Republican Mass Meeting.

A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held on Saturday night in front of the Union League House. The building was beautifully illuminated, and a magnificent display of fireworks was made, At eight o'clock Mr. W. H. Kern called the meeting to order, and proposed Gen. Charles M. Prevost as chairman. On taking the chair this gentle-

You have called on me to preside over this vast assemblage, and I thank you for your compliment. We are on the brink of an election, and we think and know we will carry the city on Tuesday next by an overwhelming majority. We have a number of gentlemen here to show you what has been and what remains to be done. I have the pleasure to introduce to you from their number Governor Gears.

General Geary stepped to the front amid great applause, and said: My friends and fellow-citizens: From the begin-My friends and fellow-citizens: From the beginning of the campaign it has been my intention to be with you on the last meeting in Philadelphia previous to the election. By good fortune it has been my privilege to be here to-night; but I am somewhat like our veterans who came home. I am not weak in body or spirit, but, as you may perceive, my voice is rather husky; nevertheless I shall take occasion to say a few words to you, if they should be the last I ever attered. I have travelled over a great partien of Pennsylvania since I last stood here, and from what I have seen and heard I can give as my judgment that Pennsylvania has arrived at a point where she will achieve a most brilliant victory.

There is no doubt about the rural districts. I There is no doubt about the rural districts. I have made it my province to visit every part of the State, and can assure this audience as far as the rural districts are concerned no failure can be possible. It has been asked, "How is Philadelphia?" I would ask here how it is? [A voice—"All right."]

I am glad to hear it answered so promptly.

They thought some fraud was being practiced in the city, but I assured them the State was safe. Be of good cheer; every portion of the State will send you good news on Tuesday next. It has been said the Democrats will raise a riot. I do not think the powers of the State, for peace and order shall

Hon. Charles O'Nelll followed, and spoke as fol-

Fellow-citizens: I have listened with great plea sure to the speech of Governor Geary, and have been gratified, as you all have been, with his cheer-ing account of the campaign in those parts of our great commonwealth in which he has been speakgreat commonwealth in which he has you honored ing for the cause of Republicanism. You honored him with your suffrages two years ago, and he has been doing good service among the people for many been doing good service among the people for many weeks past.

I feel it a great privilege to-night to appear before this vast assemblage of loyal men, and to witness the thousand of upturned faces, every one of them beaming with intelligence, and indicating a determined purpose to stand by the principles of the party which has saved the country during the past seven years. I am proud of the enthusiasm of the Republican men of Philadelphia, who this night have resolved to continue their devotion to their country, and who will be ready upon Tuesday next to prove, through the ballot, that the republic shall to prove, through the ballot, that the republic shall live, and that the government shall be preserved in all its greatness.

If am convinced, by this presence, that not one man will be absent from the post of duty at the coming election, and that the votes of the Republicans of our city will be polled to the very last man for the nominees of our conventions, and that victory will be ours. The few remaining days of the contest embrace hours of vast importance to the welfare of our beloved country, and I know that true hearts are in the cause, and that earnest work will be done to carry the flag on high and to make certain the election of our whole ticket; thus will be secured a glorious triumph for Grant and Colfax on the rapidly-approaching first Tuesday of November. Fellow-citizens, our present contest may be divided into three great parts—the continuance of our municipal government in the hands of the able and upright men who have for some years administered it; the avowal by their re-election of our confidence in the State officers elected by the Re-publican party three years ago, and the effort now to decide in advance the result in Pennsylvania of the Presidential election. I have an abiding confi-dence in the wisdom of the people, and I anticipate a decided victory of the party in the entire cam-paign-municipal, State, and national-and such an overthrow of the so-called Democratic party as will give assurance to our citizens that good government will be maintained in peace throughout

Let me ask this immense audience whether the welfare of our city will be promoted by the election of any one of the local candidates nominated by our enemics? What is to be gained to this great city enemics? What is to be gamed to this great city by electing Democratic nominees? The interests of our eight hundred thousand citizens are too important to be intrusted to those who are now seeking to defeat your candidates. Enterprizes are to be cherished, the growth of our city is to be still further extended, its vastly increasing population is yet to swell in numbers, and the only security you have for all this is in standing by those who have fulfilled their trusts in the past, and in electing to office such others as have merited your coning to office such others as have merited your confidence and esteem, and who were merited your coning to omce such others as have hierited your confidence and esteem, and who are now before you for your suffrages for the first time. The Republican nominees are worthy men, capable of performing their duties, and the result of their election will be a well-governed city, and official conduct that will add to the credit of Philadelphia, whether in the performance of the duties of city or county offices, or in the very responsible and varied municipal

