A Momentous Proclamation. PRESIDENT JOHNSON, restless under the insignificarce into which he has sunk, and reckless at the near approach of the termination of his public career, has shot the last arrow out of his quiver of proclamations and lost his last chance of gaining even a temporary notoriety. On Christmas Eve he issued a universal amnesty proclamation, pardoning all those who were guilty of treason or of adhering to the enemy, and "restoring them to all their rights, privileges, and immunities under the Constitution and laws." How far he is called to make such a restoration, and of what avail it will be in enabling the late traitors to regain their ballots, is a question which Mr. Johnson does not pretend to solve, nor will we attempt it. In this proclamation, coming as it does at the present time, we see some food for reflection. Of its real value there can hardly be too small an estimate. It is hardly worth the paper on which it is written, if we consider the effects it will produce, or the power it will exert. To properly see what it will do, we can apply it to special cases. The previous proclamations, and, above all, the acts of Congress, have freed from responsibility all the people of the Southern States, if we except a score or so, Of all the population there are none who could now be tried for treason except Jefferson Davis and the dozen or so of the leaders, who, like him, have been kept out in deference to public opinion. Of these, none except Davis are under indictment. All the rest have either abjured the country like Benjamin, and taken up their residence abroad, or else are living in the Southern States forgotten, and under no danger of molestation; so that, in fact, the case of Davis is the only one affected; and from what danger does he escape ? Has any same man for years thought that Jefferson Davis would ever be punished? We think but few such will be found. The farce of a trial, continued from term to term, was kept up, but all expected it to end just as it has done. He has not been in danger of his life since he took off the female garments in which he fled, nor has public sentiment been such as to demand his execution. Had the sentence of death been pronounced, the voice of the people, ever inclined to lean towards leniency, would have demanded that his life be spared; so that, even in regard to this individual instance, the proclamation, sounding so grandly, is but waste of ink and parchment. It may be said that under it such men as Dr. Blackburne, of yellow fever fame, and the assassins who hid in Canada, can now return. But this is au error. Treason is the only orime pardoned; and there is a vast difference between treason and murder. All the incendiaries and poisouers are in just as much dauger now as they were before the manifesto, "Done in the city of Washington, on the 25th day of December, A. D. 1868," was made public. No one of these fellows dare come within the borders of the United States. Hence, the only effect produced by the proclamation is to give the nominal bondsman of Jefferson Davis an opportunity to see their bonds cancelled. All this was known to Andrew Johnson before he issued the Christmas document. He knew it was "sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal," that it would have no influence and be a waste of words; yet he issued it. No stronger proof is needed of the utter weakness of his character. But while it does nothing, yet it shows the animus of the man. He desires to help the Southern traitors; he is lost to all sense of his duty to the North, and now when the eve of his administration is approaching, and when any . gentleman would be careful not to do anything to interfere with the policy of his successor, he seizes the last opportunity, and exhibits his impotent malice before all the world. But the country can bear with equanimity a few more such utterances. The day for them is nearly ended, and Mr. Johnson is acting on the principle to "improve each shining hour." There remain just sixtyseven days more, and then Greenville will receive its faverite son-never, never to part with him again. The Supreme Court of the United States. Two PROJECTS affecting the Supreme Court of the United States are being discussed at Washington, and both of them are deserving of success. The one is to pass a law providing for the retirement of such of the judges as have reached the age of seventy years, on full pay. Senator Wilson submitted a proposition to this effect a few days ago, but as yet its prospects of passing are not known. It is said that a majority of the members of the Court are in favor of the scheme. The justices referred to are probably the younger and more efficient members of the Court, who find their elder colleagues more of an enoumbrance than anything else. The only members of the Court who would be affected by the law, if passed, are Justices Grier and Nelson. The former is now about seventy-four years of age, has long been in extremely feeble health, and is said to sleep away the time while sitting with his colleagues upon the bench. Justice Nelson is even older, having passed his seventy-sixth birthday. That men whose lives have been devoted to such burdensome labors should retain all the vitality, energy, and ability of their youth to such an extreme old age is not to be expected. The tenure of their office being for life, under the provisions of the Constitution itself, we cannot demand of them a resignation, after they have devoted the best years of their lives to the service of the Republic. It is nothing more than simple justice to give them an opportunity to retire from the active labors of their positions on full pay, when they have been incapacitated by weight of years for the proper discharge of these labors. Since a law is now in force which prohibits any new appointments to the Supreme Bench until the number of judges has been reduced to less than six by death, resignation, or removal, there would be no occasion for supplying vacancies for some time to come. The other project looks towards an increase in the salaries of the judges of the Court, and this should likewise at once command the indorsement of all thinking men. Under the present law the Chief Justice is in receipt of the paltry sum of $6500 by way of a salary, the associate justices receiving but $6000. When these insignificant sums are compared with the munificent pensions conferred by the British Government on outgoing Lord High Chancellors, a sense of shame, if nothing more, should prompt us to make amends. It is said that, as yet, no member of the Court has made direct complaint of the insufficiency of his salary, but it is well known that Justice Curtis, of Massachusetts, resigned some years ago because of the insignificant salary which he received. The present members of the Court do not all rank among the first lawyers of the country, but it is doubtful if any one of the number would not be able to earn more money by the practice of his profession than he receives from the Government for sitting in the highest judicial tribunal in the country. Nor can a lawyer of liberal education and large practice afford to go upon the bench as things now are. Virtually, the Government can command the services of second-rate men only; and the history of the Supreme Court during the last quarter of a century proves that it has succeeded in obtaining the services of such men only, as a general rule. There are thousands of positions in the gift of the Executive branch of the Government which yield their incumbents much higher incomes, many of them amounting to $50,000 or more per year; and yet the Supreme Court of the United States should be composed of the ablest and most upright men in the country. While a civil service system is sadly needed to reduce the expenses and increase the resources of the Government in all its branches, justice demands that the salaries of the judges of the Supreme Court should be increased to an amount that is, in some degree, commensurate with the labors and responsibilities exacted of them. $0.85. WOMEN'S rights, so long overshadowed by their wrongs, are at last creeping forth from under the clouds into the full light of day. Such, at least, is our inference from an exami nation of the account of Miss M. Beeby, the treasurer of the Women Righters who have recently been congregated about a tea-table out at St. Louis. Miss Beeby, in reporting her operations for a year past, stated that she received the sum of $19 from her predecessor; that one lady had opened her heart and her purse-strings to the extent of $14; and that, after paying some advertising bills, she had $0.85 in the treasury over and above the amount therein when the keys were placed in her hands. This 18 certainly flattering for the hopes of the Female Suffragists. All the current expenses of a year's labor have been paid, and an increase in the funds of the St. Louis concern to the extent of $0.85 is the encouraging result. By a slight exercise of our mathematical turn of mind, we contrive to arrive at the circumstance that St. Louis Women Righters commence the new year with $19.85. From a wise and liberal use of this magnificent surplus great things may be expected. We are even inclined to indulge in the fancy that Mr. James Gordon Bennett may be induced to renew his effort at paying off the national debt by voluntary subscription, on condition that the St. Louis Female Suffragists will pledge themselves to devote all that remains in their strong box, after they have successfully accomplished the great work they have in hand, towards helping Mr. Bennelt through with his herculean task. The simple truth of the whole matter lies just here: no sensible woman desires the privilege of voting, and no sensible women or men are willing to throw away their money in the pursnit of such an ultra-utopian impossibility. The ranks of the Women Righters are filled up with strong-minded women who were originally intended to be of the masculine gender, and with weak-minded men, who would have been women if the eternal fitness of things always prevailed in our mundane affairs. FRANK AND LIBERAL,-The New York Tri. bune calls attention to the fact that among the "public documents" sent free through the post effice, under the printed frank of the "Hon." W. S. Lincoln, member of Congress from the Owego district of New York, are the circulars of a book-publishing concern of New York city 1 Both Mr. Lincoln and the New York publishers doubtless regard the franking privilege as one in the general interest of the dissemination of knowledge.

