TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1869.

The Receiver of Taxes for the Twenty-third Ward.

SENATOR CONNELL'S bill to provide a nice, pleasant, and highly profitable office for some particular friend in the Twenty-third ward has passed to a third reading in the State House of Representatives, and the next we will probably hear of it will be in the shape of a law rushed through both houses with that peculiar facility for which the Legislature is noted in cases of this kind, and signed without delay by the Governor. Senator Connell's scheme is that a Receiver of Taxes shall be elected specially for the Twentythird ward, to hold office for three years, and to receive about $10,000 or more per annum in the shape of salary, perquisites, etc. The work of the office which it is proposed to create for Senator Connell's friend-how do we know that it is not for Senator Connell himself?—has hitherto been very satisfactorily performed under the existing arrangement, by which the regular Receiver appoints a deputy for the Twenty-third ward, who is responsible to him and for whom he is responsible. There is not the shadow of a necessity for the creation of a new office, and if there was, it would be an outrage on the citizens of Philadelphia, and the taxpayers of the Twenty-third ward in particular, for the Legislature to pass or for the Governor to sign such a bill as that of Senator Conmell. Mr. Connell proposes to give his friend two and a half per cent. on all the taxes paid in, and he is further to receive five per cent. for the collection of all delinquent taxes and seventy-five cents on each bill, and In case of destraint, the same costs that constables receive and three cents a mile circular in addition. To the other perquisites is added the sum of fifty cents, which the Receiver of Taxes is to pay out of the city treasury whenever the Twenty-third ward official shall farnish him with proof that a tax has been paid and discharged by judicial sale, and which has not been entered upon the Receiver's books or the registry of taxes as having been paid.

Under these circumstances, the office of Receiver of Taxes for the Twenty-third ward is likely to prove a very profitable and much-tobe-desired office. A competent business man could, in the course of his three years' term, afford to retire and enjoy the fruits of his labor. Senator Connell, or the friend for whom he is exerting himself in the Legislature, will have a very nice thing of it if this gets through, and that it will get through, unless some very decided opposition is made to it, the fact that it has passed to a third reading, and the whole course of the Legislature during the present session, sufficiently indicate. The proposed creation of this new office is an outrage on the citizens of Philadelphia, and we hope that the voice of public opinion will restrain the members of the Legislature from obliging Senator Connell in this matter, if nothing else will. Some of them hope to visit Harrisburg again, and a tolerably decent record will be as much in their favor on election day as their partisan affiliations.

Mawkish Sensibility for Murderers WE understand that a movement is on foo' among the clergymen of Philadelphia to petition the Governor for the pard n of Twitchell, or, if not for his pardon, at least for an indefinite delay of the warrant of execution. We are not aware who these Christian gentlemen are, nor do we propose to reflect on the motives which actuate them in their course. We are ready even to go so far as to say that they believe they are doing a good geed in seeking to save the life of the unfortunate young man. But, after making all these concessions, we cannot hesitate to denounce their action as unwarranted by reason and opposed to justice and the public peace. It may be the misfortune only, or it may be the fault, of the cloth, that its members are continually being led, by a mistaken notion of Christian duty, into interfering in a most remarkably silly manner; and of all their misjudged actions, this is certainly preëminent. Let us look at the state of the oriminal and of Philadelphia. The heinous character of the offense cannot be denied; neither can a dozen men who are conversan with the testimony be found to believe that Twitchell was not guilty. Yet his pardon is asked. Do either the records of the case or the state of society authorize executive clemency in his case? The whole of the details of the murder were patiently examined by twelve jurymen. They were investigated at great length, and by the aid of learned counsel, and the unanimous and almost instantaneous result was the conviction of the prisoner. One judge, impartial and able, listened to all the evidence, and thought him guilty. Four judges reviewed the law in the entire case, and were all of the opinion that both the law and the facts authorized the verdict. Five more judges, the full Bane of the Supreme Court of the State, again went over the ground, and refused to interfere. need not go behind the opinion of twelve sworn men as to the facts and nine able and impartial judges as to the law. There is nothing, therefore, in the case itself to call for its being set aside by the Executive. Does the state of Philadelphia warrant the exercise of olemency at | the present time? The voice of the whole law-abiding people of the city answers no. Never before has orime been so prevalent. Never before have so great a number of murders been committed. Truly, it seems as though we lived in London one hundred years ago, and were about to resuast the highway adventures related in "The Tale of Two Cities." If there continues to be such audacity on the part of criminals, it will be neces sary for each oar to have a watch armed with a blunderbuss to protest the travellers. The highest crimes are committed without hesitation. One officen is stoned to death at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by a party of boys. Another is shot down in the streets. Another is assassinated in his bed-room because he was abusing his murderer with his words. All these show at what small value human life is estimated. And as to lesser orimes, they have lost all their terrors. Now, what is the remedy for this evil condition of affairs. Mawkish sensibility for the criminal? No! the stern execution of the utmost rigors of the law. There are two convicted murderers in jail now. Let them both be hung by the neck until they are dead. We say this not as a revenge for their own crimes, but as a means of preventing a repetition of the crimes in the future. It is for the safety of society, of the innocent, of the old and defenseless, that we call for an execution of these murderers. Yet all this is forgotten in the false sympathy excited by their fate, and the most interested class of the community-the gentle and harmless-are asking for the respite of their own enemies. There is no reason, no Christianity, no justice, in this. The old Mosaic doctrine, that "whose sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed," is not obsolete, but its practical necessity is daily felt. Any relaxation of it at the present time would be a weak display of ill-timed sympathy, and would endanger the innocent. We trust that our clerical friends will confine themselves to the pulpit, and not weaken their denunciation of sin by becoming abettors of the sinners.