It is scarcely necessary for me in call your attention to General Hartranft, the Auditor General, and General Campbell, the Surveyor General of the Commonwealth. These gentlemen have earned a reputation in the past three years which has com-mended them to you through the State Convention, mended them to you through the State Convention, and they were renominated unanimously. The Auditor General has performed his important duties with distinguished ability, and has looked to the reduction of the public debt of our State in all his acts. He and the Surveyor General wili receive your votes, and Philadelphia will do her part in making up the majority of thousands which the Republicans will give to these State nominees.

The eves of the whole country are looking to our Republicans will give to these State nominees.

The eyes of the whole country are looking to our action upon this ticket, and as the vote of Pennsylvania goes for these officers so will the great battle be lost or won. Our enemies are making their hardest fight here. They know the freemen of this commonwealth will achieve a Republican victory throughout the State, and all their efforts are turned upon Philadelphia. Here they make their stand, and it remains with you, my fellow-citizens. stand, and it remains with you, my fellow-citizens, at your homes, by your firesides, to determine whether we will surrender to the Democratic party. If the debt of our State is to be reduced, as it has been reduced by the Republican administrations, keep in position, by your votes, Hartranft and Campbell, and secure again another Republican Legislature. If the taxes you pay into our city treasury are to be used for the prosperity of this great metropolis, sustain at the polls the men who have been faithful to the interests of the Republicans who elected them.

have been faithful to the interests of the Republi-cans, who elected them.

In looking upon our national contest I can see in the success of our party the industrial wants of the land supplied by the legislation of a Republican Congress. I have heard time and again Democratic haranguers protesting their devotion to the laboring and mechanical population of our city. When in power their promises have been broken, and their efforts seem to me to have been to make the poor man poorer and the rich man richer. Democratic man poorer and the rich man richer. Democratic majorities in the Legislature of our State, and in the Congress of the United States, have never by their enactments sought to encourage the toiling millions of our country in their longings for progress and advancement. The Belmonts and the millionaires of the land control their leaders and mould their actions, while by speeches of Demo-crats and platforms of their conventions they attempt to delude freemen into the belief that they tempt to delude freemen into the belief that they are the only friends of labor.

Whenever the Democratic party has come into power the wealthy few have dictated what laws should be enacted. The demands of American industry have been of no avail. The control of public offices, the spoils only from the State and national treasuries, have been grasped by these pretenders before the people, and nothing has been done for those who are the real strength of the country—the men who, by their skilled labor and the labor of their hands, are endeavoring to bring comfort to their families, and to make homes of contentment and happiness for themselves and their children. The Republican party does not stoop to deception and pretence. Its record proves its fidelity to all men.

Mherever you see prosperity, advancement and progress in any part of the land you can trace the hand of Republican patriots and statesmen. I call upon you, my fellow-citizens, who wish to see the manufacturing, the mining, the mechanical and commercial interests of our State and city carried to yet fuller development, to examine closely the Democratic record. Your intelligence will discover its shortcomings, and your reflection will bring you to the conclusion that Republicanism means the welfare of the citizen, the protection of labor, the general prosperity and the elevation of our country, until the world contesses that we are far in advance of every-other pation. of every-other nation.

Labor is honor in a free government, and every true man toils. The mill, the factory, and the forge, mechanical arts and labor, must be cherished, and sad indeed would be the day for our country if Republicans forget their duty at the coming elec-

Republicans forget their duty at the coming elections. We will grow in greatness if we steadfastly ashere to Republican principles.

Look at the deceit of the Democratic party in the campaign of 1856. James Buchanan was elected by the voices of conservative voters in all the walks of life, deluded into the belief by the leaders of that party that the government would be carried on in the interests of the people generally—in the commercial, the mechanical and laboring interests. What was the result? The national debt was largely increased in times of peace, and diverted from legitimate purposes to the advancement of doctrines inimical to the country and tending to its diamemberment.