AARON E. BURR.

BURLINGTON, N. J., October 9, 1868. This is to certify, that in the year 1864 I was pronounced by the physicians who attended me to be in the last stages of Pulmonary Consumption, and that my end was near at hand

At this critical stage of affairs I was induced by a friend to give "Wishart's Pine Tree Tar Cordial" a trial. I did so, and I was almost immediately relieved. I persevered, took fourteen bottles of the "Pine Tree Tar Cordial," and was completely restored to health once more ! Four years have elapsed since my miraculous restoration to health, and I am still in the enjoyment of most excellent health, and would say in all sincerity that, under God, I owe my life and health to "Dr. Wishart's Pine Tree Tar Cordial !" I advise all poor, lingering consumptives, if they value life and health, to give the "Pine Tree Tar Cordial" a trial. AAHON E. BURR.

Mr. Burr is one of the most prominent and influential merchants of Barlington, New Jersey. This Great Remedy is sold by all Druggists throughout the world. Also, at Dr. L. Q. C. Wishart's Great Family Medicine Store, No. 232 North Second street, Philadelphia, Pa. One of the most celebrated and successful regular practising Physicians of the age in attendance, who can be consulted in strict confidence, either in person or by letter, free of charge. This is an opportunity rarely offered invalids in this penurious and moneymaking age: and those in need of professional aid or counsel will do well in making a note of the above liberal offer.
