Secretary Stanton Answers Seymour ---The Last Gun of the Campaign.

The greatest of great War Ministers-the American Bismarck-addressed an audionce of Philadelphians on Saturday night. The last time he spoke in Philadelphia was years ago, at Concert Hall, when Buchanan began to barter his manhood by instalments to southern oligarchists through the Lecompton swindle Lecompton swindle.

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton on Saturday night appeared before a vast audience, comprising the wealth and the intelligence of Philadelphia. Probably half of those who listened to Seymour on the previous night, at the same place, were Republicans, attracted by a desire to see the man who addressed the Mackerelville rioters as "my friends." The audience of Saturday night—we take it from its respectable appearance—contained few Democrats.

The stage was beautifully pet, with the national colors on either wing, entwining splendid oil paintings of Washington, Lincoln and Grant, the former in the centre. Regimental and artillery national colors were interblended, and letters of gaslight colors were interpleded, and letters of gastight over all read, "Let us have peace!"

At a few minutes of eight o'clock the committee of the Union League entered, accompanied by the distinguished visitor. His appearance was the occasion of a demonstration that has been seldom witnessed in this city. Men cheered and threw up their hats, and ladies waved their handkerchiefs. This welcome continued for several minutes, and culminated in three rousing cheers for "the great minister whom Abraham Lincoln delighted to Edwin M. Stanton, the great war minister of Order having been restored, Mr. Samuel C. Per-Order having been restored, Mr. Samuel C. Per-kins proposed for chairman of the meeting Governor John W. Geary, who, in a few remarks, introduced the orator of the evening. Mr. Stanton then ad-vanced to the footlights, and was prevented from proceeding for several minutes, by applause. At length he started, but, from his weakened condi-tion, was unable to be heard in all parts of the bonse. He said: house. He said:

house. He said

Ladies and gentlemen: This mighty concourse, which is the largest that my eyes ever beheld, is significant of two things. The first, a judgment in favor of U. S. Grant, and second, it is a judgment in ngainst Horatio Soymour. Upon the election of next Tuesday I behold the rock of our national safety, and the triumph of the banner that is hold in the bands of U. S. Grant, and freedom and justice now and in all time. Why, then, have you this night passed judgment in favor of Grantand against Seymour? The first reason is from the persons who put them in nomination, and who urge them for Seymour? The first reason is from the persons who put them in nomination, and who urge them forward as candidates. They met in New York a short time ago, and who were there? Robels, red-handed prisoners of war of the United States, and their associates. These are the men who put Seymour in nomination. Who are those who put in nomination U. S. Grant? The great Republican party, that bore this nation in the war, through the trials and dangers and the vict-saturds of the great war that we have just passed through—the great Republican party.

war that we have just passed through—the great Republican party.

The first reason why we should prefer Grant to Seymour was to be found in the bodies who placed them in nomination, and those whom they repre-sent. Grant represents the loyal heart of America, and Seymour is the travelling agent of Hampton and Forrest. Another reason for that judgment is to be found in the merits of the persons themselves. In Grant we behold the leader of our armies in the path to victory: in Grant we behold the great genepath to victory; in Grant we behold the great gene ral who, under Divine providence, led our armies supported by some of those who are here assembled supported by some of those who are here assembled, from the Potomac to the Rio Grande and from the Atlantic to the Missisppi. Seymour is now traveiling around giving reasons why General Grant should not be elected, and why the banner of the nation should not be trusted to his hands. What reasons does he give? They are mainly accusations against the Republican party. Beginning with his start, and ending with his pilgrimage in this city, his path has been one of accusation. He has told what mistakes and errors have been committed by those in authority, but what remedy has he proposed?

His path has been a path of accusation, of criti-His path has been a path of accusation, of criticism, and that of gnawing to get a nibble at the public cheese, and nothing else. The burden of his song has been the expenditures of the government, taxation and its extravagance. Now, what have been the expenditures during the last three years? Every one of them have been for the war and war purposes, to overthrow the rebellion which had been declared by the wiscetstatesmen of Europe to be beyond the power of being repressed, and this he beyond the power of being repressed, and this was accomplished by the expenditure of money. Who here complains of that?

Who here complains of that?

