressed in blue capes and caps, with their carpet-bags in hand, "come to stay," are passing our office. The rear of the delegation is composed of a large number of United States officers, in uniform, etc., headed by a transparency, with the lines as above, and on its side a United States knapsack, with the words, "Our Carpet-bag."

Notabilities, Among the arrivals so far of distinguished men are ex-Governor Curtin, Governor Salomon, of Wisconsin; Lieutenant-Governor Claffin, of Massachusetts. Generals Sickles and Pleasonton, with the New York delegation this afternoon, and Ex-Governor Hawley, of Connecticut, will be here to night, together with the other distinguished men who have signified their intention of lending their pre-sence and influence to this great reunion of the scarred and war-worn heroes of the war.

Arrangements and Decorations. Preparations have been made at National Hall to feed 20,000 of the "Boys" daily. The hall itself is magnificently decorated with the national bunting, draped and gracefully festooned, twining in excellent taste around the galleries and walls; the accountements of war, the musket, the sabre, and the sword, relieving and adding new beauty to the ensemble. and adding new beauty to the ensemble.

The draping and adorning of the hall, as also of Independence Square, is under the direction of William H. Wright, Esq., of No. 1411 Chesnut street, and reflects great credit upon him.

The public buildings, stores, hotels, private houses, and shipping on the river all hang out the National panner on this day o rejoicing and welcome; even the atmosphere and weather, which is balmy and pleasant, seem also to join in the general welcome to the "Boys in Blue."

LATER.

THE GRAND RECEPTION. As we write, the grand reception of the heroes of the war for the Union is progressing in Independence Square, where the scene presented is one that will not soon be forgotten by those participating in it and witnessing it. The Square and its surroundings is one vast, surging sea of enthusiasm. The meeting of the veterans was called to order about 3 o'clock, by General Charles H. T. Collis, who thereupon introduced his Honor, Morton McMichael, the Mayor of the city. The Mayor then addressed the assemblage as fol-

Address of Welcome by the Mayor.

Soldiers and Sailors: Standing in the shadow of this venerable edifice, near to the consecrated Hall in which the foundations of our Republic were established, on the hallowed spot where the Declaration of Independence was first publicly proclaimed, and surrounded by these tokens of a vindicated nationality, I profier to you, in behalf of the loyal people of Philadelphia, who reverence and cherish the Union you manfully defended, an earnest and heartfelt welcome. That welcome has already been expressed in the booming cannon that announced your arrival; in the long processions of your former associates by whom you were conducted hither; in the jubilant strains of music that enlivened your progress; in the mute but eloquent emblems that sparkled with memorials of your merits; in the masses of sympathizing men and women that surged along the streets over which you passed; in the radiant smiles that were showered upon you, and in the loud-resonneding huzzas that still linger in your ears; and in comparison with these, any words I might utter would seem tame and spiritless. Happily, howayer, even apart from these enthusiastic demonstrations, words are not needed to assure you of the pleasure we feel in having you with us, or of the purpose we hold to give you hospitable reception and entertainment. Many of you have seen, and all of you have heard, that while the war of the rebellion lasted it was our privilege, in an unusual degree, to cheer the Boys in Blue on their march; to provide for them food and rest and helpful comforts; to solace them with tender attentions when sick, and when God willed that they should die here, away from the friends who loved them and the homes which they loved, to soothe their passage to the grave by gentle ministrations and affectionate solicitude. And now that the actual war has been succeeded by a war of ideas, recognizing, as we do, in the motives that lows:-Address of Welcome by the Mayor. istrations and affectionate solicitude. And now that the actual war has been succeeded by a war of ideas, recognizing, as we do, in the motives that have brought you the same patriotic impulses that then inspired you, and believing that the influence of your presence will largely aid in achieving a moral triumph not less important than the triumph that crowned your arms, we rejoice in your coming, and gladly render you thanks and courtesy and service.

Veterans: They who sought to dampen your energics and cripple your efforts in the field; they who denounced the holy war in which you were engaged as an impious aggression, and, in the period of its highest glories, pronounced it a failure; they who in the midst of your toils and sacrifices mocked at and reviled you as hirelings and ruffians; they who would have left you to starve in squalid prisons, and allowed your dead comrades to rot unburied where they fell, and withheld from their widows and orphans the means of a scanty subsistence; they now dare to charge that you "falsely pretend to be soldiers," and that the object of your visit is to perpetrate the worst political crime of which freemen can be guilty. Insolent audacity! Unparalleled effrontery! But I scorn to waste breath in repelling such a calumny. Let the universal acclaim with which you have been greeted, let the glowing testimonials of admiration and respect which have been this day paid to you; let the Governors and the ex-Governors of the loyal States who unite in this celebration; let the delegations of eminent civilians who have come from distant places to do you honor, and above all, let your own mutilated you honor, and above all, let your own mutilated forms and your own scarred visages and your own swelling besoms, in which the imperishable memories of suffering and success in the past are mingled with sentiments of just indignation in the present, and purposes of stern retribution in the future, be the all-sufficient answer.

Soldiers and Sallers: Speaking for a large majerity of my fellow-citizens, I say to you that, notwithstanding this base ascription, we regard your presence here as no less honorable to yourselves, no less ominous to the foe, than was your presence in those grand battles, by sea and by land, to whick your valor and the valor of those who wrought and won with you have given a world-wide and enduring renown. When the insane fury of rebellion attempted, by military force, to destroy the national government, you freely offered your lives for its protection; and now that the insane fury of the defeated rebels, stimulated and sustained by the odious incitements of northern allies, once more menaces its integrity, you are anxious to attest your determination to maintain it at any legitimate cost and at every necessary hazard.

