from her; it was taken by the true murderers away. On! gentlemen of the jury, remember you stand almost in the relation of God to the poor prisoner at the bar; with power to make or un-make; to let live or destroy. And oh! gentle-men, be like unto Him in tempering your judg-ment with merey. Glorifying yourselves so far as it is allowable to your frail humanity, to do so with His benignity and mercy. Remember that the day will come when the archangel's trump will call you before another bar, where God Himself will act as indge, where you will be impioring mercy from the Great Judge. As you expect mercy upon that day of wrath and dread, when the heavens and the earth shall be rolled together as a scroll, the mercy you now show will plead for you before that gracious Judge; but, oh! remember that if any con-sideration but that of an inflexible determina-tion to give the prisoner at the bar the benefit of every doubt should enter your judgment, if you should be swayed one hair's breadth from giving him all the mercy his case demands, then that gracious Judge will turn into a stern and inflexible indge, and in the appalling volce which met the sers of Cain He will thunder out. "Where is thy bro-ther Abel?"--and, not answering, He will say, "Depart from me;" and in your sight the sen-tinel at heaven's portal will close its ponderous gates upon you for God's eternity. Mr. Mann then addressed the jury for the prisoner:--

136 138 140 at least thirty per cent, when they are in duty bound to pay that extra for the sake of "building up Zion." There are mines of gold, silver, copper, and lead, within forty miles of this place, that, were they located five hundred miles copper, and lead, within forty miles of this place, that, were they located five hundred miles away, in some almost inaccessible wilderness, would have a rush for them from all paris of the world. I have spent several days in some of the mining districts, and am surprised that there are not more done in them, with the facilities they have. "Bingham canon," about twenty miles to the north west of the city, will see a camp of about five hundred men in the spring. There are rich "placer" diggings of very fine gold, from the finest dust up to nuggets one ounce each, besides ledges of gold and silver quartz, very rich, and copper and lead ores which will yield over fifty per cent. in weight of either. I under-stand that a company, which means business, has been organizing lately in Chicago, and has secured several ledges, and will proceed to develop and work them. I will only say that there cannot help being a large fortune in store for them; for, if mines can be worked success-fully any where, it must be there. The spleadid deposits of galeba and silver ore, also, of "Cou-tonwood canyon," are bound to be mints of wealth to those who are not afraid to risk a dular. Wood is in abundance; there is water-power of the best kind every mile of the length of the canyon; labor is plenty, and every faci-lity exists for work on any kind of a scale. It may be asked, Why have these silver-mines the Mormon Church-prohibit miling among its members, and they are bound to discourage its new hold of it; but, thanks to civiliza-tion and railreads and the press, that time is gone by entirely. INDIA. The Hindoos Imitating the Customs of Europeans. The Hindoos are adopting the manners and customs of their English rulers, says the Lon-don Telegraph, with a rapidity which would be gratifying if they discriminated between the good and bad points of our civilization. The Calcutta native who is lucky enough to be rich does not spend his money in building "ghauts," as his foreiathers so often did; still less does he waste large sums annually in offer-ings to idols, or large contributions to the Brahmins. He has probably been educated at the Calcutta University, and comes forth with no religion to call his own, his faith in his ancestral creed shattered and his mind unfitted for the conceptions offered by Christianity. He passes his time in copying the superficial follies and extravagances of the English, driving about in a dog cart which he The Hindoos Imitating the Customs of English, driving about in a dog cart which he has specially imported, and in domestic mo-ments proving himself not insensible to the stiractions of brandy-and-water and cheroots. His humbler fellow countrymen cannot follow him so far in imitation of the sahib, but they have just shown a disposition to adopt one custom known here and elsewhere. "To the amusement of all Calcutta, there has been a 'strike' among the natives. They have heard of strikes in England, and determined to see what the contrivance is worth as a means of raising wages. On the Bompay side the strike has grown decidedly popular, but the Bengalese are slow to fall in with new inven-tions. At last, however, the boatmen who transport goods between the shore and the ships at Calcutta gave up work. They had been for-bidden to land goods at a certain point where experimental jettles are in course of construc-tion, and that restriction upon their liberties they could not tolerate. They therefore sub-mitted to the notice of the Anglo-Indians an unwelcome institution of the mother coun-try. Men who have been "forty years in the country" will be more than ever convinced that we are ruining India by allowing the na-tives to do as they please. In past days the boatmen might have found their experiment costly; but now the Chamber of Commerce acts as arbitrator in their cause, and "prevails" upon them to resume work. After this, who will venture to say that European ideas have not penetrated beneath the surface of native iffe in India? The iruth is that, unless the Indian Government adapts itself to the progressive state of the people, we may very soon find that even the lethargic Bengalee is going much too fast for us. fast for us.

-Rothschild left an annuity of £100 per annum to every clerk who had been ten years in his service.

