CITY INTELLIGENCE. THE DRINKING FOUNTAINS.

An Interesting Meeting of the Society-Congratulatory Speeches.

Last night about one hundred gentlemen, with their iadies, interested in the Drinking Fountain Society recently organized in this city, waited upon Dr. Wilson C. Swann, the President of the association, at his residence, No. 1812 Walnut street. The object of the gathering, as it was subsequently expanied by Lehman P. Ashmead, Esq., was to congratulate the Doctor upon the benefits which, through his instrumentality, had been derived by the public through the establishment of the fountains in various forthe of the city.

aris of the city.

Richard Ludlow, Esq., after the statement by Mr.

Shmead, addressed the Doctor in the following

Ashmead, addressed the Doctor in the following language:

At the solicitation of a unumber of gentlemen representing the varied interests of Philadelphia, a pleasant duty has been assigned to me this evening in tendering to you their thanks for your labors in the cause of humanity, and their thanks for your labors in the cause of humanity, and their thanks for your labors in the cause of humanity, and their thanks for your labors in the cause of humanity, and tengratulate you upon the success which has attended your faithful efforts.

The present occasion is one which calls for Itica's congratulations. Congratulation on our part that, by your unstable the condition of the condition of the condition of the condition of failen man, anticipates the wants of the brute creation in staying the hands of rockless cruelty by the strong arm of the law, and providing fountains along our highways where they may drink long draughts of cooling water during the continuous abors of the day. Congratulation of on your part that your own personal efforts have been seconded by a society of ladies and gentlemen who have given practical utility to thought by the erection of a beautiful fountain in our city, from which the pure stream of water flows that will refresh the fainting traveller and make glad the poor heast, who, though mute, has a language of thankfulness which speaks from the eye, and which, to the good and merciful master, is so easy of interpretation.

The practicability of the object in which your efforts are enhisted commends itself to our entire community. A generous liberality has distinguished many of our citizens in the furtherance of great enterprises which are in every way, writy; but why, in providing for the destitute and the homeless, should we forget an object so worthy as that which seeks to have always near at hand fountains of pure water, where the beast can be refreshed and tired man sake his thirst?

It the fall of a sparrow escapes not the eye of the Almighty, and the cattle upon a thousand hills are

Dr. Swann replied as follows:-Dr. Swann replied as follows:—

Ludlow, Ladies and Gentlemen—To say that I am matifiedly this visit and complimentary address, would be avery inadequate expression of my feelings. I assure you, air, that I have listened to your remarks with more than sodinary interest, and thank you, in the name of the society I have the honor to represent, for the cordial sympathy and support which you have so feelingly and generously expressed in your address.

In casting our eyes over the extended area of this great and growing city, with its population of over 700,000 inhabitants, we cannot but feel impressed with the ample provision that Providence has made for its prosperity and happiness, and we should not, by any neglect of ours, permit these benefits to slumber unimproved, without an effort to bring them within the reach of all for whom they were intended.

bring them within the reach of all for whom they were intended.

It must be admitted that one of the greatest and most indispensable blessings that can be conferred upon a community is an abundant supply of water, and although we enjoy this advantage to its fullest extent at our residences and public institutions, yet we cannot be unmindful of the fact that no provision has at any time been made for the thirsty and tired laboror, and the animals under his care, while promoting the commerce and business operations of our city.

During the bot months of summer, the suffering caused by the absence of water in our streets is beyond description, and those who have been unavoidably detained in town at this suitry season of the year have, no doubt, like myself, witnessed, with painful emotions, the exhausted horse struggling with his heavy burden over our rough pavements; his breathing fast and hard, and his limbs gradually becoming weaker and weaker, until at last he call to the ground, a victim of what we call cruelty and appreciation.

In many instances this may, no doubt, be true, but the responsibility falls not alone upon the persons having these animals under their care, for they are often in as suffering a condition as the poor beasts they drive. The wheels of business and trade are not under their control, and cannot be stopped by heat or cold, and those interested in its onward progress should provide such means as will lighten their labor and afford refreshment to all engaged in it.

It is the intention of the officers of the Philadelphia Pountain Society to remedy this evil, and to distribute along the streets and public thoroughfares fountains and troughs where both man and beast may refresh themselves, and recover their exhausted energies. But in the execution of this great work, involving so large an expenditure of money and labor, the officers of the society expect the hearty co-operation and support of their fellow-citizens, trusting to their own intelligence and practical knowledge to calculate the benefits, both to the health and morals, that must result from so liberal a sapply of water during the summer months to the labiling classes of our people.

