BUTLER.

. He is Opposed by Ex-Governor Hawley, of Connecticut.

On the 20th instant ex-Governor Hawley indited a letter to Hon. Richard H. Dana, Jr., congratulating him upon his acceptance of the momination as an independent candidate against Butler, in the Fifth Congressional District of Massachusetts. In this letter he says:—General Butler's eminent services during the Hebellion will always be held in grateful remembrance. His strong will, fertility of intellectual resources, and indomitable combativeness made him greatly useful then, but if he is to be upon the wrong side of the controversy concerning the national debt, starting as he does from among the statunch and trusted radicals, he will be the most dangerous man in the United States. Some say that he cares nothing for the "nancial views he has pushed forward, but that he yields temporarily, with ultimate right surposes, to a popular tendency that he thinks should be conclilated. If so, and the bad tendency should become stronger hereafter, will he not continue to accompany and accelerate ft? But if, as I suppose, he sincerely believes that he is right, we may be sure that what he will do his utmost to carry other Congressmen with him. Shall New England send so powerful a man to give new life to the heresies that were supposed to flourish only "out West," but Yave been almost wholly rooted out of Republican fields in that region?

Flease count me among those who believe without doubt, and say without hestation anywhere, that the financial policy pressed by Gen. Butler would put a foul and eternal stain upon "be honor of our country. If it is to be carried into effect, let it be done by the champions and abettors of slavery and secession. Let there be one party wholly free from the crime of repudiation, "open or covert, threatened or suspected," and then something of honor will be saved to the retion to the pation.

one party wholly free from the crime of repudiation, "open or covert, threatened or suspected," and then something of honor will be saved to the nation in any event.

It is claimed that General Butler is so able and prominent a representative of radicalism that the party cannot afford his defeat. Rather Let us sey that radicalism can always afford to do right, and can never afford to give up anything of national honor in exchange for supposed advantages to reconstruction and impartial suffrage. I cannot say which I deem the more weighty and serious subject, the reconstruction policy of our party or its purposes concerning financial matters. As to the latter, General Butler is in deadly opposition alike to true radicalism and true conservatism. If all Republicans were ready to consider bond-taxation and greenback-substitution issues non-Republicans were ready to consider bond taxa-tion and greenback-substitution issues non-essential and of little consequence, would not the nation be rushing to repudiation and an immortality of shame? It seems so to me. A Talk with the General.

A correspondent writes to the Boston Even-ing Traveller of last evening, giving a report of a recent conversation with General Butler, in which the latter gave his opinion on Conservatism and Radicalism as follows:-

"Now, General," I said, "there is one very serious charge made against you, not only anonymously or editorially, but over the initials of a responsible man. It accuses you of having purposely changed the wording of the Republican platform so as to make it read that "it is the duty of Congress to reduce the rate of the contract thereon whenever it can possibly be interest thereon whenever it can possibly be done, instead of honestly be done. What do you say about that?" The truth is that this financial issue raised

The truth is that this inhancial issue raised against me is simply a pretext. It is a part of the world-wide and eternal struggle between conservatism and radicalism. My opponents are conservatives: I am a radical Republican. They hate radicalism; I despise conservatism. How can we be otherwise than opposed? Desiring to maintain their relations with the Research term party they say in the figurated conservation. How can we be otherwise than opposed? Desiring to maintain their relations with the Republican party, they saw in the financial question a pretext to excuse their opposition to the regular Republican candidate. These men know that my warmest supporters and friends are the radical Republicans of the country, both in and out of Congress. I am supported by all the radical Republican newspapers; I am opposed by some of the conservative newspapers, and by all the Rebel and Copperhead journals in full cry. Like will seek like; and at no distant day the true progressive radical men of the country will be found acting together, and the Rebels, the Copperheads, and conservatives will be found in the opposition. But about that change, sgain let me say that it is evident to me that the word was possibly in the original platform; the change or forgery has been made by the gold-hunters. For the platform to say that the rate of interest should be lowered as soon as it honestly can be done, is to say that there will be a time that it can honestly belowered. If it ever can be honestly lowered, why not now? The contract must remain the same. Possibly is the only word that makes same. Possibly is the only word that makes

After this, the conversation turned upon Personal Matters, as follows:—"By-the-by, General," I interrupted, "would you care to to tell how that charge about the spoons was first started?"