In what have we been extravagant? Has be shown a single item that could have been got for less, one that required less money for gunpowder, for clothing, food or arms? If a crime has been committed by the Republican government, then your own Governors are the parties responsible, one of whom boasts of having forwarded 356,000 soldiers to the front, and the other led them forth into the field of battle, and exhorted them to come from their homes to take their arms in their hands, and go forth into the south- and west, in order that the rebellion might be put down. Here then we have nearly one-fourth of the war expenditure accounted for, and laid at their own doors. These expendi-tures were to put down treason and rebellion, and preserve the foundation of the national government. They have been to pay the soldier, for their bounty, for their food, for their clothing, for their arms, for ammunition, and for all that was necessary to strike a death-blow at treason.

There is no wonder why a man nominated by Wade Hampton should find fault with expenditures. I desire to ask of you, do you regard this expendi-ture as useless? (Cries of "No sir,") Governor Seymour has said that these expenditures were nureasonable, and yet he has shown no other way in which the rebellion could have been put down. The inference is that he was opposed to the suppression

Of the items of four thousand millions, what one of the items of four thousand mailtons, what one has he shown unreagonable? He has not named one. He dares not say he begrudges the soldier his bread, his pay, his transportation from port to port. You, as business men, when you object to a bill, point out the objectionable item.

There is but one which he claims as extravagant, and that was for transportation. He says that more vessels were employed than were necessary. When the war terminated the Quartermaster General re-ported 500 vessels that had been bought or char-tered, and to these we are indebted in a great measure for our victories. This was the greatest number of transports ever owned by any government, and that was because we had the greatest rebellion that ever existed on the face of the earth. The War Department hired, bought and begged the use of vessels to transport troops, and to the glory and honor of the business men of this city let it be said that none responded more readily or freely with everything that floated.

He said that the War Department had a great many war vessels, and that he thought was the business of the Navy Department. You know that the President of the United States is the commander of President of the United States is the commander of the army and navy, and you know that a man who should command that army and navy should know what is the province of his department. Mr. Seymour declares that he always thought that the hiring of transports belonged to the Navy Department. Behold the ignorance of this man. Why Wade Hampton would blush with shame to hear his candidate say that the buying of transports belonged to the navy. Why, everybody else knows that to the War Department belonged the daty of moving soldiers, whether by railroad, stage, wagons or steamboats, and that it is the duty of that Department to pay these expenses. Yet this man. Department to pay these expenses. Yet this man, who makes the above assertion, wants to be the commander of the army and navy.

He has also said that he would like to know how much was paid for these vessels, and who got the money. Well he wants to know who has the cheese. He every year has an account rendered for the charter of these vessels and of these who got the money, and he knows as well what the cost was as you know how your ledger stands. It is a sin of ig-norance on his part and not of lying, and it is not strange that he should not know where to look to find the annual account.

He adds to his wilful misrepresentation the most shameful and ridiculous ignorance of any man who ever appeared before the people for a respectable position. He also makes charges against the Secre-tary of War. I now deny that the Republican party should be made responsible for the Secretary of War. That individual is able to take care of him-self against the accusation of Horatio Seymour. self against the accusation of Horatio Seymour. That accusation reveals the purpose and design of Seymour and the party that upholes him. He has also said that great wrongs had been done to our army, and he believed that if any other man had been at the head of the War Department, the war would not have been prolonged, but the Union would have been restored at an early day. Now, what was the policy of the Secretary of War, and in which he was supported by the people of the country? It was to pursue the enemy to the last extremity, it was to smite the rebels by day and night, to carry forward the flag of Union, and tramextremity, it was to smite the rebels by day and night, to carry forward the flag of Union, and trample under foot the flag of the rebellion, to stand by Abraham Lincoln to the last, and encourage him in his work of emancipation. If the policy of Governor Seymour had been followed, it would have resulted in the overthrow of the government and a triumph of rebels, the success of treason, the distruction of the cause of liberty in this land. But by the blessing of God his policy was not adopted and mine was, and I now intend to adhere to the same policy, which will smite the enemy at every point. I feel proud of leaving to my children the heritage that I fought the rebels to the last extremity.

The speaker then referred to the course of Seymour while Governor of New York, and in his re-marks said that on the 25th of June, 1863, when Lee threatened to invade Pennsylvania, the Presitient directed him (the speaker) to telegraph to the different Governors to know whether they had any different Governors to know whether they had any available troops or militia. In response to this, Governor Seymour sent a dispatch that he had some regiments which he would forward. So astonished was the President, that he directed Mr. Stanton to indite a telegram, which was as follows: "The President directs me to return his thanks for your prompt response," and which was sent. This is the dispatch which this man's friends are using, and on which they claim that he was a loyal man. The loyal governors complaited of this dispatch, but the President said you do not need thanks, but Seymour does, and he wanted to encourage a faint-hearted governor, and induce him to labor in our cause.

