The Meeting Last Evening—The Compowder Forge Hammer. The meeting being called to order, with Mr. Cole-man Seliers in the chair, after the usual business Mr. Thomas Shaw, at the request of the Secretary, exhibited his gunpowder forge hammer and de-scribed it as follows:— The object of this invention is to furnish a reliable applique for the forging of large and homogeneous

The object of this invention is to furnish a reliable appliance for the forging of large and homogeneous management, compact, and all powerful, in all these points excelling and completely substituting the steam hammer. The engine is constructed in this wise. The founda-tion is an anvil block, secured to which are two traide pillars, between which the hammer is secured and guided. Also a secondary anvil, which is sus-pended immediately over the anvil block, the weight of this secondary anvil being supported on two air chambers which will be hereafter described. The bottom of this secondary anvil is provided with the usual forging dies, varying with the kind of work to be done.

to be done. The top of this secondary anvil terminates in a The top of this secondary after terminates in a spinder of a diameter corresponding in size with the punger of the lower end of the hammer or rain. The metal to be forged is squeezed and pounded between these two anvils, and as there is consider-between these two anvis, and as there is consider-able weight in the secondary anvil it is necessary that it should be supported off from the work when not in operation. For this purpose, the air chambers are provided. These consist of two plain brass cylinders provided. These consist of two plain brass cylinders firmly secured to the guide pillars, open at the top for the reception of the piston rods, and pistons fitting the bore of the cylinder, making a tight joint, by what is known as hydraulic packing. The upper ends of these piston rods are secured to a crosshead from the secondary anvil. It will be observed that if these pistons are lifted observed that if these pistons are lifted entirely out of the cylinders, and then allowed to de-scend in them again, they would compress the air in the cylinders, until it was sufficiently contracted to cause a pressure equal to the weight it has to sup-

In case the bulk of air is too great thus supporting the anvil, or too high above the work, a safety valve is provided, the spring of which is controlled by a thumb screw, which can be so regulated that the secondary anvil can be supported at any desired dis-

Secondary and can be supported at any desired dis-sance above the work. A pipe connects the two air chambers, causing the pressure to be the same in each. As air escapes from the safety valve, however, there would be danger of having it all lost, were there no provision for its renewal, but this provision is made in the fol-lowing manner:—There is a great pressure of air and the source strate of the hommer in the exlinder of gas, at every stroke of the hammer, in the cylinder of the secondary anvil; here is an inexhaustible supply of air and gas, under pressure, and all that is of air and gas, under pressure, and all that is neces-sary is to tap this cylinder by a pipe connected with the piston rod, which is made hollow for the passage of the gas. This pipe is provided with an adjustable theck valve for the retention of the gas. By means of this supply, and safety valve, the secondary anvil can be raised and lowered at will. The hammer is caught and held between the guides by a long friction rod, secured by pivoted arms to one of the guides in such a manner that when the friction rod is pulled down the distance between the guides is diminished, causing a pinching upon and friction to the hammer sufficient to arrest and hold its weight suspended.

Its weight suspended. It will be observed that this action only occurs on the down stroke, for the up stroke pushes the friction rod in a direction to diminish the friction, allowing the hammer to ascend freely, but holding it against any attempt to descend, and thus playing a very im-portant part in the operation of the engine.

In addition to this automatic action of the engine. In addition to this automatic action of the friction-red, it is completely under the control of the opera-ber by means of a lever connected with the same rod, by which it can be held entirely out of touching rod, by which it can be held entirely out of touching distance of the hammer, or can be made to catch the hammer at every stroke. The platform is placed some 18 or 20 feet above the ground, and on it there is sufficient room for the engineer and fireman to operate. The platform placed at this distance permits the smiths to have full room to operate without interforing with the engineer. engineer.

A piston rod and piston are held suspended from a cross beam at the extreme top of the guide pillars, and the top of the hammer is bored for the reception of the piston. The object of this is to form an air ashion to arrest the hammer and throw it violently own again when doing heavy work. The hammer is worked in this wise :- A small cartridge of powder is thrown in the cylinder of the secondary anvil, and then the hammer is released and allowed to fall, forcing its plunger into the cylinder, exploding the powder, which drives the hain-mer up again, and at the same time forces the secondary anvil violently down upon the object to be forged, thus producing a pressure of 16,000 pounds for every square inch of area of the plunger; and this pressure is continued for a prolonged period, as compared with ordinary pounding, and affords the kind of pressure that is necessary for the production logeneous forgings.

