

A Year's Work.
 Sitting beside the easement
 In the chill October day,
 While twilight, wrapped in her misty veil,
 Was sobbing her life away;
 Hearing the tinkle of the bell,
 And the chirp of the lingering bird,
 And the whistle of the home-bound hand,
 And the low of the distant herd,
 Watching the red leaves floating down
 From the branches one by one;
 Thinking of all that a year could do,
 Of all that a year had done.
 Sweet as an April morn it rose,
 The love that had failed so soon,
 Strewing her path with bright May flowers,
 Britian and
 It dropped in August's fervid smile,
 It fell like the year's last rose;
 She will scarcely trace its resting place
 (Ninth December's coming snow,
 The blossoms will bloom into his again
 At the call of the summer sun,
 But not time nor tide can undo for her
 What a single year has done.
 Sitting beside the easement
 Till the stars gleam through the sky,
 The large tears dropping, slow and cold,
 On those aged lines of hers,
 They glitter as bright in the red fire-light
 As the diamonds that she wore
 Ere she drew it off, the mocking pledge
 Of a faith that had never been
 The hollow darkness around her creeps;
 The day's long which is run;
 And all that they were but Death could do,
 A little year has done.

THE UNIVERSAL MONEY.

The Royal British Commission on International Coinage.
From the N. Y. Evening Post.
 In February last the Government of Great Britain appointed a commission of fourteen leading financiers, under the presidency of Viscount Halifax, to report to the Master of the Mint, Mr. Alry, the famous mathematician and astronomer, Baron Rothschild, Mr. Thomas Baring, and others, the most competent men in England for the work. Each of these gentlemen is a distinguished authority on the subject, either wholly or partially, such conformity as the conference had in contemplation.
 It will be remembered that the conference recommended a legal standard of weight for all nations, to consist of gold coin, containing nine-tenths pure gold; that all gold coins should be of the value of five francs, or a multiple of five francs; and that a gold coin of twenty-five francs should be struck in the name of the Emperor of the French, and that the gold coins of twenty francs, received everywhere as an international coin.
 The Royal British Commission included several members of Mr. Darwin's ministry, the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Charles Lyell, the Mint, Mr. Alry, the famous mathematician and astronomer, Baron Rothschild, Mr. Thomas Baring, and others, the most competent men in England for the work. Each of these gentlemen is a distinguished authority on the subject, either wholly or partially, such conformity as the conference had in contemplation.
 It will be remembered that the conference recommended a legal standard of weight for all nations, to consist of gold coin, containing nine-tenths pure gold; that all gold coins should be of the value of five francs, or a multiple of five francs; and that a gold coin of twenty-five francs should be struck in the name of the Emperor of the French, and that the gold coins of twenty francs, received everywhere as an international coin.

Among the most interesting and convicting testimony in favor of assimilating the coinage of all nations was that of Mr. Alfred Field, now of Birmingham, formerly of New York, whose experience in trade with the United States enabled him to make the practical advantages of such a change very striking. Mr. Field showed the commission an invoice of his own goods just shipped to New York. It contained four hundred and twenty-one different articles, charged in English currency; and each of these has to be reduced by the importer, separately, to American money, and an estimate made upon it, of what it will bring in New York. Now, the total value of this lot of goods was $1225—an average of more than three dollars at each of the rates calculated. Now, the trouble and time required for this is a serious obstacle to trade and a large addition to the cost of such articles to the consumer.

Mr. Field's illustration from the Halifax trade is still more striking. Goods are bought in Birmingham by tons, cwt's, quarters, and pounds; at so many shillings or pence; and sold in Halifax in gold dollars and cents; expenses are paid in the local currency, in which 16s. make £1 sterling, and books and bank accounts are kept in dollars, while customers buy in the local currency, or in sterling, or in decimal currency, as the case may be; perhaps "tons, cwt's, quarters, and pounds sold say at £15 16s. 6d. per ton Halifax currency." Now, he inquires, "I should like you to conceive what a confusion it would be to have to buy and sell, and think that any man does that for nothing?"

GENERAL GRANT.

His Opinion on the Railroad Subsidies.
 The Washington correspondence of the Baltimore Sun of Dec. 24 says—
 The reports of a conversation between General Grant and several Congressmen yesterday relative to Pacific Railroad subsidies, printed in the papers of yesterday and to-day, are claimed by some to be exaggerations, but an inquiry it appears that there was ground for a portion of the statement at least. In the conversation reference was made to General Grant's approval of the structure, etc., of the Union Pacific Railroad after his recent travel over the route, and which was published in the papers a few days ago. General Grant made a remark, in substance, that although he found the Union Pacific in the excellent condition represented, he had said nothing about granting subsidies to railroads. Those who knew this did not understand General Grant as opposing the existing grants and subsidies, but as (merely by implication) indicating his disapproval of further subsidies to projected roads, or the granting of lands and bonds, except what have been contemplated and provided for by the existing laws. There are reasons for supposing that General Grant's views as to the granting further subsidies of any kind, and also upon the matter of retrenchment and economy, coincide with the well-understood opinions of Mr. Washburne, of Illinois.
 The N. Y. Times' correspondent says—
 Some correspondents and some papers attach undue importance to certain alleged utterances of General Grant made within the past few days. It cannot be reliably ascertained that General Grant has lost any of the reserve or discretion that have always characterized his utterances.
 What he has said may be briefly summed up in a large expression of opposition to any increase of the national debt so long as there is any party in the country in favor of repudiating it, and that the repeal of the Tenure-of-office act would be conducive to a thorough reform of the public service. No one need fear that General Grant is about to indict his views on the country in advance of his official declaration, or that he will assume the role of dictator to Congress at any time.

sembled congregation. The procession was again formed in the same order in which it entered the church, and slowly retired, singing the same hymns as on the previous evening. The service was sung, the service being identical with that of Christmas Eve. The Christmas Festival will be observed at St. Alban's during the Octave, &c., the next seven days.
