NEWS SUMMARY.

Local Affairs. —A missionary meeting was held last evening, at St. Stephen's P. E. Claureb, Tenth street, near Chesnut. The Rector of the Church presided, and the attendance was quite large. After the usual religious services, Eishop Tuttle, of Montana, made an address, during which he de-acribed the mission work among the Mormons nt Salt Lake City, and stated that he had a parish school which he held in a large hall. His school numbers about one hundred pupils, many of whom are the children of Mormons, He said that in addition to the work performed by the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Methodist Church had two clergymen there, and the Catholic Church has about twelve priests actively engaged. He concluded by stating that he required about $9000 to creet a proper building at Salt Lake City for religious instruction, and that he would not commence operations until the entire amount was raised.

-The exhibitions at Point Breeze Park still continue to aitract large numbers of visitors. This week's races were inaugurated yesterday by contests between Mary and Harry D., for a purse of $1000, best three heats in five, to harness, owners driving; and Rettle and Young Patchen, for $500, on similar conditions. On the first contest, the horses on the first heat got off well logsiker, when Mary took the lead, and, trotting benefitally, maintained to until she crossed the score the winner in 2 38; The second and third beats were but repetitions of the first, by steady trotting, never missing her feet, winning both heats and the race in 2:39% and 2:37. The second match was well contested and after a sharp struggle, was won by Bettie in 3:02, 3:02, 3:00, 3:00%. Young Patchen taking the second heat.

The will of Anna Pausset, admitted to probate yesterday, provides that after certain private bequests are paid the remainder of her estate, amounting to several thousand dollars, shall be given to the Hospital of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.

The Arrival of General Grant and Speaker Colfax in this city has attracted a number of politicians who new Cabinet. It is stated by prominent Republicans that Mr. Stanton will be offered his old position of Secretary of War, as the most suitable person to deal with the South in its present disurbed condition. His services in the late politial esuspaign are recognized as being most fective.

Scuntor Wade and Mr. Greeley are also looked upon as certain to be selected, the former for the Interior Department, and the latter for the Postmaster-Generalship An Active Competition

THE FINE ARTS.

Timan's Venus .- Mr. W. Holman Hunt writes to the London Athenaum, from Florence, as follows about Titian's Venus:-

FLORENCE, October, 1868 .- All of your readers who have visited the galleries here will remember that the usual place for the Titian Venus is some ten or twelve feet high in the dark "Tribune:" it is but rarely brought down. At this time it happens that, for the convenience of a German artist who was copying it, the picture has been removed into a lighter 100m, where it is placed on a level with the eye. Having benefited by the oppor-tunity to examine the picture very closely, I am induced to forward to you some facts about its condition of importance to the whole world interested in ancient art-which I tender as my apology to the custodians of the Uffizi for making my remarks in this very indirect and public manuer.

The first testimony I have to give is very henorable to all who have had charge of the picture; for after examination of the surface, with and without a glass, I came to the conclusion that it had been retouched as little as any picture of the same date I had ever examined. At the edges of the painting, near the frame, there are patches of comparatively modern date, but these have been placed, honestly enough, to cover spaces of naked canvas, left exposed by the falling away of loosened flakes of paint. This last observation leads to a very serious discovery, i. e., that the whole painting is in great danger from the extension of what may appropriately enough be called cobweb cracks over its whole surface; each crack belonging to a system, starring away from and circling around a central point, and extending itself until it meets with a neighboring web of cracks. The injury in its origin is, probably, of old date, scarcely a single inch of the picture being free from some line of rupture; this leaves the paint in independent scales, apparently at this moment detachable with the nail, and of course, therefore, in peril of falling off bit by bit by the shaking and unavoidable touching at the back and the front in the course of unfixing and refixing the picture, or even by the necessary dusting of it even with the lightest of feather-brushes. The cause of this injury is, that the strainer upon which the canvas is placed has warped and shrunk to such a degree that the paint on its surface is ever subject to a deviation from the level plane to a conclave or convex one, in neither of which is it possible in its present hard percelain state to remain attached to its bed without rupture of the unyielding coating of precions colors.