During the administration of that President the full power of the people's money was basely sur-rendered to the plotters of treason; the country at last witnessing its navy, almost to the last ship of war, sent on far off fereign stations, and its army war, sent on far off fereign stations, and its army detailed to distant points, to posts in the almost unsettled territories, where, if wanted, months must transpire before it could be brought where it would be available. Not a vessel of war of sufficient strength to succor the starving garrison of Fort Sumpter, and scarce five hundred soldiers within the easy control of the Secretary of War to ward off the threatenings of secession against the inauguration of the chosen of the people—Abraham Lincoln—in his Presidential office. Four years wilfully lost to the country; no protection to induswilfully lost to the country; no protection to indus-try; no encouragement to labor; but an absolute devotion to those whose only efforts were for the destruction to those whose only efforts were for the destruction of the government.

But why need I quote the countless instances of premises broken by the Democratic party? Why call to your minds the wrongs we have suffered from its baneful doctrines? Its record is covered with its forgetfulness of good faith to the country and to individuals. The mask has been thrown off, The people cannot be longer deceived. Intelligence has too much expanded; the means of information are to easy of access in this advanced age for the success of its impositions. The trials of the mation are to easy of access in this advanced age for the success of its impositions. The trials of the last few years have created among loyal men an active patriotism that will prevent the government from going into the hands of those who would destroy it. The true leader has been found, and before many days the voice of the country will pronounce for Ulysses S. Grant for President, and every vestige of the destructive teachings of the so-called Democracy will be entirely swept away, never again to thwart the execution of the laws or destroy the Constitution made by our fathers.

The struggle for power indeed seems terrific, but the republic will be saved. The rebels of the south and the Democrats of the north are fighting their last light with a determination that would honor a better cause, for they well know that with Grant in last fight with a determination that would honor a better cause, for they well know that with Grant in the Presidential chair they must give up their trea-sonable designs, and must yield to the will of the people. The fourth of March is fast approaching. That day will end their plottings, and the country will be peaceful. We will have prosperity all over the land; and soon again where desolation now meets the eye a renewed vigor will be seen, and freemen will be happy and secure in the enjoyment of all their rights.

Fellow Citizens: The issues raised in the Chicago platform, which the Republican party must defend if the dictation of the Democratic leaders is listened to, are debt and taxation. Put the Republicans on the defensive, say our enemies. Well, suppose we do defend our acts done for the suppression of the Democratic rebellion—yes, even defend debt and taxation, which was the result of that party's course? No one in this vast audience can doubt for a moment as to what party is responsible for the debt. The aggressions of traitors caused its creation. Not only are the open advocates of secession in the south blamable for the heavy burden put upon the ountry, but their abettors in the northcountry, but their abetters in the north—those of the Democratic party who sympathized with them, who hesitated when the flag was insulted, and whose President (Buchanan) declared that he knew of no power in the Constitution which could stop a State from grazillar stop a State from seceding.

The Republican party never advocated war until the blow was struck in South Carolina, and then only urged the recovery of the forts and government buildings and property which had been trea-sonably captured and taken. The proclamation of President Lincoln for the first call of troops looked only to the speedy recovery of the property of the United States. But the rebellion had been com-menced, and before many months its proportions were becoming gigantic.

War on a large scale was inaugurated, and patriots were determined it should be carried on at triots were determined it should be carried on at any cost until the country was saved in its unity. The loyal people demanded the outilt of armies and navies. They assented to the creation of debt to meet the immense expenses of preparation for a rebellion brought upon them by the false reasoning of Democracy and secessionism. The same loyal people will see to it that every dollar borrowed on the faith of the government shall be paid, principal and interest, and that the doctrine of Democratic repudiation shall never stain the credit of that true Republicanism which alone brought our country through its sufferings, and which intends through the legitimate channel, the bailot, to carry on the government.

The Republican party will be sustained by loyal votes until every citizen is relieved of his share of the burden of the debt, and the taxation necessary for the prompt payment of the interest. The plat-form of that party declares to every one who holds a bond, although the bond was created to break down the southern confederacy, that it shall be paid, and by the legislation of Republican Con-gresses. Those who came forward with their means to fill the Treasury of the government in the days gresses. Those who came forward with their means to fill the Treasury of the government in the days of its tribulations will be secure in their investments. Republicanism is founded upon the principle of right and justice, and will do nothing to tarnish its faith to the world. Just as the loyal men of the north were not responsible for the creation of the debt, so were they not the cause of the taxation. Many patriots who to-day own our bonds contribute in various ways towards the payment of the interest. Taxation, of course, is felt wherever it falls.

