NEW YORKISMS.

NEW YORK, April 15, 1869.

I don't wonder that foreigners grow disgnsted with this climate, and that even the geniality of Dickens was put to a severe test by an American estarrh. After a faint show of spring weather. winter re-clutched us yesterday, and the heaviest of heavy clothing was not too comfortable in the streets. Perhaps this blood-stirring atmosphere had something to do with warming the consibilities of the car conductors and drivers in regard to their rights, for those of the Second avenue line simultaneously deft work, and for some hours that thoroughfare was void of pub-He vehicles. A strike there was what might be expected, as indeed strikes might be expected upon all the routes, for the wretched employes are underpaid and overworked, and are abused alike by public and by press. Who ever thinks of pitying a car-driver or conductor? The stage and omnibus driver is condoled with, the hackman is compassionated, the private coachman elicits our sympathies, but when is one expresmien of commiseration wasted upon the sixteen-hours-per-day toller who drive passengers from one end of the city to the other, or sees to their safe and comfortable bestowal? The drivers and conductors upon the Second avenue cars have lately become so morbidly sensitive upon these facts that, on an attempt being made on the part of some new director to increase the hours of work, they consentaneously abandoned their several charges, and stationed themselves along the line to visit with violence whoever should presume to supply their places. The revolt was partly due to the "extra car" system. When a man falls to put in an appearance at the proper hour in the morning, he is placed upon one of the extra cars, which are employed only on two or three days in the week, and is "docked" in his pay for those days when the extras are not running. The strike is probably prelusive to others in other departments of labor and the likelihood is that during the summer as many strikes will be theard of as though the clock of labor had been wound the wrong way and was sounding a constant alarm. Considerable alarm has been created in the bosom of "Madame Byron," with whose name you may not be wholly unfamiliar. She occuples a residence in East Seventeenth street, advertises in the Sunday Mercury and the Herald. and periodically sends forth placard-bearers, brandishing announcements to the effect that the only and original Madame Byron reveals your whole life to you from the cradle to the grave, and does various other interesting and pleasant things for a consideration. Instead of being fair, fat, and forty, she bears the appearance of being fast, florid, and fashionable. She is a clairvoyant and spiritual test medium, and her manner of conducting business is similar to that of all people of ther class. Visitors write a number of questions on little slips of paper, which, before looking at them, Madame crushes ap into little pelicts, and, throwing them upon the floor, professes to give the correct answer to them through the mediation of a spirit-friend of the writer's. A Mrs. Goulet, who had applied for information about a watch that had been stolen, and had paid eighteen dollars for information that was far from satisfactory, came to the conclusion that a fraud had been practised upon her, especially after calling again and again upon Madame and being refused a seance, FIFTH EDITION under prefense that Madame was enthralled by some profound spiritual workregard to a loss ings in the Bull's Head National Bank. Being atterly anable to bring her to terms, Mrs. Goulet importuned a detective for his services. The detective went to Madame and introduced himself as a elerk in the Bull's Head National; whereupon the clairvoyant, fixing upon him her fine penetrative eyes, remarked conclusively, "Young man, you are weak in your mind; you had better go home," and so brought the interview to an abrupt termination. The regular process of law was then observed, and in due time the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter carried her "meaty" form (she is a large, but not too preponderating female) into the Jefferson Market Police Court Mrs. Coulet, however, having failed to appear, nothing has yet been done with Madame Byron, with whom "the conditions" have not been favorable the last day or two, owing to her having been subjected to the ignominy and chagrin of ap-

