The Executive Committee of the Lutheran Orphans' Home at Germantown make an appeal in behalf of the institution, in which they say:—"This institution has been so long crippled in its benevolent operations by the want of means, and has been so long burdened by a heavy debt, that it is now proposed, by a concentrated effort from all parts of the Church, to pay off the entire debt, and, if possible, relieve the Home forever from embarrassment. This is proposed to be done through the medium of a Fair, to be held in the city of Philadelphia, some time during the coming autumn, of which particular time and the green entires will be given. When it is remembe held in the city of Philadelphia, some time during the coming antumn, of which particular time and piace due notice will be given. When it is remembered how much was accomplished, through this same instrumentality, in behalf of the sick and wounded soldiers during the summer of 1864, and when we reflect upon the great wealth and liberality of our Church, which has done so much in past years in the way of benevolence and charity, we feel sure that a result will be attained commensurate with the importance and magnitude of the work we have undertaken. We appeal to you in behalf of the with the importance and magnitude of the work we nave undertaken. We appeal to you in behalf of the indigent orphan children, who naturally look to us for support and education; many of them are the children of the noble men who gave their lives in children of the noole flet who gave their rives in maintaining the union and perpetuity of our country. Both Christian feeling and patriotism, therefore, prompt us to carnest effort, and even sacrifice, in be-half of these little ones whom God has given us to educate and nurture for Him. Our appeal is to all portions of the community; to the various industrial portions of the community; to the various industrial classes, to give the products of their skill and work-manship; to men of all professions, to contribute to their substance to advance the object we have in view; to the women and children of our Church, to do what they can to further the cause.

The Second Congregational Church is without a pastor, by the resignation of Rev. W. H. Williams, who goes to New York.

MAY DAY .- The 1st of May-a month synonymous with beauty, gladness, and gushing freshness—has come, not in smiles, but in tears. Perhaps, after all, however, what we call tears are but the sprinkled dreps of water with which the coy maiden laves her face ere she puts in an appearance fully dressed and blooming. At any rate, for years back almost uniformly, has not this been her custom? The "May days" of yore we know no more. The elders among us tell us of sunshine, mirth, and frolic on the first of the month, and we hear their stories, as we look of the month, and we heat their actions, as we look upon oid pictures, with the consciousness that the like will never, mayhap, be repeated. Even the bleasant and jolly poets of old used to delight in comparing this month to a beautiful maiden, clothed in sun-blue and scattering flowers, while she danced to the muster of birds and rippling streams. The in sunratue and scattering nowers, while she danced to the music of birds and rippling streams. The poets of our day sing in a different strain. Nevertheless, we know that the alonds, and gloom, and chiliness of to-day will be succeeded by warmth and joyousness to-morrow. Pretty May never ye, has sulked it for a full thirty-one days. Neither will she this year. Trees, bushes, and the grass of the field have opened their leaves to welcome her, and so inviting is their call that she must respond. Good-by. viting is their call that she must respond. Good-by, fickle April!

YOUNG VS. DANA.

The Great Newspaper War-Horace Greeley Explains the Case at Length. The New York Tribune of this morning contains the following article on its editorial page, by Horace