Mr. Mann then addressed the jury for the

May it please your Honors-Gentlemen of the Jury:-After the lapse of days I have the privilege of addressing you now for the first time; I now have the right of addressing to he jury:-After the lapse of days I have the privilege of addressing you now for the first itme; I now have the right of addressing to the case of the young man who is in your hands, akd in some measure in mine. My colleagnes and I have felt the re-sponsibility that we assumed, and have endeavored fully to discharge our duty, and we trust that when the case is concluded we can say that we have done all that could be fairly done for him. If we have shown you the great truths of this case, you will surely acquit the prisoner; if through any weakness on our part, any want of ability in us, we have not so done, then we have failed in the discharge of our whole dity. Now, gentlemen, I am fully conscious I have upon me the weight of addressing men whose minds are, no doubt, in a measure, made up in regard to this case. I feel that when I come to show you the great truths that should take ready hold in every honest ms - ard we know you are such-i may find the portals of your bearts closed against me. I am conscious that thoogh a man's heart is good and generous, yet If his mind is con-vinced, it will, in a great measure, influence, and, perhaps, suppress the promptings of his natural kindness, and the light of a thousand worlds revealed would not brighten his understandins. When the Great Dispenser of Truth came upon earth and scattered the seeds of good abroad, some of them fell upon rocks and brought no frait, but others fell upon good soil and brought forth iruit an hundred-fold. You, I trust, are like unto the good soil, and when the truths that are to be this prisoner's salvation fail upon you, may they take deep root and bring forth abundant fruit ! Now, gentlemen, this man is before an American jury, before the American people; you are his peers, and in you ne trusts. There are powers that can make and unmake sitates, but you are the power that can make ada unmake men. You are true men, and are therefore told to stant together and unmake flates, bury or true circumstantial evidence, such as was shown in the la

The Commonwealth's officer has told you that he has presented to you a chain of circumthat he has presented to you a chain of circum-stances that are like a strong wall about the prisoner. I think I can show you that they have, by the assistance of some over-zealous men, some false men, and some malicious men, only brought faggots for the fire from which the truth will rise, like the firy phoenix, re-splendent with its own glory.

the truth will fike, like the firy phoenix, re-splendent with its own glory. Now, gentlemen, what would the Common-wealth have you believe? She would have you believe that this young man, living in this house, on that Sanday night about 9 o'clock, instead of being in bed, as was his usual habit, was slitting up in the dining-room. That the old lady went to aleep while he smoked a oigar. That he watched a favorable opportunity, and either went down stairs for the peker or came up stairs with it, and then hit the old lady over the head with it, afterwards throwing her body out of the window, washing his hands and went to bed. Now this is one of their theo-ries. What is another? They seek to make you believe that he was alarmed by the ringing of the bell, that he threw the body into the yard, took off his enffs, collar, boots, shirt, cost, pantaloons, and then hurried to let the girl in. Do you believe, gentlemen, that any murderer ever did such a thing? Now what is another of their theories? They may have forty for aught off?" Yet the Commonwealth says that his embarrassments were the motive to his com-mission of the deed. How faise a theory! Remember, George S. Twitchell went to bed, as was his wont, early on this Sunday evening, and the house is dark. We know that Mrs. Hill was economical in regard to the burning of gas. Now, the prisoner says that, after re-thring to his room, he sat up a little while, and then Mrs. Hill left her room, passed his, and went down. As she passed his door, she stopped and talked with him a few minutes, and then he went to bed, and the next he knew was the ringing of the bell. The first gentle pulls at the bell did not to rouse him, but when he heard the vio-ient ringing he jumped up. His wite wanted to go down, but she was sick and he would not permit her. He pulled on his boots without steckings, slipped on his pants and put on his vest and coat together and went to the bell. As scon as he saw the servant he exclaimed, "Wby, where is mother ?" Is there anything strapge in that? She had gone down starts when he last saw her, and she always answered the bell to let the servant in. Why had she not done so now? That is the natural question. And then he was on the startway he heard the started to the very place where he insturally supposed she had gone, to the dining-room. But when he was on the startway he heard the startle cry of the servant gir in the kitchen, and he immediately went to her, and hee start he impediately went to her, and there for the first time he was bronght in contact with his murdered mother-in-law. She was lying on her face. Did the poor mother ! Will nobody help me to take her in ?" and he let her head drop. Then he and turned it, and then saw the ghastiy and bloody face of the poor old lady, "O, my God ! my poor mother ! Will nobody help me to take her in ?" and he let her head drop. Then he and the girl took her in form the yard, and he gets the blood from her face, he mop dripping back and forth. Then come in the various persous, and someous call the woman had fallen f

the woman had fallen from the window. But the prisoner did rot try to account for it; he clung to his best friend, who had been a mother to him, and called wildly for a doctor, hoping still to bring back that life that was so dear to him. He said he heard a groan, and exclaimed, "She lives; go for a doctor !" Was he then to play detective at that moment, nosing about in the blood for the murderer? On! wise judges we are of one another! The cold, callous men, who never had a mother murdered in their own houses, came and mistook the very movements of natural affection; the very proofs of innocence were at once by them construed cruelly into were at once by them construed cruely into evidences of gulit. There was his wife, in her loose night-robe, like the man at the helm who sees the great deluge too late, calls wildly for ald in the vain hope of saving her mother. FROM BALTIMORE.

A Dreary New Year's Day,

Special Despatch to 31.e Evening Telegraph. BALTIMORE, Jan. I .- Business is generally suspended here to-day. The weather is awfully disagreeable. Rain has been falling in torrents since early morning, with a blustering northeaster, and the streets are literally flooded.

Jones' Falls are considerably swollen. The churches are open, but with few attendants. Many are engaged in making calls, and backs command fabulous prices. John T. Ford has been elected President of the Union Railroad Company. Governor Swann's health is no better. Many calls are making upon Mayor Banks.