The society, although the first movement of the kind that has so far been inaugurated in this country, is not an original indea. In London a similar association was formed some years ago, having among its officers some of the most influential and respectable gentlemen of that great city.

original idea. In London a similar association was formed some years ago, having among its officers some of the most influential and respectable gentlemen of that great city, who with laudable zeal and enterprise undertook the work of soliciting contributions, and drawing to their embrace a large number of subscribers.

influential and respectable gentlemen of that great city, who with laudable zeal and enterprise undertook the work of soliciting contributions, and drawing to their embrace a large number of subscribers.

I need not say that the enterprise met with universal approbation, and the society, according to a recent report, has erected one hundred and seventeen fountains and minety-nine troughs, and although dispersed and spread over an area of one hundred square miles, and subject to the injury through thoughtless mischief, wilful malevolence, and unavoidable accident, to which such structures are every day liable, no injury has yet been sustained by any one of them, showing conclusively how universally the objects of the society are appreciated by a grateful commanity.

At one of these fountains two thousand persons were seen to drink in five hours. At another in Bishopsgate nearly seven thousand drank in a single day, and at the Royal Exchange, where three jets are constantly flowing, more than eight thousand have been known to drink in the same space of time. If these three fountains which I have mentioned afford relief to more than seventeen thousand thirsty people in one day, how great must be the benefit bestowed upon the aggregate number who resort to these fountains in other parts of London!

Let us then emulate our transatlantic brethren in this noble work. Let us bring into more general use the waters of the Schuylkill. The same spirit of enterprise which directed our forefathers in their efforts to raise that limpid stream from its sandy bed, and send it in copious currents through the gilded halls of luxury and case, will also aid fis in bringing the same to our fountains, where the weary and overheated laborer and his half-famished animal may fin bringing the same to our benevolent and Christian associations who are laboring to elevate the moral condition of their fellow-man, and to bring him to a proper understanding of his spiritual accountability, and tell them that the most dangerous enemy to virtue their influence, and personal efforts in carrying out the objects we have in view.

The officers of our society ask no compensation for their labor, and will receive none. Their motive is solely philanthropic, and, as such, they confidently appeal to the friends of humanity to aid them in their meritorious work. So far they have received the liberal encouragement of a large number of their fellow-citizens, many of whom have not only become members of the society, but have authorized fountains to be exceed at their own expense. I thank you again for this visit and complimentary address.

At the conclusion of the address Dr. Swann was warmly and enthusiastically applauded.

The speakers who followed were Rev. John Chambers, Dr. E. Morwitz, Aubrey H. Smith, Esq., and Washington L. Biaden, Esq., who made short addresses cologizing the purposes of the Foundain Society. OFFICERS.

ELLIOTT & DUNN'S NEW BANKING HOUSE,-Per-ELIOTT & DUNN'S NEW BANKING HOUSE.—Perhaps one of the most pleasant duties of a journalist, in any city or town, is to record evidences of the march of improvement around him. Of late Philadelphia has been extremely rapid in her progress, not only in stretching away for squares blocks of new buildings, but also in tearing down business edifices from sites already comparatively improved, and erecting in their stead structures handsome, ormate, or massive. These improvements have all been carefully noted, and now again the grateful task is ours to score one more in the already lengthy list.

For some time past the old, steady, and well-known banking firm of Messes. Elliott & Dunn have had in course of construction a new Banking House, on Third street, below Chesnut, directly opposite The Evening Therefore office. A few days since it received the last finishing touches, and yesterday was occupied by the firm.

This attractive little building is in the Franco-Italian style moderately orne. It is eighteen feet wide by firly feet deep, and two stories in height.

The front is executed in marble, selected from the Manchester quarries. The body of the building is of brick. The first or principal story has a cornice appropriate to the style, supported on ornamental brackets, connected at their springing by a well-defined string-course. Immediately over this cornice rest the window plinths of the second story. And the whole frontispiece is crowned by a highly ornate chief cornice, of elegant proportions, tastefully adorned with boildly carved rosettes. The centre of this cornice has a graceful segment-broken pediment, with finial in perfect keeping with it, as a finish to the whole, having its tympanum ornamented with a circular centre, and two side langular panels neatly sunkmoulded. The principal story, devoted wholly to the bank, is of easy access, being but one step above the side-walk. Its front is divided into three openings, namely—a window and two doors, the former ten feet six inches high, and the two latter thirteen feet six inches; all three are five feet wide, capped with elliptic heads, and have a broad rosetted band-moulding continued round the whole of each opening. The spandrels have a well-defined shield ornament raised on each. The second story has three ornamental blocked antæ, with long sunk panels between the blocks, dividing the front into two sections, each having a window three feet six inches wide by ten feet high, semi-circular headed, and completely surrounded with a blocked band-two sections, each having a window three feet six inches wide by ten feet high, semi-circular headed, and completely surrounded with a blocked bandfinish, with a highly wrought, boldly-raised keystone and supports sunk-panelled (as are all the blocks), and 'presenting a richness of effect with appropriate strength. The spandrels in this story have large rose ornaments raised on them. The under part of the faciae forming the caps of the sections is indented and carved appropriately, having drops at regular intervals. Two highly enriched consoles finish the cornice on each end of the front, the caps or blocks of which have carved wreaths on them. The doors and window sashes are of polished ments in the second story. The first story or bankoffice is lighted in the rear by a skylight. The second story is twelve feet six inches high, divided into two apartments, together with dressing-room and watercloset, and is lighted in the rear by three windows.