While I am upon spiritual matters, I might as well mention the arrest of two notorious "pills" of the profession, who for the last few weeks have flamingly advertised themselves on Broadway as the only reliable and legitimate "spirit photographers." Their pretensions were that they could photograph the form and features of any "spirit-friend" of any sitter for a photograph, and that the spirit-photograph would faintly, but recognizably, appear side by side with the fleshly one. The price for each sitter was fixed at ten dollars, and lest it should be supposed that a mercenary feeling dictated this arrangement, it was explained that this rate was expressly stipulated by the "angel-world," because the spirits were anxious to exclude the vulgar multitude. The sneering skeptic might object to this, his olfactories informing him of the presence of a rat of unusual size, but then the art of Mr. Mumbler, the photographic medium in question, was not meant for skeptics, but for gulls and dupes. He found plenty of these at ten dollars a head, and no doubt there are scores of simple-hearted men and women in whom imagination takes the part of memory, and who, having had their photographs taken by Mumbler, are ready to swear that the "spirit-faces" faintly discernible beside their own likenesses are the faithful pictures of friends and relatives in the other world. If this be so, spirit faces bear a most remarkable resemblance one to another. Mr. Mumbler's latest visitor was a Mr. P. V. Hickie, a blonde and brilliant young man, with sandy chevelure and a gold pen, who used to write some of the best editorials a year and a half ago in Ahern's Evening Gazette, subsequently obtained a contributing position on the Herald, and is at present employed in winnowing scientific items for the World. His last winnowing exploit took him to Mr. Mumbler's, who, failing to give him the satisfaction he paid for, was arrested at Hickie's instigation, and is now awaiting examination, The facts shortly to be elicited by Mr. Hickie promise to form a brilliant feather in the cap of Bohemianism.

Fanny Janauschek has been elaborately cautioned by the critics not to risk her reputation by performing in public in English; but what reason is there why she should not be as successful as Vestvali, Madame Scheller, Bandmann, or Fechter? She has an insatiable desire to bring to her feet such audiences as crowded around Ristori. Hitherto her houses have been exclusive only in the sense of being exclusively German, and her ambition is to have Fifth-avenue applanders. As a feeler, she put forth "Lady Macbeth," the other day, to a small andience of private friends, and I have heard worse broken nglish than was cracked on that occasion. ALI BABA.

CUBA.

The Execution of Leon and Mediva in Havana A Riot in the City-The Volunteers Fire on We have the following important intelligence from Havana, dated the 10th inst:-Due notice had been given by the various city papers that Mons. Francisco Leon and Augustin Medina would be garroted to-day, having been convicted as leaders of the riot in Figuras street in January last, when the first named, without any assistance, kept a respectable number of antagonist at the same time. But no notice had been given that the usual Sunday assassinations, massacres, and the rest of the performance, had been changed to Friday. Everybody expected some kind of a performance yesterday, and nobody was disappointed. Long before 11 A. M., the hour fixed for the execution, the surrounding streets and places looking towards the Punta were filled to overflowing by a motley crowd of the Cuban, Spanish, and negro rabble. Leon came out of jall with a firm walk; and on passing a fellow-prisoner shook hands with him, and was told by that prisoner "Not to forget his commission." On reaching the plaform Leon requested to be permitted to say a few words, which was granted. Beginning in a low voice he asked God to forgive him for his sins, that he died contrite, and under the full conviction that his death would be terribly avenged by his companions. Then, raising his voice, he shouted loud enough to be heard by all present:—"Viva la Independencia." "Viva Cespedes y mueron los Espanoles." At that moment a shot was fired at the condemned, the bullet passing between him and the executioner, the latter pushing Leon quickly into the fatal chair. In half a second the iron ring was adjusted, a turn of the screw, a convulsive movement of the muscles, and Leon was no