The proposition is too plain and simple to be denied. But every year the taxes are reduced and the debt itself diminished. Almost one half of the immense expenditures of the war have been paid, and but little over three years have clapsed since hostilities in the field ceased. A tax bill enacted during the month of July by a Republican Congress has lessened the annual taxation by many millions of dollars. Luxuries almost exclusively are now taxed, and the man of moderate means scarcely feels that he is alding in the payment of the debt and interest. But, my fellow citizens, there has been another kind of taxation imposed, to there has been another kind of taxation imposed, to which the Democratic orators and Wade Hampton and N. B. Forrest never refer.

The hundred and eighty-six rebel officers who with their northern friends in the convention of the Fourth of July, nominated Seymour and Blair, hide from view the taxation unto death they laid upon your brothers and sons in many a battle field. They do not tell you how rebel bullets taxed the very heart's blood of four hundred thousand loyal men who, in life's dawn and more advanced years, left homes and fathers, and mothers and wives and chiland N. B. Forrest never refer. homes and fathers, and mothers and wives and children, and sisters and brothers, to stand by the flag of our beloved country in its extremity.

They do not tell you how many more hundreds and thousands returned from the strifo of arms taxed by the same rebel bullets by loss of limb and other maining, until over the loyal north a day never passes that you do not see the armless sleeve and the suffering cripple. Rebels and Democrats complain of taxation made necessary by their acts. They taxed a million firesides in loyal homes, and if their bullets brought not death or wounds, their prison-pens and systematic starvation sent back to the north incurable disease, never-ending pain and the north incurable disease, never-ending pain and suffering.

This is the taxation they accomplished with willing hands for you and yours. They shed no tear for your griefs; but while they dare to impress upon your minds repudiation of the public debt, and the fact of a Republican Congress legislating for the payment of the principal and interest, their mouths are closed upon the sorrows their evil doings brought upon you. Why, they deserve the hissings of loyal freemen in their inhuman and cruel attempts to set off death, and wounds, and wasting disease by a sordid appeal to induce you to give up your Republican principles as they did the country, because you have willingly contributed to pay the national debt which was incurred to save the republic.

I do not deny that debt and taxation are a burden. I do not deny that debt and at action are a burden.
I could not, if I would, persuade intelligent men that a public debt is a public blessing. I believe in no such doctrine, either for this country or any other; but, my fellow citizens, I glory in the knowledge I have of the patriotism of those who stood up for the fing when traitors would have trailed it in the dust. I honor the men and women who came forward and freely contributed of their means when the country was in distress, and I can proclaim to the world that no loyal citizen of this saved Repub-lic this day hesitates to pay the taxes which his gov-lie this day hesitates to pay the taxes which his government fevies, so that its faith and credit may be spotless with all men.

Fellow-citizens: I fear I have detained you too long. Other speakers will address you, but in conclusion let me urge you to devote yourselves with energy to the good cause. The crisis is too important for neglect of duty by any patriot, and the reward of earnest, ceaseless labor until the closing of the election on Tuesday next, will be a triumphant victory for Republican principles, the country saved, and our city and State honored; and, far above all, a campaign decided in favor of Grant and Colfax.

The Hon. Charles Gibbons was next introduced.

MARQUETTEI

Another letter from the great fire at Marquette, HERRING'S SAFES preserve their contents where Safes of other makers fall!

MARQUETTE, Michigan, July 20, 1868,

Mesers. Herring & Co.

Gentlemen:—On the lith ult., the entire business portion of our town was destroyed by fire. Our eafe, which was one of your manufacture, was subject to an intense heat, but proved itself adequate to the severe test. It lay in the ruins fourteen days, and when taken out from its appearance (the outside covering being burned through in many places), and in view of the fact that several other safes previously taken out were entirely destroyed, it was a great surprise to us to find the contents legible and in good condition.

Several orders for new takes have already been sent you, which is the best proof of this most satisfactory test, and of the confidence of this community in your safes. Respectfully yours.

WILLKINSON & SMITH.