The building is heated by hot-air generated from a furnace in the cellar, and carried to the flues by tin
the country of the coun pipe; and the gas through terra-cotta pipe. The heating flues rise in the second story the height of a table, and are covered with marble slabs. The roof is covered with in and painted. This bank building, as finished, goes to prove how much may be done in a small space, without at all crowding the front with apparently extraneous embellishment.

a small space, without at all crowding the front with apparently extraneous embellishment.

Its architect was Mr. Samuel Sloan; the marble work was done by Mr. William Armstrong; the carpentering work by Messrs. Cook & Furman; the cabinet work and fixtures by Messrs. Kemp & Garrison; and the gas-fixtures were put in by Messrs. Miskey, Merrill & Thackara.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the business of the firm will be largely increased with their removal to the new location.

HEARINGS AT THE CENTRAL STATION .- At two o'clock this afternoon, before Alderman Kerr, at the Central Station, Peter Miller had a hearing upon the charge of stealing a horse and wagon. It appears that he came to the station yesterday and confessed that he had stolen a team, the property of Robert Ervin, Forty-seventh and Market streets. Inquiry ascertained the facts of the confession to be true, and he was held for a further hearing.

Also Daniel Price had a hearing upon the charge of assault and battery on Thomas Quade, at Third and Christian streets. Held in $800 ball.

The notorious Hugh McAnany, bailsman for the more notorions Jimmy Haggerty, offered himself as bail in this case, but the alderman very properly rethe company, some 350 gentlemen, sat down to discuss the good things so bountifully provided, and the affair passed off in the most pleasant and spirited manner. W. P. Gallagher, Noble Grand of the Green Hill Lodge, presided, assisted by Vice Grand

W. Lewis. The Treasurer of the organization, T. M.
Henderson, and W. H. H. Porter were also present.
Wit, song, and sentiment were the order of the evening, and the festivities were kept up till a late hour.
Mr. James D. Whetham, the oldest member of the lodge, in response to a toast to Odd Fellowship, gave an interesting history of the Order, interspersed with reminiscences of the Green Hill Lodge, which he

The address of the latter gentleman was given in response to the toast "Woman," and its sparkling wit and genuine humor fairly convulsed the company. Some fine singing was indulged in by Mr. Pemberton, and the festivities concluded with the "Star Spangled Banner." Altogether it was a delightful reunion, and will long be remembered with pleasure by all who participated in it.

The Secret Agent to Cuba-President Grant's Action Dependent on the Nature of His Report.

Congressmen Leaving for Home

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

Grant and the Cuban Insurgents. WASHINGTON, April 27 .- The Government is daily expecting the return of a secret agent sent down to make a personal inspection of the condition of affairs in Cuba. This agent is an army officer, in whom Grant has great confideuce, and the policy of the administration towards Cuba will be shaped according to the character of the report he makes. The President takes no stock in the statements of what is known as the Cuban Junta in this country, because many of those connected with it are working for personal aggrandizement, and are interested in giving a peculiar coloring to everything connected with the movements of the insurgents and Spaniards, Grant is known to be favorably inclined towards the patriotic Cubans, but he wants to know something about their strength and resources, as well as their prospects of success, before he places our Government in any other relations towards them than those now existing. Thinning Out.

Tennessees and old Virginias were also in request. The railway market was excited on the Vanderbilt New York Stocks, Central rising to 172%, Hudson to 153%, Harlem to 143½@144 per cent, and very little of the lastnamed stocks offered. There was some depression early in the day on part of the Western list, the St. Paul's displaying especial weakness, and the Northwests duliness; but Fort Wayne, on the other hand, was buoyant, Hock Island firm, and Michigan Southern steady; and later in the day the recovery was ern steady; and later in the day the recovery was general in the weak stocks of the forenoon, and the whole market, in sympathy with New York Central, the favorite of the day, left off steady."