To arrest the evil cannot be very difficult. That the picture should be retouched at all I should grieve at more than that it should be left as it is. Any cleaning or flattening with a hot iron would not be less deplorable. The cracks are very fine, and in no sensible degree injure the effect of the picture when seen at a distance of a few feet; and they have some value to the artist in revealing the manner of painting adopted by Titian in executing this work. Some mechanical process-perhaps for example, the application of a thin coat of gine to the cracks, in such way that the glue should spread somewhat beneath the loose cales-might be adopted to make the paint adhere more firmly to the canvas; and, this done, nothing more would be requisite to hand the picture down to succeeding generations as far removed from our time as we are from Titian's, to say the very least, but the placing the canvas on a new strainer of well-seasoned wood, or even on the present eld one, a little rectified in shape and size, with-and this is most important of all-a panel filling up the whole space of the framework, and supporting the canvas in such manner as to prevent the picture from being shaken by a concussion of any kind either in front or behind; and in addition to this I should certainly recommend that the picture be covered with a sheet of glass, removable at pleasure, as is done with some precious pictures in our own National Gallery. to preserve it from injury from spectators and ordinary copyists; the special need of which I will demonstrate in a later letter, should you do me the honor to insert this. Before closing this, I hope I may be excused for adding a few lines to suggest inquiry as to what copies of good character exist in England of this picture. Some forty years since Etty became a worshipper of the glory of the work: he exerted all his interest in vain to have it put into a good light for his study; but the jealousies of the then ruling Government, and mitting depredations on plantations, acting | some ill-conceived delicacies in the mind of the Grand Duchess of the time, compelled him at last to proceed with his task without any change having been made in the place of the picture. By the aid of an opera-glass, however, his own instinct for good color enabled him, despite darkness and distance, to make his copy, which, I am assured by Mr. Kirkup, our countryman, who has resided for now nigh half a century in the Tuscan capital, was one of very extraordinary merit.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE STATE SCHOOL-HOME FOR Bristol.

This Home was opened under the auspices of the Colored Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Committee, in the 18th of June last, and sow coasains size, two boys and forty-six airs. They have been well fed, well lodged, and tolerably well clothed, and are now making fair progress in their studies. The buildings have been repaired and comfortably furnished; an abundant supply of water has been conducted to the fourth stery; means of healing are just being completed, and the grounds partly by the labor of the boys, have produced a large order of vegetables. But this progress has cost more than was expected. Our funds are exhausted; our receipts from the State have been hitherto necessarily small; and yet, we have some pressing wants still ansupplied. The erection of an outer trame building, to be used partly as a workshop and partly as a play house in bad weather, is much needed. The laterior of the house wants painting and the school has no illorary. A young lady is now furnishing a room for the latter at her own expense, but this kind act, to be available, implies denaities of books. Many of the orphans are brought into the school very short of clothing; the State supply is always insufficient the first year, or muth half-worn garments accumulate, and our funds must meet this deficiency. They must also meet the expense, frequently inclinding clothes for the journey, or bringing the orphans from their houses to the school Home; and there are still sost thred through the state powers of seventy more awaiting the agents of the committee to be gathered in. COLORED SOLDIERS' ORPHANS, II more awaiting the agents of the committee to be gathered in.

The committee most gratefully acknowledge that the contributions already received nave been, as taking the contributions already that the most sangaine could have expected and yet they are nowlifing to believe that the friends of equal justice will seem the targe degree of success now attained by this help to remain isomplets for want of some additional ad. For it must not be forgotten that, had the measure of equal justice been applied to all our soldiers explains, without desirection, since 1854, these colored children would already have been four years at school and have received $50,000 of the State appropriation. chool and have received $80,000 of the State appropriation.