"Certainly," he said. "The history of that charge is a curious one. After the fall of Richmond, when the semi-Rebel Legislature was in session, it was reported that I was to be sent down there to take command in the place of Ord, One Flint—I think that was his name—who was a member of the Legislature, introduced a resolution advising the people, in view of my coming, to lock up their spoons. The of my coming, to lock up their spoons. The resolution, of course, was immediately rejected, resolution, of course, was immediately rejected, but it was copied, and the cry taken up by the Rebel newspapers, and has now become the staple of Democratic wit against me. Flint, however, its author, who was then a Navy Agent at Norfolk, was soon after found a defaulter to the Government to a large amount, and ran away to England. He illustrated the fact I have stated by know he would steal appoors as he to England. He intustrated the lact I have stated—he knew he would steal spoons as he did the Government money, precisely as Mr. Atkinson believes that I don't wish to pay the bends according to contract because he took advantage of the law to cheat the widows and orphans out of $16,000 in gold out of $50,000 he had borrowed from them. Indeed, most men judge others by themselves, as it is their only standard for judgment." The Relations between Butler and Grant were adverted to as follows:—

"They charge that you will not act in harmony with Grant's administration. How is that?" I asked.
"I say that the charge is a slander on General Grant, for I shall be entirely in harmony with true progressive Republican principles, upon which, I assume, his administration will be conducted. Of this I can have no doubt, and so his administration will have no more ardent supporter than myself." General Kilpatrick is to take the stump in the interest of Richard H. Dana, Jr., and against Butler. In his letter announcing this determination, he says of the

I have recently returned from our victorious political battle-fleids in Penusylvania, Onio, and Indiana, and I found in every city and country town in which I spoke, that I had to contend not only with the Democratic party, but with the damaging influences of General Butler's deliberate and criminal indorsement of Penusylvania reporting park in the Democratic party. of Pendleton's repudiating plank in the Demo cratic platform; and I believe that every honest Republican to-day in this contest for the pre-servation of our national honor is convinced that we are fighting the Democratic party plus Benjamin F. Butler.

I have also seen in the newspapers to-day that Democrats throughout your district are rapidly

Democrats throughout your district are rapidly combining in his support. For these reasons I feel that his defeat is as necessary as that of any other opponent of the Republican party, and our great leader, whose bitter personal enemy he is known to be.

I have conversed with and asked the advice of many, very many of the ablest and best men of the Republican party, and without exception, they have all advised me to accept your toy the party of the ablest and best men of the Republican party, and without exception, they have all advised me to accept your invitation, feeling that your contest is a contest between Republicanism and General Grant on the one side, and Benjamin F. Butler on the other. It is, then, a national field; and as my services are really desired by you, I now unhesitatingly accept your invitation, and will be with you on Tuesday next.

TENNESSEE.

A Clergyman's Report of the Outrages by the Rebels.

We have been furnished, says the Cleveland (Ohio) Herald, by the venerable Rev. John Beward, so well known as one of the oldest elergymen in Northern Ohio, with a pungent elergymen in Northern Onio, with a pungent political sermon:—