It is well that this is so, it is well that the gallant menaces its integrity, you are anxious to attest your determination to maintain it at any legitimate cost and at every necessary hazard.

It is well that this is so; it is well that the gallant spirits who rushed to the front to rescue the nation when fire and sword were employed against it should again be among its most zealous defenders when false doctrines and evil teachings and revolutionary plottings threaten it with violent disturbance. And with such an array on the side of the right, who can doubt the issue of the conflict? As I gaze on this vast assemblage, composed as it is of the men who stormed Donelson, and scaled Lookout, and penetrated the thick jungles of the Wilderness, the men who marched with Sherman, and rode with Sheridan, and bled with Sickies, and conquered with Meado; the men who salled and fought with Dupont, and Farragut, and Porter, and Worden; the men who along the sinuous windings of the western rivers, and amid the rocky clefts and wooded ravines of the central mountains, and among the swampy hollows of the southern plains, performed prodigies of daring, and bore with fortitude and patience the pangs of hunger and the ravages of lever, I know that you bring with you the prestige of victory; and I am confident that, as the good and true of all pursuits, occupations and classes participate in your feelings and will join in your action, before the ides of November your great commander will be our chosen President. And when that thrice fortunate result shall have been attained, the peace for which you have struggled and the country yearns—a peace that will be followed by thrice fortunate result shall have been attained, the peace for which you have struggled and the country yearns—a peace that will be followed by harmony and prosperity in all sections of the land; a peace that will bind up the wounds and assuage the griefs of distracted communities; a peace that will secure to all who dwell upon our soil, of all climes, castes, creeds and complexions, absolute equality before the law—will be permanently settled, and this mighty Empire, compacted and perfected, knit together by indissoluble bonds, and stronger and wiser and better for the troubles through which it has passed, will start afresh on its magnificent except, and under the leadership of the hero-statesman, whose tried courage and approved judgment pre-eminently qualify him for the post, will press forward towards that foremost place among the Powers of the earth to which by its magnitude, its strength, its wealth, its intelligence, its resources, it is fairly entitled.

Again, Soldiers and Sailors, brave defenders and protectors of the flag that in your hands, though often torn, has never been tarnished, again and again and again and again, I bid you welcome.

General Henry A. Barnum, of New York was then introduced, and responded to the welcome in the following words:-Speech of General H. A. Barnum, of N. Y.

Mr. Mayor and People of Philadelphia: For the hundred thousand veterans of the war whom you to-day welcome to your farfemed city. I thank you for your kindly greeting. The name of your noble city is cherished by every "Boy in Blue" who survives the war, and your people are enshrined in their hearts. The loyal bands who hurried to the defense The loyal bands who hurried to the defense of the capital when treason first flashed its lurid light across the Southern sky, drank at your fountains, ate at your tables, and received your heartielt God-speed; and the last brouzed veteran of the war, returning to the home he had preserved, partook of your boundless hospitality.

had preserved, partook of your boundless hospitality.

We stand to-day in a sacred presence. Here were born our liberties, and the clangor of yonder bell proclaiming the liberty of America blen is in our memories with the echo of the guns of Gettysburg, maintaining that liberty.
It is fitting, then, that to-day we should gather here and join with you in the high resolve that the battle-born and battle saved liberty of our country shall pass to our children unimpaired.

Ay, more than this, let us realize that we are a privileged generation. To us has been given the opportunity to perfect the liberty which our fathers established. Already, by the grand victories of our armies, have we established the special of the control of blished the absolute safety of our Government from armed attack, whether from within or without. It remains for us to so entrement the liberties of our country by righteous and just constitutions and laws, that equal and complete freedom, justice, and civil rights shall prevail throughout the land; and if I know the temper of our grand old army; if I read aright your presence here, my comrades, you will never, never, NEVER cease your efforts until the absolute freedom which you enjoy here in Philadelphia is secured to every good citizen of the Republic, in every hamlet of the land, be he millionaire or common laborer, educated or ignorant, white or black.

We have passed the conflict of arms, but are blished the absolute safety of our Government mon laborer, educated or ignorant, white or black.

We have passed the conflict of arms, but are at the height of the battle of principles. But now meet the same foe in civil garb, and now meet the same foe in civil garb, and added to the keeps, army South is the Rebel army North. During the war the grows in Blue army North. During the war the grows in Blue army North. During the war the grows in Blue army North. During the war the grows in Blue army North. During the war the grows in Blue are joined. To-day every Copperhead North who hissed his hate at the very sight of a Boy in Blue marching to the front, the rioters of New York city, the hotel-burners, the St. Albans murderers, join with the unsubdued traitors South, and, constituting the so-called Democratic party, are forming their lines for November's battle, and forming for the grand attack on this combined enemy of peace and good government are the victorious Boys in Blue and their loyal allies. With poetic justice the leaders of these hosts are chosen. He whose very name is a synonym for all that opposed the war North commands the cohorts of treason, while the great captain who never knew defeat, and to whom armed rebellion laid down its arms, leads the hosts of freedom.

We have seen the Waterloo of armed rebellion. We have yet to see the St. Helens of the spirit of treason. And who doubts that one who sang while war raged the battle hymn—"Mine eyes have seen the coming of the Giory of the Lord,"

"Mine eyes have seen the coming of the Glory of the Lord," Shall see on November's day the death of the spirits of treason in the overwhelming defeat, the utter tout of our political foes! Gird on your armor, then, my comrades, for the fight; close up your ranks. The spirits of your 300,000 slain and starved comrades leok approvingly down upon you, and as you now again feel the magic elbow touch, remember the invocation of our martyr President, spoken on Gettysburg's field:—

"We here rightly resolve that these honored dead shall not have died in value; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth." Wolld-Be Fraudulent Voters Nipped.—