The Funeral Ceremonies of the Late John Lawlor, Eeg. This morning the remains of the late John Lawlor, E. were deposited in their final resting-place. The body had been removed from the Girard House, where Mr. Lawlor died, to the dwelling of Mr. Rob-ert Everett, No. 1528 North Broad street, and thence the funeral took place. The line of carriages which followed the hearse was quite lengthy. The coffin was heavily rimmed and ornamented with silver, while a wreath and a cross of immortelles lay upon its too. The cortege proceeded to St. Mary's where wreath and a cross of minoritelles lay upon its top. The cortege proceeded to St. Mary's Catholic Church, on Pourth street, above Spruce. On reaching there the coffin was carried in and placed on the head of the main isle by the following pall-bearers:--Captain Hincken, Thompson West-cott, William Meeser, Henry Taggart, George Farrell, and J. D. Sherer. As the body was borne into the church the choir sang the hymn, "That Day of Wrath." Requi mass was then celebrated by Rev. T. W. Power." mass of "Ohnewald" was rendered by the choir. Requiem At mass of "Ohnewald" was readered by the choir. At the Offertory "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" was sung by Madame Josephine Schimpf. After the ele-vation of the sacred host a solemn dirge was sung by Mr. T. E. Harkins. The mass ended, the absolu-tion of the body was given by Rev. George Strobel, Rev. James O'Relily being also in the sanctuary. The sermon was then preached by Rev. Mr. Strobel, at the conclusion of which the body was removed and deposited in a vanit in the yard of the church.

THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA-THE JUNIOR EXHIBITION YESTERDAY. -- Twice a year the chapel of the University of Pennsylvania is the scene of considerable interest, the advent of a junior exhibition and the senior class-day. Yesterday the former came off in the presence of a large delegation of ladies and gentlemen. There were seven orations, all of which were of good composition, and were well delivered. Probably the two finest speeches of the day were those of Mesers. Fry and Ward. The former of these gentlemen chose for his theme "Man and Nature." The composition was full of vigorous, carnest think-ing, and pervaded throughout by a high-toned sen-timent which did no less credit to the heart than to the brain of the author. He seemed to be very gente-rally approclated. Mr. Ward's oration, "The Work of the Sont," was another effort much above the or-dinary standard of college cessay. Messars, Neilson, Christian, Griscom, Martin, and Miller were the other members of the class who participated in the exercises of the exhibition. We regret that we can-not notice their performance at length. The progentlemen. There were seven orations, all of which not notice their performance at length. The pro-ceedings of day wound up with a Junior supper-whereat the faculty of the University were well rewhereat the faculty of the University were well re-presented. Many pleasant speeches were made, and everybody's health drunk in the usual way until the happy party separated at a late hour. We congratu-late the Trustees, officers, and students of the Uni-versity upon the impulse which seems to have been given to the college interests this year. From all we can hear, a spirit of goaheadlityeness has deve-loped itself, and bids fair to become a permanent in-stitution. Such celebrations as yesterday are evi-dences of present prosperity and happy auguries for the future. The celebration yesterday did great credit both to the zeal of the students and to the care of their instructor, Professor Cleveland.

CONCERNING THE INCOME TAX.—Deputy Commis-sioner of Internal Revenue J. W. Douglass recently gave the following decision concerning the deduction from income of payments by surctice :---

Hitherto it has been held by this office that "losses as surely cannot be deducted from income." However cor-rect this may have been under the law as it stood previous to the amendatory act of March 2, 1867 (and of this I ex-press no optimion), there seems to be no reason, either in equity or in law, for refusing such a deduction under the present statute.

press in such as the problem of the above maneed act several additional dedictions were allowed; among them "dobts ascertained to be worthless." Payment by a surety makes his principal his dobtor. Then, and ordinarily not till then, there is a right of action. Whether this debt is worthless or not, is a question to be determined to such particular case. The claim of the surety against his principal may be perfectly good; he may have tall security; or the principal may simply be absent, or only temporarily embarrased. Money paid as surety is not therefore necessarily and invariably lost; but when it is found to be a loss, it may be deducted under the head of "dobts ascertained to be worthless."

A HOUSE ROBBED AND ONE OF THE ROBBERS CAP-A HOUSE ROBBED AND ONE OF THE ROBBERS CAF-TUBED.—Yesterday alternoon the family of Mrs. Harding, living on Ludlow street, above Fortieth, left the house for the purpose of visiting some friends. They had hardly got away before two fel-lows stepped up to the door, which they opened by means of a faise key. They then ransacked the dwelling and bundled up the silver ware, a watch, and a pair of gold spectacles, and then vacated the premises. A citizen saw them going out, and know-ing that they did not belong there, gave the alarm. The thieves took to their heels, closely pursued by the gentleman, who threw a brick after them. The missile cracked one of the fellows in the back and felled him to the grownd. By this means he was felled him to the ground. By this means he was caught and locked up in the station, where he gave the name of Richard Kenne dy. On him was found a portion of the above articles. Alderman Lungren sent him to prison for trial.