From the Herald,

"There was a decided renewal of the speculative fever throughout the different markets to-day, and a fever throughout the different markets to-day, and a sharp upward turn in the great majority of the securities dealt in at the Stock Exchange. The street is eminently 'bullish' in its tohe and tendency, and the 'bears' who put out their contracts for the expected depression resulting from the recent stringency in money have gazed with dismay at the gradual but sure obliteration of their margins consequent upon the steady rise of from twenty to forty per cent, which has ensued in some of the leading speculative stocks. The onward march of prices was merely checked by tight money, Indeed, for some of the list it was progressive notwithstanding. With the return of easy money the advance has been still more marked. The railway list has been the great feature, and those which are more or less in great leature, and those which are more or less in the path of the route to San Francisco, via the the path of the route to San Francisco, via the Pacific Railway, are more or less reflective of the inspression that in the general impetus which is to be given to railway stocks by the completion of that route each will have its share of increased traffic. We have already pointed out the danger arising from a too enthinsiastic discounting of the effects upon the earnings of our Western roads when this enterprise shall have been finished. The immense de-cline in breadstutis at the West, ranging from forty to fitty per cent., should not be disregarded in mak-ing calculation of the profits of our railways during the ensuing season, particularly as it may more than offset the advantages to be derived from connection with the Pacific route. The Stock market was strongly active for the general list, and prices in some instances touched the highest ever known. New York Central, for instance, sold at 173, the compact force being 1691.

"The other "Vanderbilf stocks," as they are classified—Hudson River and Harlem—likewise caught the infection of the hour, and advanced to 1534 and 44% respectively, the report being revived that Mr. anderbilt, in organizing his grand through route to the West, will arrange for scrip dividends upon these latter roads to equalize them in value to New York Central, preliminary to consolidation therewith. Fort Wayne was another feature of the railway list in this Wayne was another feature of the railway list in this general advance. The express stocks were also active and higher, white of the miscellaneous list Pacific Mail and Western Union were the more baoyant. The situation to-day was one to really puzzle the most conservative of financiers. If, on the one hand, this sudden appreciation of value is based upon the expected prosperity of the country in the ensuing future, it is only what the more enthusiastic have prophesied ever since the administration of General Guant was decided upon by a majority of the people of the United States. If, on the other hand, it is the work of the cliques and combinations of Wall street, who have conspired to advance prices to make a market for their long-hoarded stocks, its success is stupendous.

"In the flovernment market the five-twenties of 1862 touched the extraordinary figure of 121%. The London quotation was also higher—80%—while the simultaneous advance in consols to 93% (83%) is evidence of the fact that the monetary case which is now experienced in the New York market has 'its counterpart in London. It is a curious spectacle, this growing abundance of money at two of the fluancial centres of the world, and may well arouse the conservative financier to scrutinize again the monetary horizon. It will be well if this activity is not confined to the stock exchanges, but expands to the more legitimate channels of business. The issues of 1867 were firmer and higher through the combined influences of the general buoyancy of the day and of a scarcity of delivery in 'short' sales,"

The Sale of Gold Coin.

NEW YORK, April 27.—The Assistant Treasurer again advertises gold coin for sale to-day, but he has modified the announcement so as to remove the objections of last week made to its form. Instead of leaving the amount to be sold wholly indefinite as before, so that the Treasury might suddenly accept bids for many millions, and also produce a general panic in the money market, he now declares that the amount will not exceed one million of dollars per week, and instead of leaving to be implied that the highest bid shall National Sunday School Convention.

Newark, April 27.—The National Sunday School Convention will hold their third session at the First Baptist Church, in this city, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday next, from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M. George H. Stuart, of Phila-delphia, will preside, and the convention will have representatives from all parts of the United States and Canadas. Various important matters will be considered for the more efficient work of the Sabbath School. The citizens of Newark have made arrangements to give the convention a cordial reception. General Runyon will make the welcoming address on Wednesday morning.

Fire at Bangor, Maine.

BANGOR, Maine, April 27 .- A building owned by Michael Schwartz, and occupied as joiner-shops by Wharff & Wernsur and Pattel & Goodwin, and by E. S. Gorham as a paint-shop, was destroyed by fire this morning. An adjoining building was considerably damaged. The loss will reach $3000, on which there is a partial insurance. The fire was the work of an incendiary, Return of Jewett, the Missing Banker.

AUBURN, April 27 .- F. G. Jewett, of Skaneateles, the missing banker, returned to that village last night, and resumed the banking business this morning. His friends are greatly relieved by his return, as it was feared he had been foully dealt with.

