NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 23, 1869. He who half an hour before Saturday midnight found himself within half a block of Delmonico's might well have wondered at the stream of carriages which filled Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street at their junction. It could not be a ball; there was no probability of its being a reception; it might possibly be a dinner party. The last conjecture would have been right; it was a dinner party, at which the feast was shared in and the flow provided by the members of the Sorosis and their gentlemen friends connected with newspapers. From the number of carriages you might have supposed the attendance at the French Theatre was faller than usual, and that that temple of amusement had just disgorged its audience into the dazzling halls of Delmonico's. As early as 6 o'clock in the evening the Sorosisters and their brothren began to assemble, and by 7 o'clock at least one hundred and fifty must have been convened in the parlers up stairs. I cannot say that the assemblage was brilliant, although nearly every one present was more or less "smart." But the smartness savored too much of Bohemia, and the entertainment was too strongly suggestive of the dinner which Mr. Thackeray, in ' Pendennis," describes as having been given by Bungay, the publisher, to some of the London litera i. No dramatists of the first water were present, but the paste was almost good enough to look, at some distance, something like the genuine. The Misses Carey, to whose receptions admission is not to be had for the asking, were not present, but sent "poems" with their regrets. Olive Logan was there, however, and in reply to the toast of "The Gen tlemen," remarked that of all subjects that could have been selected, that was the one of which she knew least. Jennie Jane replied to the toast, "Woman and Newspapers," a subject on which she is supposed to know something, being a woman herself, and having circulated to some extent among the newspapers. Mrs. Elizabeth Oakes Smith, who has been distinguishing herself so greatly of late by contributing a sickly style of articles to certain healthy publications, Mrs. Wilbour, who recites poems and reads Caudle Lectures at the public meetings of the Spiritualists at the Everett Rooms, and Mrs. Love Davis, wife of Andrew Jackson Davis, the noterious Seer and Chairvoyant, spoke on the respective subjects of "Why Should Not Women Propose?" "The Women of the Future," and "Our Foreign Relations, the Ladies of New Jersey." The taale Bohemians were also out in full force. Oliver Johnson, the eloquent and facetious interpreter of the "Whang Doodle," and with the artma of the Independent still about him, maintained a good deal of Christian fun until a very 1ste hour, and Olivet Dyer was present, haunted by the spectre of the Wickedest Man in New York. George Francis Train consumed the greater part of the evening in whispering impromptu epigrams into the earsof that youthful syren Miss Anthony, and the cadaverous editor of Packara's Monthly was dosed and dazed with French quotations from the fanciful lips of Mary Kyle Dallas. It will be seen, therefore, that the supper was far from being a failure. The mouthpieces of Bohemia

There has been a big row at police head quarters, and until Captain Young, the detective chief, is dismissed, there is no chance that the row will come to an end. Of course various opinions are entertained as to the Captain's culpability. Some affect tothink that old Sup. Kennedy, as he is somewhat irreverently called, is merely working out a spiteful grudge which he has long entertained against the Captain. Others are of the opinion that Captain Young is the wickedest detective on the force, and accuse him of having, through the reception of secret rewards, laid up a snug fortune for himself, a little more or a little less than a million of dollars. How this may be I do not pretend to say, being neither in Captain Young's nor Old Sup.'s confidence, but there be those who aver that the impending trial of the Captain will disclose horrors undreamt of in the way of hush money and such ilk.

transacted their duties manfully and woman-fully, and the speeches, recitations, etc., were prolonged until within a few minutes of Sunday

Among other things that will be explained in good time are the difficulties which are about to culminate in Mr. Brougham's withdrawal from the little theatre in Twenty-fourth street. I will not say that it is the general belief that Mr. Brougham has failed as a manager, for to do so would not be to state the question cor' rectly. But there is a general belief that he has not done as well as he might have done, and that he has not shone, as a manager, with that brilliant lustre which distinguishes him as a "star." The secret history of his connection with Fisk's little opera house in Twentyfourth street has yet to be written, but it is one which reflects no discredit on the author of Pocahonias, although it is crowded with incidents which prove him to have been one of the most worried and cruelly tried of modern man-