A week after a few regiments came. Within ten to labor in our cause.

A week after a few regiments came. Within ten days after that Horatio Seymour stood in the Cooper Institute denouncing the government, discouraging the war. This he was doing while Meade couraging the war. This he was doing while Meade was mowing the rebels down at Gettysburg. There he was pleading the cause of the enemy, and against the cause of the country. Are we now prepared to trust such a man with the army, the navy, the treasury, and with all the power of the government? Well, then, vote against him. Do your duty on next Tuesday, and the sun of political glory will shine more brightly and with greater lustre than on the 3d of July at Vicksburg and at Gettysburg. Vote against Grant, and darkness and Gettysburg. Vote against Grant, and darkness and gloom will settle like the pall of midnight, deeper and deeper over the land, over our own prosperity. over the elements of the national power, honor and strength. It will be the greatest calamity that ever befel the people. My hope is that God may

The speaker retired amidst deafening shouts. Dispatches from Governors Penton and Ward were then read, and after short addresses by Governor Curtin and Judge Kelley, the meeting ad-

Mr. Stanton was escorted to the Union League House, from the balcony of which he made a few remarks to an immense audience, who, despite the ram, had assembled to do honor to this great and wise statesman. So ended the series of brilliant meetings inaugurated by the Union League.

Eusiness Men of Philadelphia, to Your | Duty ! To the Editor of The Evening Telegraph;

Will you not urge upon the business men of Philadelphia the great importance of the duty devolving upon them to-morrow? Tuere is not a business man in our city or State whose business interest, I care not how great or small it may be, is not inseparably bound up and connected with the result of the contest to-morrow. No man should merely go to the polls and deposit his vote and then go about his business, seemingly careless and indifferent as to what the result may be, but after decositing his bailet be should then give every hour of the day to the cause of his country. He should see that every other man who has the right to vote does his duty as-o, and that no man who has not that right shall exercise it, even it be has a dezen take and iraquient papers to back him in it. It the business men of our city will for once turn out to-incrrow in solid column, every man in his own precinet, and stay there during the day, it will make thousands of voice in layor of law, order, and good government. The rowds element of our city, who generally congregate at out our poils to overswe timid and peace able voters, will themselves be overawed by such an array of the worth, intelligence, and patriotism of our city, and will be deterred from those acts of rowdyism and fraud which they commit when no one is there to watch and detect them. Let them see for once that the honest, intelligent, and patriotic citizens of Philadelphia, be they rich or poor, are determined to protect their theirs at the ballot-box, by being precent at the polls from the time they are opened until they are closed, and it will have an effect for good beyond computation. No man should feel that he is too good or too respectable to be seen around the pells in the discharge of this important duty, when everything relating to the good of society and the thing relating to the good of society and the peace and prosperity of our country is at stace. Let us then see such an array of the business men of Philadeiphia at the polis to morrow as was never before seen, and my word for it, the result will be an overwhelming verdict in favor peace, prosperity, and happiness to our country.

RURAL CEMETERY,

MOUNT MORIAH. embracing an area of one hundred and fifty-five acres, and comprising every vari-ty of acenery, is by far the largest and most beautiful of all the cemeteries near Philadelphia.

As the tide of improvement tends northward, MOUNT MORIAH, by geographical position, is

FOREVER SAFE FROM INTRUSION OR DIS-TURBANCE BY OPENING OF STREETS, and will never be hedged in and surrounded by houses, factories, or other improvements, the inevitable fate of other cemeter es northward or centrally

At a convenient distance from the city, readily access bie by an excellent road and by the street cars of the Darby Passenger Rallway, Mount Moriah, by its undisturbed quiet, fo fils the solemn purpose of its dedication as a last resting place of the dead. No uneral service here is ever interrupted by the shrill whis le of the locomotive, nor the sensibilities of friends or visitors shocked by the rush and rattle of long trains of passing freight or coal cars, as must of necessity be the case in other burial-places, now established or projected, on the immediate line of steam railroads, or through the grounds of which such railroads run. Just now the bues of Autumn tings with gorgeous colors and infinite variety the fe linge of the various groups o' fine oid forest trees adorning the margin of the stream which meanders through the grounds, and adds so great a charm to the attractions of the place.

Churches of all the principal Protestant denomina tions have here purchased sections of ground for the use of their congregations, and more than seven thousand families have given this great Rural Ceme tery the preference over all others.