Sprague Gets it Heavy from a Captain. General Burnside having denied over his own ignature a charge made by a Providence corespondent of a New York paper, of cowardice at the battle of Bull Run against Captain Francis M. Goddard, of the First Rhode Island regiment that gentleman fulminates the following challenge, addressed, as it will be seen, to Senator Sprague:-

A CARD FROM CAPTAIN GODDARD. To the Hon. William Sprague, United States Senator from Rhode Island:—

Availing yourself of your position in the United States Senate, and abusing its privileges in a base and cowardly spirit, you have, in your speech of the 8th instant, charged me with hav-ing deserted my post in the hour of danger, while a member of the First Rhode Island

Regiment.

General Burnside having, over his own signature, denied the truth of your assertions, it remains for me to pronounce you before the world, and with a full apprehension of the world I use, a liar, a calumniator, and a poltroon. I am, etc.,

FRANCIS W. GODDARD.

Late Captain Carbineers, First Rhode Island Regiment.

The Odd Fellows' Celebration-Connections with the Pacific Railroad-An Account Greatly Exaggerated.

Sr. Louis, April 27.—The Odd Fellows' celebration at Kansas City was a fine affair. The procession was one of the largest ever witnessed in the city. An oration was delivered and a banquet given in the evening.

The directors of the St. Joseph and Denver Railroad decided yesterday that the road should connect with the Kansas Pacific Rallroad at the 100th meridian.

A Slonx City special says the first reports about the sinking and explosion and loss of life on the steamer Usilda, above that city, were grossly exaggerated. The boat was loaded with discharged soldiers coming from forts along the Upper Missouri. When eighty miles above here she struck a snag and sunk. No one was lost, the troops and crew all getting ashore

St. Louis, April 27 .- A Presbyterian church at Wyandotte, Kansas, was burned yesterday.

WHAT IS DYSPEPSIA?

DYSPEPSIA HAS THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS:

1. A Constant Pain or Uneasiness in the Pit of the Stomach, which is caused by a permanent contraction of the stomach upon undigested food. It generally begins immediately or a short time after eating; is generally very severe and obsti-

2. Flatulence and Acidity.—Those symptoms arise from the indigestion of food, which ferments, instead of digesting.

3. Costiveness and Loss of Appetite.-These symptoms are the effects of the unnatural condition of the food in the stomach, and the want of pure bile and gastrie juice. The stomach is often painfully distended by wind; the appetite is sometimes voracious. 4. Gloom and Depression of Spirits.—This state unfits many for the enjoyment of life, and is caused by the impure blood furnished by imperfect digestion. In this stage of the disease many persons commit suicide. There is a constant foreboding of evil, and an indifference and positive inability to perform the offices of life. 5. Diarrhœa.-After being at first costive, the sufferer is afflicted with diarrhea, which is owing to a diseased condition of the bowels produced by the undigested food, which is evacuated in the same condition as when esten, and of course gives no strength to the system. 6. Pains in all Parts of the System-Arise from the action of impure blood upon the nerves. They are felt chiefly in the head, sides, and breast, and in the extremities. In many cases there is an uneasiness in the throat, with a sense of choking or suffocation; the mouth is often clammy, with a bad taste and furred tongue,

7. Consumptive Symptoms and Palpitation of the Heart. -- Many persons pronounced as having these diseases have, in fact, nothing but Dyspepsia, the lung and heart disease being only symptoms.

8. Cough.—This is a very frequent symptom of Dyspepsia, and leads very often into coufirmed Consumption.

9. Want of Sleep,-A very distressing symptom, resulting often in mental derangement.

10. Symptoms of External Relation,-The patient is affected painfully by cold and heat, which is owing to unnature! dryness of skin, and the skin is often affected by eruptions and tetters. The gloomy dyspeptic avoids society as much as possible.

11. Vomiting,-A frequent and distressing symptom. It relieves the pain, but emaclates and wears out the patient.

12. Dizziness, Dimness of Vision, Headache, and Staggering in Walking.-These are very alarming symptoms, which are speedily removed by our medicine, but if neglected are quickly followed by numbness and sudden death. 13. It is impossible for us to give all the symptoms of Dyspepsia in so small a space, but the above are considered sufficient, if we add that the patient loses his memory and regard to surrounding objects, and frequently becomes morose and sour in disposition. We should say, however, that pains in the joints and stiffness of the limbs, which go by the name of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, are produced by Dyspepsia. Also, a hardness of the muscles of the abdomen, which becomes contracted and hard, and in some cases the belly sinks, instead of being gently prominent.