More than once in the past have we bidden farewell to Binckley, and yet in some mysterious way this irrepressible eccentricity would contrive to belie our words. Now, however, we confidently assure the world that Binckiey has received a quietus, that he has been put to sleep so soundly that he will know no waking. Yesterday afternoon he received from Mr. J. F. Hartley, the acting Secretary of the Tressury, a note running in this wise: -"John M. Binckley, Esq., Solicitor of Internal Revenue:—Sir-I am requested by the Presi-dent to inform you that your services as S. licitor of Internal Revenue are no longer required by the Government. You are, therefore, hereby removed from the office."

This heartless action on the part of President Grant was in consequence of the receipt by him of a communication from Commissioner Rollins, in which it was set forth that in his estimation Binckley is "a wilful perjurer, or so weak and credulous as to make him the convenient tool of corrupt and malicious men." In consequence of this not very flattering opinion, Commissioner Rollins states that he has not felt justified in assigning Binckley to any duty, and has repeatedly requested his removal. It is further declared by Mr. Rollins that Binckley cannot even claim to be a lawyer, that he never undertook to practice, and that he has not failed to draw his monthly salary, at the rate of $4000 per annum. In view of all these facts, President Grant disposed of Binckley in the manner already alluded to.

The question now arises, What will Binckley do about it? Will he refuse to vacate the desk in the Treasury building in front of which he has been so long engaged in the highly intellectual exercise of dangling his legs in idleness? If so, it may become necessary for Mr. Hartley to put him through the motions vulgarly known as walking after the fashion prevalent in Spain. The operation is painful when the subject is an unwilling one; and as Binckley has displayed in a rare degree the talent of obstinacy, we anticipate a considerable amount of fleshly mortification on his part, when he starts frem his desk with an unmentionable portion of his unmentionble garment in the firm and merciless grasp of Mr. Hartley. When Binckley has once reached the steps of the Treasury, another perplexing question arises. Will he follow Andrew Johnson to Tennessee, and be swalup with him in the gulf of oblivion? or will he encase his lacerated nether limbs in a pair of sevenleague boots, and go strutting through the length and breadth of the land breathing vengeance against the giants by whom he has been at last discomfited? If any other living soul save Binckley were to be subjected to such ignominious treatment, his chivalrons soul would rise in arms against the outrage, as it did about a month ago when he belched forth such blazing words as these:-"I declare, by the Lord, I will avenge every injured hair of McHenry's head!" But in the very epistle in which this flaming sentence occurs, we find the following display of saintly for. giveness: - 'I hate no man, and am destitute of personal resentment for anything which has been simed at myself!" This, we think, settles the whole question, and disposes us to anticipate the emigration of the ex Solicitor to some retired locality in the wilds of Ten-

The City Trusts. In another column will be found the full text of a bill introduced yesterday in the State Senate, to constitute a board of Directors of City Trusts, which appears to be in every way a sensible and proper measure. The bill provides that "all and every the duties, rights. and powers of the city of Philadelphia in all property and estate whatever, dedicated to charitable uses or trusts, the charge or administration of which are now, or shall hereafter become, vested in or confided to the city of Philadelphia," shall be discharged by the city through the instrumentality of a board of fifteen oltizens, of which the Mayor and Presidents of Select and Common Councils shall be ax officio members. The Judges of the Supreme Court, with the Judges of the District Court and the Court of Common Pleas, are to form a Board of Appointment, and the twelve citizens to be selected by them are to serve during good behavior.

This measure is one that has long been needed, for it is certain that the city trusts have not been administered as they should We believe that this bill provides the right means for securing a capable, honest, and intelligent board of officers, and it should meet with no opposition in the Legislature.