"TALMADGE, Oct. 17.—Eds. Herald:—Some twe vily years ago one of my nephews, by the name of Almon Case, then a young man with a small i. mily, went South and settled in West Tenness, e as a physician, where he practised in his profes vion, respected and beloved by the people in a extensive region where he was palled upon 'o visit the afflicted. When he went South i'e was a Democrat, and so went South i'e was a Democrat, and so continued until the late war broke out. He then joined the Union men to assist in putting down rebellion and treason. His eldest son went into the Union army, was taken prisoner by the Rebels, and it was reported that he died of starvation in a Southern prison. The father suffered much during the late war, repeatedly leaving his family and home to save himself from tureationally and home to save himself from tureational violence. After the war closed and Tennest violence, after the war closed and Tennessee elected a new legislature, he was chosen nessee elected a new legislature, he was chosen has a Union Senator of that body, where he as a Union Senator of that body, where he as a Union Senator of that body, where he as a Union Senator of that body, where he as a Union Senator of that damage and honor. After going to his home from his labors on the State Senate, and as he and his family wers returning from public worship on the Babbath, his oldest surviving son, a lad about sixteen years old, walking a few steps in advance of the rest of the family, was shot by an unseen hand, and died there in the presence of the father and mother and their affrighted and shrieking children. But a short time after this event, on the public road, in broad daylight, and near his own dwelling, Dr. Case himself was attacked by ruffians and brutally murdered. No efforts were made to arrest or punish the perpetrators of these horrible deeds. And this is only a were made to arrest or punish the perpetrators of these horrible deeds. And this is only a single specimen of similar outrages which are constantly occurring at the South down to the present time, and I believe that every man who votes the Democratic ticket on the third of November is doing what he can, perhaps unconsciously, to help on and encourage these scenes of blood, and is, in a measure, guilty of them, and will be responsible for them at the bar of final judgment.

TURKEY.

Religious Persecution and Outrages on Christians.

Christians.

The Evangelical Alliance in England publishes a communication received from its Turkish branch, describing recent persecutions of Christians in Turkey, in which it says:—

"On the 25th of July seven Protestants of Mardin were seized and sent to the camp. Their pastor, who interceded in their behalf, was thrown into the malefactors' prison, but subsequently released on bail. The other seven, one of them seventy years of age, were compelled to carry water, dirt, and stone, and to build mangers for the cavalry horses, under the constant beating of the soldiers, who followed them armed with sticks from an inch to an inch and a half in thickness. On Monday the same course was proceeded with against them, and when their pastor again remonstrated he was seized, and two large jars were fastened to his neck, one before and one behind, and two more put one in either hand, and he was made to carry water (the weight of the four is reflied with water was one handred and figer to carry water (the weight of the four made to carry water (the weight of the four jars filled with water was one hundred and fifty pounds), and although there was water in a cistern level with the camp, they wereimade to go to a mosque for it, six hundred feet higher than the camp. This treatment continued till Friday, when they were led to the Governor, who upbraided them for not paying their taxes. The town council then examined their case, and it was decided that there was not a farthing due from them, and the Governor wished to disfrom them, and the Governor wished to dis-charge them, but an officer from the Pacha, with whom the Fatriarch Pillibos was closeted, arrived with an order that two gensdarmes should accompany each of the prisoners, and the money should be got out of them before night. The Governor had to obey the order and

"The poor prisoners, fearing that unless the demand was complied with they would be beaten to death, then asked the council in despair how much they should pay. The council directed them for the answer to the heads of the bostile Christian seets, who took them to the hostile Christian sects, who took them to the market-place. Here a sum was arbitrarily named for each, and then one by one they were driven through the streets under the constant beating and knocking of the soldiers, to find people who would lend them the demanded money. It was sunset and the shops were closed, and it was with the greatest difficulty that the harassed men obtained, at exorbitant interest, before the close of night, the sum of 19,002 plastres, which they handed over to their persecutors. Receipts were refused. To every appeal for investigation made to the Pacha he lent a deaf ear, and to the civil head of the Protestants he said, 'I care hostile Christian sects, who took them to the made to the Facha he lentadeaf ear, and to the civil head of the Protestants he said, 'I care neither for law nor firman. I am mushire, and my word is law,' A full statement of the case, with documents and testimony which would establish every assertion here made before any court of Europe, has been sent to Constanti-

IMPROVEMENTS.

Progress of the Chicago Tunnel.