While this execution was taking place on the scaffold, murders of another nature were being enacted outside of the cordon of volunteers formed around the platform. A negro shot at one of the mounted policemen, but missed him, and the police officer cut him down with his sword. The rush which then took place cannot be described; several hundred carriages and about ten thousand people tried to run away from the scene. Men, women, and children were thrown down and trampled on by the ex-cited multitude. Shouts of "Muera Espana," with an occasional shot or cry of pain, were heard, and in less than two minutes the whole place was cleared. At the same time, the second prisoner, Medina, had been brought to the platform and executed. He tried to make himself heard, but the music drowned his voice. Shots were fired on the populace by regular troops and volunteers. Severa persons dressed in the volunteer uniform fired from a honsetop on the Calrade San Lazaro, Eight persons met their death during the melee, about thirty shots in all having been fired by volunteers into the crowd and by the men of the battalion of artillery just returned from the interior. The volunteers guarding the scaffold, about 1000 men, did not join in the tumult, remaining at their post and behaving well. Had they fired on the people, the deaths would have amounted to hundreds The fighting and shouting were done by the rowdy and reckless portion of the Spanish and Cuban population, and no excuse can be found for either party, as the Cubans made no attempt to rescue their countryman. The vivandlere of the 6th Battalion of Volunteers, who resides in the immediate vicinity of the Punta, shouted Viva Espana! from her windows, and was assassinated for doing so. There is no excuse for either party in these occurrences; and if done to keep up and increase the hatred be-tween Cubans and Spaniards, and to afford a few murderers a chance to satisfy their cangninary instincts, and then classify their crime as a patriotic action, the means to do it are a decided reproach to the insurgent cause. After the firing, and while hunting after sup-posed fugitives, the volunteers entered several houses, which they left in a deplorable state. The volunteers are auxious to have such chances, and if the ultimate result could in any way benefit the Cubans, it might be well to afford the opportunity; but when a few unarmed men, generally, defy a large armed majority, knowing that such majority has all the advantage, then the attempt is no longer commendable or heroic, but foolish and criminal.

This morning, in the matter of the contested elec-tion cases, counsel for the respondents came into Court and stated that on Friday last the contestants had closed their testimony before the Examiners, having amassed a volume of testimony amounting to $12 pages, of which they (counsel for the respondents) had been furnished with no copy; as yet they had had no time for perusing this to find exactly what they had to meet, and therefore they asked thirty days' time to prepare their case and open their testi-mony; promising thereby to save time, and close, in all probaboutly, about the middle of July.

mony; promising thereby to save time, and close, in all probability, about the middle of July.

On the part of the contestants this motion was opposed on the ground that the respondents' counsel had been present at the taking of the testimony, and had the fullest opportunity to know what was its character, and as there was really no necessity for this postponement, to grant it would only occasion great delay in a matter for which the public demand a speedy decision.

Judge Allison, on behalf of the Court, while deprecating the course of the counsel and examiners in holding but three sittings in a week, and regretting

Afternation, April 16.—The Senate was called to order at neon, and, after prayer and the reading of the journal, Mr. Anthony, the President protein, vacated the chair in favor of Mr. Morrell, and from his seat on the floor spoke as follows:

Mr. President, before the Senate proceeds to the regular business of the day, I desire to interpose an act of justice. It will be remembered that a few days ago certain persons of respectable standing, private citizens, my constituents, were assailed in this chamber in an extraordinary manner; considering that the assault was made by one of their own Senators. I may say an unprecedented manner. I spoke some words in reply in vindication of the honor of Hobode Island, in defense of the sacred memory of the cead, and the reputation of the living men among them, those to whom I have referred.

This assault was not confined to those vague generalities which it is difficult to enswer, because it is almost impossible to define. It contained at least one specific, positive, defant allegation that the persons assailed had proposed to enter into a conspiracy for enriching themselves at the expense of their fellow-citizens, for arranging their own prosperity, breaking down the others engaged in the same business—a charge which, although defining nothing prohibited by statute, is so abhorent to all sense of fairness, so damaging to honest reputation, as not to be credited except on ample proof or open confession. A charge made in this chamber has a peculiar significance and a peculiar effect. It does not die upon the air with the breach that utters it; it is placed upon the air with the breach that utters it; it is placed upon record; it is spread upon the pages of the Compressional Glober; it is pread into history. The Senatis has high privileges—privileges essential to its dignity and its involability—privileges guaranteed by the pon the floor, and chars not entitled to seats in this chamber have privileges which although not defined by statue, not protected by the fundamental law,

