NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent,

NEW YORK, Dec. 24, 1868. There is nothing to write of but amusement. Along Broadway evergreens have suddenly sprouted forth with mushroom-like growth. Fourteen public balls are to be given between t his and Christmas night.

But though the list of amusements is full, there is not any very great novelty in them.

I observe, by advertisements in Puliadelphia papers, that Mrs. Scott-Siddons' agent is patting her before you in very strong colors, and I will not for a moment suppose that Philadelphians will endorse her as anything more than a brilliant amateur.

lisht amateur.

1. Olive Logan has theen delivering her lecture entitled "Paris, City of Luxury," and met with such success that she forthwith announced herself "received with acclamations," and advertised her reappearance as a reader at Steinway Hall. Her readings consisted of selections from Shakespeare, Dickens, Whittier, Saxe, Tennyson, and heaven knows how many writers besides. Olive is an ambitious and industrious woman, but she is egotistic, and does not always understand what she can and what she cannot do. For instance, she cannot "read" any more than she can act. Her debut, a few years ago, at the Chesnut Street Theatre of your city, proved her failure as an actress. She considers her forte to be writing, and what between writing, reading, and lecturing, she manages to put a comfortable sum of money in her purse. She is one of the Christmas attractions here, and so I mention her.

Entertainments of a unique character every now and then are given at the Union League self "received with acclamations," and advernow and then are given at the Union League Theatre. Sometimes the entertainment is a concert, sometimes a reading, sometimes a lec ture, sometimes a French play, the performers being mostly amateurs. The "Conferences," in French, of Madame Olympe Audouard are the recent sensation; and the best of it is that when you appear there before the footignts, you have for gudlence the cream of the cream of New York society.

York society.

Of all the enterprises of the season perhaps that of the Central Park Garden is the most paying. The success of the summer night concerts given there for several years past has bestowed upon it a prestige which its present manager has taken very ingenious advantage of. Two astounding facts with regard to the artists engaged at this establishment are, that every one of them is "celebrated," and that no one ever heard of them before.

Incendiarism, in all its varieties, is the crime of the day. Every night several stables are set on fire, and every morning fails to bring the guilty ones to justice. In such a case it becomes a matter of curiosity to inquire, "Who are the city authorities, and why don't they do something?" No one, not even the newspapers, seems to understand who the city authorities are, or what are their duties.

Half-way between BENNETT & Co.,
Fifth and Sixth streets. No. 513 MARKET ST.
PHILADELPHIA,
AND NO. 600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. CHRISTMAS CAROL, NOT BY DICKENS.

The snow, the snow, the snow, The falling, drifting snow; Up the alley, down the street. On your head, beneath your feet. Look where you will, above, below, You see the snow, the snow The freezing cold and snow, The pittless cold and snow. The wild wind howls as by it goes, It bites your fingers and nips your toes, And shivering poverty cries in pain As it enters their hearts and out again; O'er hill, through valley, the demons go. The wind, the cold, the snow, The smooth, the frozen snow, How the sleighs o'er its surface go. And the bells they ring, and the echoes bring A chime for the beautiful snow. The eye is bright, and the heart feels light, As you fly o'er the frezen snow. How to largh at the cold and snow Go at once to CHABLES STOKES & Co.,

They are selling Fine Clothing low. Get a sack or surtout, they have all kinds to suit, Of their superior finish there can be no dispute. Then with a snap of your finger as you go on your Way. You can to your friends to all truthfulness say,

Number eight twenty-four, you have heard it before

I tear not the cold or the snow. Now let this suffice, take this friendly advice. Buy your clothes of CHABLES STOKES & CO. No. 824 Chesnut street.

WE SPIVERING MORTALS who stand in mortal fear of winter's biast and its accompanying ills, why don't you go to Alter's famous Coal Yard, at No. 95 N. Ninth street, and got the very best of coal? It is a domestic paradox why men and women will go stamping and fuming about the house because the alate, instead of coal, fire gives forth no heat, when Alter keeps constantly the cheapest and best of fuel. In such a gift as a ton, even more or less, of coalthere is a merit which makes it doubly interesting to the recipient. Thousands of dollars are to-day being wasted on trifles, which, if but turned to some good account, by stocking some deserving poor man's cellar with Alter's coal, would greatly ameliorate misery in our midst; and he who is prompted to do such a kind act, not only to the poor, but to Alter him self, should remember that it is more blessed to give Goods FOR THE HOLIDAYS .- Whatever is neat pretty, or fashlonable in the way of ladies' and gents furnishing goods can always be found at either o the stores of the Woelpper Brothers. Visit the principal store, No. 27 N. Eighth street, and you encounter throngs of buyers. Visit the branch store, No. 245 N. Ninth street, and you are in a place equally as crowded. In both stores plies, rows, and boxes of faorics meet your eyes. Do you want hose Here it is to be had. Do you want neckties? Here they are in colors demure or brilliant. None leave the establishment of the Messrs, Woelpper dissatisfied. False representations need not be feared, nor any notion entertained that slow purchasers will be treated ungaliantly. Go to either of the places, and singular indeed must be your taste if you do not find omething to your fancy.
