

NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. New York, Feb. 13, 1869.

The New York Ladies' Museum of Anatomy is the title of a new place of amusement soon to be opened. Perhaps I ought not to call it a place of amusement, any more than I ought to name so the present Museum of Anatomy, which is resorted to principally by gentlemen. It will probably offer a good deal of instruction in an indirect way. The Anatomical idea is spreading. Women are beginning to take part in everything. In burlesque there are no men any more on the New York stage. The vivified fashion plates who figure as members of the Boronia have asserted their right to dress as they please. Mrs. Stanton and Miss Anthony are haranguing at Chicago before crowded and emphatic audiences. Papers are before Congress demanding and arguing the right of female suffrage. That a New York Ladies' Museum of Anatomy should be opened seems, then, a very natural and pardonable link in the chain whose fetters were first forged in the metropolis. It "rings" in along with the rest. The new museum will be opened next month. Gentlemen will not be admitted unless accompanied by ladies. The prices of admission will be the same as those charged by the never-failing Madame Byron (direct from Paris) or Mrs. Van-horn. When a lady is accompanied by a gentleman, the gentleman will be expected to pay for both. The object of the new museum is, of course, to upraise the fallen and down-trodden, to extend and intensify the sentiment of New York sisterhood, to teach women to forsake the bonnet for the ball-box, and the limits of circumscription for the license of the campaign club. The late Philharmonic concert here afforded an intense deal of dissatisfaction to all but the friends of the directors. The general public were sold tickets with the assurance that their purchases gave them the freedom of the house, and that positively no seats were held in reserve. When the usual doors of entrance were opened, all the best seats in the house were discovered to be occupied. The orchestra, the oratorio circle, and the balcony tier of private boxes were filled with laughing and "snuffing" friends of the President and Directors; and even the distinguished honor of such intimacy, were obliged to take back seats, or standing seats, or seats in the nearest homeward going stage. Consequently, there has been a bust of newspaper trumpets awaked about the ears of the Yonkers delinquent Directors, who, in their officious disposition to oblige Benson, have disclosed a far more numerous and important class of people than that of which Benson is the generic synonym, viz.—those who paid a good price for seats and had a right to expect them. But this action of the directors of the society is on a par with one or two others. For instance, the placards announcing rehearsals have been elaborately so worded as to convey the impression that a number of distinguished artists would appear upon the same occasion, whereas only one appears on each. These facts have caused the Philharmonic Society of New York to lose, for the nonce, some of its ancient prestige, and to smother of the meretriciousness of a concert hall arrangement.

The recent influx of Cubans has sent a great number of emigrants from that island to this city. These comprise some of the most intelligent residents from Havana. So numerous have these Cuban refugees become that a weekly newspaper in their interests, and of the insurrectionary movement in Cuba, has been started. It is called "The Cuban Revolution," and gives a complete digest of the latest Cuban news. A society of Cuban ladies has likewise been formed, whose purpose it is to raise funds to procure necessities for the hospital service of the Cuban patriot army. A president, vice-president, secretary, vice-secretary, and treasurer, have already been selected from among these dark-eyed heroines of Havana. I mentioned the other day the particulars of an assault which had been committed upon an exasperated chorus singer upon the orchestra and polygot Birgfeld. Adolph is an operative manager, but he is also a Christian. The assault is not impossible. He has proved his Christianity, not only by influencing the Mayor for the release of Tholer—the chorus singer in question—but also by forgiving him and taking him back into the troupe. It reads like a pretty little pastoral in the dissonant epic of New York life. But perhaps the opera house manager is so deeply aware that they have much to be forgiven, that they learn late in life to practise that virtue upon their injurers.

Why should love and suicide always be classed together, unless in unconscious satire upon the fact that they never go together? Living for a woman is an infinitely better thing than dying because we can't have her. The Germans, and more particularly the German population here, don't appear to think much of "chloroform" thrown "Wortley" in love with her as she sits bread and butter, and "Wortley" makes away with himself because the bread is not sliced thin and the butter spread thick for him. Teutonic Gotham takes its morbid cue from Goethe. I am afraid, in this respect. The instance which occurred at half-past 4 o'clock on Thursday morning, seems at least to be in proof of this. An apparently happy young couple attend a ball and return at that hour. At 10 o'clock the separation, while they are exchanging their last words on the threshold, the young man snatches a six-barrelled pistol and shoots the girl, and then himself. Fortune has quarrelled during the first quadrille. He nursed his passion during the polka-redowa, and plotted death during the deuce-tamp. The most atrocious chameleon in the midst of us at present, and is changing all sorts of lethal colors. The spare beds at the Morgue are full, and the coroners eat their meat standing. Madame La Grange reappeared last night as "Norma." A better audience was present than it would have been wise to expect. Her prima donna successfully invoked all the resources of culture to veil her vocal weaknesses. Miss Kellogg is booked for next week. The audience at two o'clock houses are growing scant. At the Grand Opera House it is in vain tosten garlies with her little voice and cogles with her little violin. The French Theatre Grau is so far at the end of his wits and his repertoire that he is going to revise "Gueux" on Monday. ALI BABA.

THE AMERICAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA is a good company to work for, and almost any industrious man can make a good living by acting as its agent. Its claims are easily presented, because they are clear and definite, and because of a very proper preference on the part of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania for "home" institutions. It offers larger inducements than any other company, and good agents are wanted to work in Philadelphia and adjoining counties. Address or call at the Company's office, Southeast corner of Fourth and Walnut streets, and talk with Mr. C. B. McLean about this matter.

CABINET ORGANS.—The success of the Mason & Hamlin Organ Company, now the largest manufacturers of instruments of this class in the world, producing and finding a demand for an average of one hundred and twenty-five organs per week, illustrates what can be done by energetic and persevering pursuit of right principles in business. The following are what may be said to be Articles of their Constitution kept always in view and never deviated from: 1. Excellence in the manufactured article must never be sacrificed to economy and cost. 2. The best only and always.

3. Superiority shall be considered essential as long as improvement is possible. 4. The use of every valuable invention and real improvement must be obtained, at whatever cost. 5. Productions to be sold at lowest possible prices; these to be printed and offered to all alike, but dealing fairly and impartially with the public.

6. Production to be sold at lowest possible prices; these to be printed and offered to all alike, but dealing fairly and impartially with the public. 7. The Company have expended an immense amount in experiments for improvements, in which they have been greatly successful, developing, enlarging, improving, and adding to the well-known Melodeons of former times, until they have become the magnificent Mason & Hamlin Cabinet Organs of the present, to which was awarded the Paris Exposition Medal for superiority last year.

They have just introduced an important improvement, the MASON & HAMLIN IMPROVED VOX HUMANA, a beautiful invention, which is said to be as great an advance upon the Vox Humana already used as the Cabinet Organ upon the Melodeon. They also announce important reduction in price, offering their unequalled Organs at prices which are even less than those commonly demanded for inferior workmanship. This is the natural result of their greatly increased facilities for manufacture, and fixed rule to sell at smallest profit.—N. Y. Tribune.
