

Gambling in Italy.

Mr. Eran supplies some interesting statistics relating to the Italian revenue. The Custom House, for the first half of 1868, up to the 31st of June, yielded 141,000,000.

The estimate for the year has been 302,000,000, or 303,000,000; there is a deficit of quite 100,000,000 on the half year. The month of July brought in about 25,000,000, 3,000,000, or 4,000,000, more than in the preceding month, so it may be hoped the deficiency on the whole year will not reach 20,000,000, up to the 30th of June, and, as the estimate for the year was under $2,000,000, there is a prospect of 20,000,000 surplus on this item.

The lottery was estimated to yield sixty millions on the year, and the first six months have brought in thirty or thereabouts. Mr. Eran recalls the fact that in 1835, the last year of the lottery's existence in France, it yielded only eleven millions. This shows to what a pitch the passion for gambling is carried in Italy. There are seven lotteries in Italy, at Bari, Naples, Palermo, Florence, Milan, Turin, Venice, so that the happy Italians may play every day in the week. The Naples lottery yielded nearly 10,000,000, £400,000, in the six months; the others nearly in the same proportion, relatively to the population of the district. Mr. Eran says:—"This people, who have so great a reputation for direct taxation, pays that, on average, sixty millions on the lottery. A person taking an ombé (staking on two numbers out of the ninety, and winning only if both come out) has one chance against three hundred and ninety-nine; the State, then, if its terms were analogous only to those offered by the late M. Benezet, ought to pay three hundred and ninety-nine times the stake, but in reality it pays only two hundred and seventy times."

The gambler in the lottery gives the Government one hundred and twenty-nine points at starting. I have sometimes explained this to Neapolitans, but they looked upon me as being depraved by the study of mathematics. "The Italians are apt to give way to impulse and sentiment, even in the gravest political matters. A considerable party periodically makes a ridiculous fuss and agitation to obtain the abolition of capital punishment, in a country where education is at the lowest, where brigandage is a chronic and seemingly an ineradicable evil, and where the most heinous crimes are daily the frequent occurrences. But it is rare to hear any Italian philanthropist calling out for the abolition of the lottery, which is unquestionably the source of a vast deal of crime. It yields £2,400,000.

The Gymnastic Art.

An article on the Braemar Gathering and the Scottish Highland Games in general has been lately published in Germany, by Mr. Karl Blind, in which he enters into the argument of the question, drawing a comparison between the descriptions given by Roman authors on the habits and customs of the ancient Germans, and the "heroic" amusements of the Gaelic people of the present day. A further quotation, made by the Nibelungen Lied, which has reference to the feat known as "putting the stone," is most curiously adapted. The writer gives the old text from the German national epic. It is to be found in the chapter which describes "how Günthar won Brunhild." After an allusion to the pernicious effect the system of evolutions produces in the Highlands by driving the martial race beyond the ocean, and thus weakening the defensive military forces of England, Mr. Karl Blind concludes with the following words:—"Owing to the example given in London, German gymnastic makes greater progress in England from year to year. In the Highland games of the Gaels, Great Britain on her part possesses a remnant of native popular gymnastics which only awaits its broader expansion. While, in the grounds of the Crystal Palace at St. James, the English recently competed for prizes in that art with the Germans, and practically proved that they had learnt well enough from their teachers, the Scots soon afterwards had their great competition in such bodily exercises as might astonish many an athlete by profession. The health of the people, which in England is altogether better than in many a continental State, can only gain by universalizing the gymnastic art, keeping it at the same time within proper bounds. Everything tending to that aim that is interesting to the propounders of a sound national economy, who calculate the prosperity of the community, not merely from the sum total agricultural production, not simply from the lists of export and import, but from the accounts of the well-being of the greatest number possible."

takes the line of downright, almost savage evangelism. Rationalism finds some acceptance among the speculative, but ritualism has a hard time of it. A ritualistic clergyman is barely tolerated in the populous towns, and certain curates of that school, dropping down into our villages, have invariably met with a warm reception, and have migrated southward at the first opportunity. A synopsis of the religious character of an average manufacturing community would be somewhat as follows:—"1. Anglican Churchmen, consisting of zealous and zealous communicants, holding their laborious clergy in high estimation; and traditional Churchmen, void of personal piety, but tenacious of the privileges and vana of the prestige of a national church. "2. Nonconformists of all denominations, unitedly equal in numbers with the Churchmen, but inferior in compactness and organization. "3. Roman Catholics, embracing the Irish immigration, and a considerable body of English, mainly of the middle class. "4. Systematic Free-thinkers, among factory workers a small but acute and superior class. "5. Indifferents, estimated to be a moiety of the operative population. "This classification may not, perhaps, greatly differ from the composition of other English communities, except in the proportions of some of the groups. Of active skepticism there is very little among the operatives, but oblivion of religion is widely prevalent."

Prints on Apples and Pears. A friend who has lately been on a visit to the "Hub of the Universe" writes to the Charleston Courier as follows:—"I have just seen a very pretty and fanciful idea developed on the pear and apple, in the orchard of a friend at West Roxbury, Mass. As you ramble among the trees, you are ever and anon saluted by an inscription upon the fruit, done as it were by the hands of Nature herself. On some you will find the names of Seymour and Blair, for our friend is a staunch Democrat of the conservative or State rights school. Here you meet with the familiar name of Mary, or Alice, or a date (1865)—in brief, everything that may suggest itself to your taste or fancy; and all done in the skin of the fruit, without abrasion or any foreign impression. The discovery was made by the Hon. Arthur W. Austin, of West Roxbury, in 1851-2. He observed during the former year that the apples did not ripen in that part of the fruit where a leaf happened to lie upon it. In 1852 he cut out letters from newspapers, and when the apples were yet green, he pasted them upon them with paste such as apothecaries use, made of gum tragacanth. The apples would ripen in all parts not covered by the pasted letters. When the fruit had ripened to perfection the letters were removed, and they would appear permanently outlined in green. So, again, the letters were pasted on a paper in which the letters were cut out, and the letters would appear, distinctly turned in, red, the green ground surrounding them. The experiment is a very pretty one, and produces a happy effect: let our fruit-growers try it. How much sweeter must be the relish of apple or pear if the name of a favorite should thus appear on it, as if written by the hand of Nature! What a superior price such fruit, so inscribed, would command in market, and what a pretty present it would be to any lady at a feast!"