Sprague Calls Nye a "Harlequin"-The Senate Amused. WASHINGTON, April 22.—As soon as the Senate met to-day an effort was made by Senator Conkling to proceed to the consideration of executive business, but it being understood that Senator Nye, of Nevada, wished to reply to some of Sprague's speeches, the motion to go into exccutive session was voted down. Senator Nye then proceeded to address the Senate. He said for the first time in his life he had been called upon to notice a personal assault upon himself. It came from the honorable Senator from Rhode Island, Mr. Sprague, who saw fit to designate him (Nye) a harlequin. He would read from Webster's Dictionary to see what that word meant. Senator Nye here opened a huge dictionary and began reading the definition of the word harlequin, to the great amusement of the Sprague's speech where he (Nye) was designated as a harlequin. Senator Sprague had said that the whole Senate was corrupt. That was a bold charge, and could only be made by the Boanerges from

Rhode Island. Mr. Nye then went into a lengthy defense of the legal profession, which had been assailed by Senator Sprague. He was induced to think that the honorable Senator's health was not good that day. He must have taken something that did not agree with him. He was not content with assailing the Senate as a whole, but he went back for eight years, and assailed the memory of the living and the dead.

Mr. Nye then proceeded to make a defense of General Burnside, of Rhode Island, and had sent to the Clerk's desk and read certain letters written to Gen. Burnside by Senator Sprague, when he was Governor of Rhode Island, during the war. These letters were complimentary to General Burnside.

Owing to a break and landslide on the Vermont Central Railroad, at Braintree, the mail train due here yesterday afternoon was five hours late, and the express train was three hours late. The water is rising about an inch per hour, and the bridge over the river here, on the Montreal road. is not considered safe for the passage of trains. Passengers on this road will be taken to Fisherville, on the Northern road, and carried across. There is a washout at Charlestown, and passengers have to be carried across in boats. A wash out between Wells river and Newburg prevents trains from going beyond Newburg. A raft of 15,000 logs, belonging to William Barron, White River Junction, broke loose last night.

Debate on the Spanish Constitution. By Atlantic Cable

By Atlantic Cubic, MADRID, April 22.—The debate in the Constituent Cortes yesterday, on the new Constitution to be adopted, was very interesting. Senor Figueras, one of the leaders of the Republican party, strongly urged the point that the only alternative left to the majority in the Cortes was to restore the Bourbons to the throne or to inaugurate a republican form of government. Senor Zorrilla, of the majority, replied at length, taking the ground that the restoration of the Bourbons was absolutely impossible, and that a republic would be a national calamity. He assured them that the majority would certainly succeed in obtaining a king. ing a king.

Sprague Angry-Whom He Terms the "Great and Little Curs" of the Senate. Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. WASHINGTON, April 22 .- The main object of Mr. Nye's speech was the defense of General Burnside. Inasmuch as the audience seemed to expect something spicy from Nye, and did not get it, his speech was generally voted a failure. Chandler, of Michigan, also defended General Burnside, and was followed in a similar strain by Senator Abbott, of North Carolina, Morton, of Indiana, also defended Burnside, and paid a Senate. Senator Nye then read from Senator tribute to his military career.

FROM WASHINGTON.

After all the Senators had concluded their culogies on Burnside, Senator Sprague arose and commenced a speech in reply to Nye and others. He then directed his attention to Senator Anthony, and accused him of defending on the floor of the Senate men who were no better than cutthroats and thieves. He referred to Brown and Ives, of Rhode Island, who, he said, owned Anthony. He then characterized Nye and Abbott as great and little curs.

He had been accused of being crazy and drunk In the words of Paul before Agrippa, he assured the Senate that he was neither, but that he spoke the words of "Truth and soberness." If he was drunk or crazy, there were multitudes behind him who were equally intoxicated and equally insane. He said he had received a large numbe of letters from different parts of the country These letters were open to the inspection of the Senate. As a general rule he would not give the names, but if it was necessary he should take that liberty. He then took from his desk a package of letters and shook them at the Senate, like a pack of cards. The first he read was from Henry Brook Adams, a son of Charles Francis Adams. The letters, as a general rule, are in-sipid, and were read in so low a tone by the Senator, that no person paid any attention to them.

Advices from Rear-Admiral Rowan.