HARRISBURG, April 15.—The Senate bill reducing the par value of the stock of the Philadelphia and Southern Mail Steamship Company was passed Also, the bill incorporating the Barren Hill and Roxborough Railway Company, The vote on the general militia bill, which was postponed yesterday until next January, was recon-sidered, and after all the sections but the sixth had been stricken out the bill passed. It now reads as

Be it enacted, etc., That the minimum for all volthe renacted, etc., That the initiality of all volumer military organizations of all arms of the service is hereby fixed at thirty-two non-commissioned officers and privates, except when called into actual service, when the minimum shall be the same as is now required by law.

House of Representatives.

The House bill reducing the width of Berks street between Fourth and Sixth was defeated. Mr. Nice moved to reconsider the vote by which an act allowing parties to charge 7 per cent. Interest, by special contract, had been defeated at an earlier stage of the session. The vote was reconsidered, but the bill was again defeated by 42 ayes to 48 nays. The following bill passed both houses finally this morning, after having been discussed and amended at various times during the last few weeks:—

"That the Treasurer of each county shall keep a book, to be called the receipt book, in which shall be recorded the receipt book, in which shall be recorded the receipts of all payments made to him on account of taxes paid on unseated lands, designating the number of acres, warrantee named, and name or names of owners or varrantee named, and name or names of owners of alfeged owners of each tract of land, the townsh where situate, and the amount of taxes paid, and when and by whom paid, a certified copy of which receipt, under the hand of the treasurer, and the seal of the county, shall be the only evidence of the pay-ment of taxes, except where said receipts have been duly recorded in accordance with the provision of the first section of act of 9th March, 1847. That the birst section of act of win March, 1841. That the owners of unseated lands shall have two years from the passage of this act within which to have their receipts for taxes on unseated lands recorded in said book, where the same have not been already en-tered in a book heretofore kept by the treasurer of the county for that purpose; that no parol evidence shall be received to prove the payment of taxes on

The following bill has also passed both houses That from and after the passage of this act it shall That from and after the passage of this act it shall not be lawful for any passenger railway company, or their officers, agents, employees, or any other person or persons, to use sait on any passenger railway track or street within the corporate limits of Philadelphia, and each violation of this act shall be a misdemeanor, and shall subject the offender, after indictment and conviction in the Court of Quarter Sessions of said city, to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars, or an imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, or either, at the discretion of said Court.

During the last few days various schemes have been pressed upon the attention of the Legislature, and efforts were made to hurry through the passage of a number of bills of at least a doubtful character.

By a tacit understanding among all the Philadel-

of a number of bills of at least a doubtful character.

By a tacit understanding among all the Philadelphia members, no bills having any bearing upon the interests of the city were allowed to pass without being read in full and subjected to a close examina-The result has been to secure more care and perhaps better legislation than for the last five years. Not a single bill was allowed to pass by its number or title, as is usual at this hurried stage of the sesons.

The following bill has passed both houses:—
That the councils of cities and boroughs in this State be and they are hereby authorized to provide for the inspection of milk under such rules and regulations as will protect the people from adulteration and dilution of the same. An act authorizing German school teachers to be appointed in German counties of this State at the request of one-third of the parents, was discussed. Chaplain Edwards moved to amend by also teaching Weish, Irish, and Scotch. Not agreed to.

Meeting of Flour Dealers.

CHICAGO, April 15.—A meeting of flour dealers was held in this city last evening, for the pur-pose of discussing the propriety of establishing a distinct grade of flour in addition to the present mode of inspection, to be known as the "Chicago standard." The following resolution was adopted:—That in the opinion of the meet-ing for the establishment of grades, the selection of standard, extra, and superior are desirable, so that, whenever parties to trade so desire, flour can be inspected as sound, full weight, and equal to such standard, if it can be accomplished without interfering with the present general custom of inspection and trade.