The comedy of School is most exquisitely placed upon the stage at Wallack's, and scarcely one word of dispraise can be said of any of the actors. Perhaps the drawl of Mr. Owen Mar lowe is a little too monotonous, though I am afraid his admirers might think even this remark hypercritical. At the first rising of the curtain, so artful is Mrs, Jenumgs' disguise as "Bella" that she is unrecognizable for the first few moments, and everybody is wondering who the actress of apparently only seventceu can be. The characterization is very sweet and charming from first to last. In "Naomi " Tighe" | Effie Germon discovers a character where rollicksomeness can amuse itself to the top of its bent, and accordingly she is quite at home. Throughout the whole play only one word occurs calculated to "shock the sensibilities of the most delicate female," and that word spelt in a stage whisper in the ear of "Jack Payntz" (Mr. Lester Wallack). If our clerical grandfathers thought it no shame to witness such plays as the School for Scandal, why should modern pharisees put on airs and stay away from the mild-drawn school of Mr. Robertson ? Speaking of putting on airs reminds me that that term is being widely applied to such velocipedists as have forsaken their first loves. and are now indulging in the debauchery of rantoons. The rantoon is a velocipede that goe, on three wheels, and is being fallen much in on three wheels, and is being father much in love with by those who do not succeed bloyen. I it is that it can be worked by the hands as well as the legs, and that the whole family of rabbitskins, chest-protectors, and so forth, can be given to the winds. It is a sort of locomotive dumb bell, and provides the occupant with an anti-indigestion exercise in a mild and whole-

Dr. Harris, the superintendent of sanitary matters, has set himself an immease task -that of visiting each of the nfty-lour thousand dwelling-houses in the city during the coming year, for the purpose of reporting on their fitness or unfitness for the purpose for which they are used. If the superintendent were a very young man, his enthusiasm might be good-naturedly smiled or pooh-poohed at. As it is, he ought to know better. Half that number of dwelling bouses would include more than all it is necessary to visit. The tenement houses are the only thoroughly objectionable ones, and probably do not number much more than twenty thousand,

The marriage of Prince Louis Marie Ferdinand Pierre d'Alcantara to Miss Amelie Isabe; de Hamil, on Saturday afternoon, at the Jeffer son Market Police Court, is the last sensation in Gotham fashionable life. The details will have already been presented to the readers of THE TELEGRAPH, so I will not here repeat them-Since the ceremony, however, their rooms at the Clarendon have been beset in a frantic manner by the guests of the house, and the shoddy aristocracy don't know which end of it s uppermost. To morrow Miss Fanny Davenport will have a benefit, when Mr. Craig's burlesque of Barbe Bleue, O'Keefe's comedy of Wild Oats, and the farce of Mr. and Mrs. Peter White will be performed. Mr. E. L. Davenport will appear as "Rover" in Wild Oats. This is a very attractive bill, and as Miss Davenport is a favorite, there will doubtless be a fail house.

If has been hinted that Mr. E. L. Davenport will not appear at the Arch Street Theatre for his daughter's benefit on to-morrow evening. Such is not the case. Mr. E. L. Davenport will positively appear on that occasion as "Jack Rover," in the comedy of Wild Oats.

On Friday evening Mrs. Creese will have a benefit, and on Saturday Mr. Hemple will invite his friends to open their purse-strings. On Monday next the new comedy of Women Rule will be produced.

The Grand Opera.—We have had so little opera this season that the intelligence of the return of Mr. Max Mareizek's combined company, strengthened by the addition of such a popular and fascinating prima donna as Miss Clara Louise Kelloga, will be particularly gratifying to the music loving citizens of Philadelphia. Mr. Mareizek will open at the Academy of Music on Wednesday evening, March 31, and among the interesting features of the season of nine nights and two matiness will be the production of Meyerbeer's opera of Il Prophete and Donizetti's Belisario. Madame La Grange, who will shortly sail for Earope, will appear in her great role of "Fides" in Il Prophete. This grand work is so seldom performed that it will be as good as an entire novelty to the mejority of opera-goers. It was performed a short time since in New York with great success, and was much praised by the press of that city.

The company will include Madame States,
Miss McCullough, Madame Rotter, Madame Cellini, Signor Boetti, Signor Orlandini, Herr

Formes, Signor Antonucci. Signor Barili, Signor Dubreuii, and Signor Ronconi.

The subscription list will be opened at Trumpler's on Thursday next, at 9 A. M. The subscription for the nine nights will be $12.