Rear-Admiral Rowan, commanding the Asiatic quadron, reports from Hong Kong, under date of February 18, that affairs in China, Japan, Manilla, and Siam, so far as the interests of the United States are concerned, are satisfactory. The civil war in Japan has dragged along slowly during the summer, and the setting in of winter compelled the belligerents to go into winter marters at the close of the season

It will be observed that the inertia of the second ary anvil is overcome before the explosion of the powder, by reason of the pressure of the confined air forcing the anvil down upon the mass, the speed thus obtained considerably augmenting the force of the blow.

It is estimated that a hammer falling twenty feet. weighing 5000 pounds, provided with a plunger six-men inches diameter entering a chamber forty inches deep, igniting a one-fourth pound charge of powder, will cause a blow to be struck equal to a dead pressure of 3,500,000 pounds, sufficient, in fact, to forge our largest cannon, and equal in effect to Krupp's famous steam hammer of 125 tons, which cost fully ten times as much as the above apparatus. The report of the resident secretary, Profess on "Novelties in Science and the Mochanic "including an account of many important dis coveries which have lately been made in these de-partments, was then read, after which the various committees on the library, models, etc., were ap-pointed, and the meeting adjourned.

ST. GEORGE.

The Festival of the Patron Saint of Merry England.

To-morrow being the 23d of April, there arrives again in the round of "notable days" the one held especially sacred to the memory of St. George, Eng-land's patron saint. Of course it will then behoove every faithful subject of her Britannic Majesty. every native of the merry isle, every young Bull, son every native of the merry isic, every young Bull, son of John, Sr., to observe the time at least with some degree of formality. Now, who is St. George? In the calendars of the Latin and Greek Churches he shares the honors of the 23d of April with divers other Sainis, but the Saxon martyrology has dedicated it to him alone, and ever since the Conquest his festival has been duly honored by the devoted Britons. As is the case with many other saints, his worldly earer is involved in considerable mystery. Accord-ing to Buller, the most approved authority on the ing to Butler, the most approved authority on the Catholic Calendar, St. George was of noble Christian parentage, and having entered the ariny, rose to a high rank therein. But he had the misfortune to live in the evil days of Diocletian; and that blood-thirsty, Christian-hating heathen having shamelessly persecuted the sect of religionists to which St. George belonged, the latter was induced thereby to withdraw from the army that he might, with some show of propriety, upbraid the tyrant for his cruci-ties. In doing so he made a sad mistake, from a worldly point of view, for it resulted in his losing his head. In a spiritual sense, however, this was the most fortunate thing that he could have done, as he was, in return, at a subsequent period, raised to the bight denotes of sense his high dignity of saintship. We are inclined to discard this theory of his life

We are inclined to discard this theory of his life, since we find no mention of a dragon therein, and the connection of St. George with the Dragon is something that must not be severed. We therefore much prefer to believe that he was born some time during the second century, in Epiphania; that his father was a mere fuller; that he annassed a large fortune by unscrupilous practices, in supplying the army with bacon; that he was forced to abandon his native land because of this; that he subsequently made zealous profession of Arianism, and became Archbishop of Alexandria; that he there plandered the pagan temples, and oppressed Christian and heathen alike with exactions; that he was expelled by a tiging of the neople but soon reinstruction became by a rising of the people, but soon reinstated by force of arms, and again cast into prison, and there nur-dered by the infuriated populace. This raised him to the dignity of martyrdom in Arian eyes, and in the course of two or three centuries he came to be considered a saint of the very first rank, and the patron of chivalry and arms. In this last capacity, long after he was dead and buried, he fought long after he was deal and buried, he fought valiantly during the crusade at Antioch and Acre; and tradition likewise has if that, once upon a time, he slew a dragon in Lybia, thereby saving a beautirul maiden from a painful death. At different periods he became the paton saint of Sicily, Aragon, Valencia, Genoa, Malta, and other localities, as well as of England, in addition to having numerous knightly orders named in his behalf. In 1844 his featival was made memorable by the creation 1844 his festival was made memorable by the creat in England of the Order of St. George, or the Blue Garter; since when he has continued to grow steadily in favor with the English people. The force landed, threw out skirmishers, and took up a line of march. When they had reached the rear of the village the natives opened fire, which was returned by the English with their breechoading rifles, soon dispersing the Chinese. The Chinese loss was about forty killed and fifty wounded. The English loss was comparatively nsignificant. The Viceroy of Canton had ordered a gunboat and some Imperial troops to co-operate with the English, but they arrived too late.

The following stations and movements of versels of the Asiatic Squadron are reported by Admiral Rowan:-