The east half of the tunnel is entirely completed, from the west line of Franklin street to a point near the middle of the river, where the artises of water is prevented by a strong bulkhead. The work men are now busy making the changes in the coffer-dam necessary to opening a channel on the east side of the river, while the coffer dam is being built on the west side of the river to carry forward the remaining por-tion of the work. It is expected that within the next twenty four hours the present dam will be removed and the channel of the river changed, so that vessels will pass through on the east side.

On the west side of the river the tunnel is completed to within 70 feet of the river bank, thus leaving only about 130 feet of the work to thus leaving only about 130 feet of the work to be accomplished. With anything approxi-mating good weather, the work can and will be entirely finished by the close of the present year—thus giving the city an opportunity of celebrating the opening of this great enter-prise on New Year's day of 1869. It is evident that the tunnel will afford safe and ampie room prise on New Years and that the tunnel will afford safe and ampie room for all pedestrians and vehicles that may pass through it. The wagon way is large enough for the largest loaded teams to pass each other without collision, and the compartment for pedestrians is sufficient to accommodate the largest throng of people who may chance to make the trip at one and the same time. The entire length of the tunnel is 1605 feet. The covered portion is 920 feet in extent, and there are three avenues under the tent, and there are three avenues under the river—two for teams and one for pedestrians, some idea of the magnitude of the work may be formed from a knowledge of the amount of material used. By the time the tunnel is completed the contractors will have used 4,000,000 of brick, 25,000 barrels of cement, 15,000 cubic yards of sand. 8000 cubic yards of dimension yards of sand, 8000 cubic yards of dimension stone, 6000 cubic yards of "rip-rap," and 14,000 yards of "rubble."—Chicago Journal, 22d.

The Duke of Buckingham, in a letter to Lord Monck, expresses approval of the choice of the Canadian Government in selecting the route of the Bay of Chalcur as the one to connect the Truro with Riviere du Loup, and thus complete the Intercolonial Railway. He says:—The communication which this line affords with the Gulf of St. Lawrence at various points and its remoteness from the American frontier are conclusive considerations in its favor, and there can be no doubt that it is the only one which provides for the national objects involved in the undertaking.

WHAT WENT WITH THE LETTERS.

There is a young lady in Cincianati who has a beau. The beau is a nice young man, and writes letters o her, In exchange for which she writes letters to the nice young man. She kept the pice young man's letters in a safe lace, in her trunk. But she doesn't keep them now any more, for they are gone. And this is the manner in which they departed. She left her trunk open the other day. Her little brother, Jim, got the bundle of letters out of the trunk, He stood at the corner of the street with the bundle. And he handed the letters out, one to each passer-by, till the whole bundle was gone. The way they found it out was that Jim handed one of the letters to the nice young man's cousin, who brought it to headquarters.

The moral of this beautiful story is that Jim was spanked and put to bed, instead of being presented with a nice new suit from ROCKHILL & WILSON'S. All good boys, nice young men, and people of the male persuasion generally, are crowding, this fall, to buy elegant clothes at the

More About the Inauguration of Dr. McCosh.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. PRINCETON, Oct. 27 .- Long before the hour appointed for the commencement of the exercises crowds had assembled in the neighborhood of the church, and as soon as the doors were thrown open the galleries were filled to excess. The fashion and beauty of Princeton and the surrounding country were present. About half-past 12 o'clock the procession arrived at the college chapel, where the exercises of inauguration were held, and the body of the spacious hall was at once filled. The professors, speakers, and officers scated themselves upon the platform, and music gave step to the remainder of the procession which entered.

As soon as silence reigned, Marcus L. Ward, Governor of New Jersey, the presiding officer, with a few introductory remarks opened the exercises. A noticeable incident of the occasion was the carrying in upon the platform, on a chair, of Dr. Warren Scott, who graduated from the institution seventy three years ago. The Marshals of the procession, from Philadelphia, were as follows:-John Cochran, James H. Heverin, Joseph K. McCammon, William Wethe-