Greeley:- Mr. John R. Young has been for some four years Mr. John R. Young has been for some four years employed on the Tribune, and for nearly three years has held an important though subordinate position in its editorial department. Late last week, we were shown a package of what were said to be (though not signed with his name) his private, confidential letters, written mainly in 1867, to his most intimate friend from boyhood and the associate in some newspaper enterprise or enterprises at Philadelphia. With these letters were two or three others—also strictly private in their nature — which were said to have been written by his brother and by others of his intimate friends and business 2 associates—the purport of the written by his brother and by others of his intimate friends and business associates—the purport of the whole being that the writers were in great straits for money to sustain their enterprise or enterprises, and that they suggested to, and discussed with, each other various plans for filling the aching void. They were also troubled about the lack of news for their bantling, and (being refused the describes of the Associated Press on any terms) resorted to shifts to supply the deficiency. Interspersed with these were various anticipations, speculations, criticisms on certain of his associates in the Tribune office, etc., such as are oftener written than read by any one but the person specially addressed, and which make no appeal to the judgment or sympathy of any other. These private letters, or portions of letters, garnished with sensation head-lines and spicy comments, often wholly unjustified by the text, filled some four columns of the Sun's editorial page, and were introduced with due flourish as the exposure of a plot whereat Integrity must stand aghast and of a plot whereat Integrity must stand aghast and Humanity vell her face to hide the crimson of her agonizing blushes. The Sun, we are sure, does us injustice in assuming that this journal has any "reputation" for unearthing and publishing such stuff as this. Three-fourths of it was matter in which the public had and could have no legitimate interest, the blazoning of which could gratify no decent curiosity, and to print which at all was simply an outrage. Mr. Young assures us that, while he wrote some of the private notes therein attributed to him, he is quite certain that the rest of them never flowed from his mind or pen, or else they have been so garbled and transformed as to change their meaning entirely. All must know that language is often used in the freedom of friendly intimacy which, though innocently meant, would sound badly if overheard by strangers. Thus A says to his next friesd B, "I am abominably hard up, and must strike some one for $1000 before Saturday night." meaning only that he must induce some one to pay him or lend him that amount; yet the words are susceptible of a quite different interpretation. There are few who write at all freely, in the confidence of close intimacy, who have not written some sentences which they would be startled to find printed and coldly criticized by strangers as expressing literally their purposes or

The charges on which Mr. Young stands arraigned y the Sun on the strength of these letters are substantially these :-1. Having exaggerated conceit of his own abili-ties and qualifications for journalism, with a corres-ponding perective appreciation of the merits of some of his present or recent associates.

2. Abusing his position on the Tribune and his influence as a journalist to promote his private ends. and especially to procure loans or subsidies for his or his friends' Philadelphia venture or ventures.

3. Betraying the confidence reposed in him by this establishment to transmit surreptitiously the despatches of the Associated Press to his Philadelphia journal or journals not entitled to receive them.

—With the first of these imputations the public has no proper business; the second we are confident is false and infounded; the third we trust will prove concline to the trust of others. equally so; but this involves the interests of others whose right to a searching investigation is unques-tionable, no matter what they must think of the means whereby it has been rendered necessary. We call, therefore, upon our partners in the Associated Press to institute forthwith a rigorous scrutiny, before some impartial arbiter or tribunal, of the before some impartial arbiter of tribunal, of the charges against Mr. Young with regard to the despatches of the association, proposing to take no part in that scrutiny unless we are made the party defendant, but insisting that Mr. Young, or whoever may be suspected or implicated, shall not be stabled in the back, but shall have the fullest opportunity for explanation and defense. in the back, but shall have the fullest opportunity for explanation and defense. We need not add that we consider the offense alleged a very grave one, especially if the offender be one honored and trusted as Mr. Young has been. But, pending such scrutiny, we beg that it be understood that Mr. Young has not been removed, nor suspended, nor in any manner condemned by us, as has been mistakenly asserted by the Sun, and telegraphed all over the country. It is not our custom to pass judgment on any one on the strength of a more indictment, especially when the finding of it was planly impelled by envy, malice, and blighted aspirations.

A Fall in Whisky. Yesterday afternoon, at about 3 o clock, of the fifth floor of the bonded warehouse S. Finch & Co., on Chesnut street, South Pittsburg, gave way, and the result was a loss of almost ten thousand dollars, and a considerable degree of alarm in the neighborhood. It seems that in the fifth story of the building was stored a large amount of whisky in barrels, the immense weight of which caused the floor to give way, and the entire contents of the upper floor came crashing through to the next, carrying a thousand or more barrels from that to the next, and so on to the bottom, where over three thousand barrels lay in a confused mass, over one hundred being entirely destroyed, involving a loss, in whisky of about $10,000, besides damages to the building amounting to several hundred dollars. There were five men in the basement of the rear portion o the building, which, by-the-way, was the part that
