CITY INTELLIGENCE. NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Operations at the Navy Yard The Iron-class All is bustle and activity at the Navy Yard. The All is bustle and activity at the Navy Yard. The various vessels that were in an incomplete state are being finished, and those that have been ordered to this station are undergoing the necessary repairs prior to their departure for the North Atlantic squadron. The supposition is that they are being anried off for the purpose of protecting American merchant vessels which are obliged to pass close to spanish waters, in the region of Cuba.

Of the iron-clads the one nearest completion is the Canonicus, a veteran of the monitor class, which met with some hard knocks at Fort Fisher. She is armed with two fifteen-inch guns in the turret. The old guns have been taken out and new ones substituted, which are sixteen inches longer than the old guns.

with two fifteen-inch guns in the turret. The old guns have been taken out and new ones substituted, which are sixteen inches longer than the old guns. It was thought that the latter had been too long in service to be safe, and, moreover, it was desired that the guns should be longer, so that the muzzles should project further outside the turret. Her machinery has been thoroughly overhauled, and a large force of workmen is now engaged in putting it together. She is being scraped and painted, and the interior woodwork is being repaired. It is expected that she will be ready for sea in about three weeks.

Next in order is the Miantonomoh, a splendid specimen of the monitor style of iron-clad. This vessel has two torrets, carrying four i5-inch guns. She has never been in action, but she has won something of a reputation as a fast steamer and an excellent seagoing vessel. The Miantonomoh, it will be remembered, carried Assistant Secretary G. V. Fox to St. Petersburg, and astonished the Russians with the wonderful improvement in naval architecture produced by the experience gained in this country during the great Rebellion. She is being entirely refitted. The machinery is to be put in good running order, alterations are to made inside, the bottom is to be repaired, and she is to be newly painted. A steamer is expected to arrive in New York in a few days to take her to Brooklyn Navy Yard, in order to put her in the dry-dock. Both of the dry-docks here are unavailable, one being occupied by the Sloop Brooklyn and the other being too small for the Miantonomoh. When ready for sea she will be commanded by Capitain E. R. Calhoun.

Brooklyn and the other being too small for the Miantonomon. When ready for sea she will be commanded by Captain E. R. Calhoun.

The third iron-clad being repaired is the Dictator, the longest monitor in the navy with the exception of the Puritan. She is 318 feet between perpendiculars, 50 feet beam, and 21 feet deep in the hold. She carries two 15-inch Dahlgren guns. The Dictator has never been tried under fire. She was finished near the close of the war and was stationed for a few months at Fortress Monroe.

months at Fortress Monroe.

The Juniata, steam sloop, is also being fitted out for service, and the work is being hurried as much as possible, as she is under orders for the North Atlantic Squadron. When her duty in the West Indies is ended it is thought she will be sent to China.

The Juniar is 20% fast long 38 feet beem, and 16 feet The Juniata is 205 feet long, 38 feet beem, and 16 feet in the hold. She will carry six 9-inch Dahlgren guns, one 11-inch pivot, one 60-pounder Parrott rife, and two boat howitzers. The steam sloop Brooklyn is now in the dry dock, and a strong force of workmen is employed in get-ting her ready for service. She is undergoing a general reconstruction; all the defective timbers are being replaced by sound ones; her planking will be entirely new. Her machinery is in the shops, but few entirely new. Her machinery is in the shops, but few men are working on it, the orders requiring that the monitors shall be fitted out first. She will probably be ready for duty in about four months.

Beneath a shed, and on the stocks, is a half-finished hull of the huge monitor Shackamaxon. This vessel was commenced towards the close of the war, and work was suspended on her when the Rebellion terminated. She is 332 feet in length between perpandiculars, 56 feet beam, and 18 feet depth of hold. All her machinery and the iron work for plating, turrets, pilot-houses, and everything necessary to complete pilot-houses, and everything necessary to complete her are stowed away under sheds, waiting for some contingency that will render it necessary to resume her construction.

In the large ship house the unfinished hull of the steam sloop Antictam stands on the stocks. This vessel was commenced near the close of 1866, and work was suspended on her in 1867. She is beautiwork was saspended to the fully modelled, long, deep, and narrow, and intended to be a fast vessel. Her length is 312 feet, her beam 46 feet, and her depth of hold 21 feet. The ship honse had to be lengthened about thirty feet for her accommodation. She is pierced for twenty-one gans, one a pivot gun.

This other and house is occupied by the steam sloop The other party house is occupied by the steam sloop omaha, which is 80 far 'orward that she can be oready for launching in from three lo four months. The Omaha is 250 feet long, 38 feet beam, and 19 feet deep in the hold, and will carry nineteen guns, one long rifled gun to be mounted on a pivot. She is modelled very similarly to the Antietam, and will doubtless prove to be a very fast vessel.

The only other vessel at the yard is the Potomac, used as a receiving ship, and commanded by Commodore DeCamp. Her crew at present is not large, but as orders have recently been given for recruiting, it is expected that in a few weeks she will be filled to her greatest capacity.

ing, it is expected that the same in the following named officers are now on duty at The following named officers. B. Marchand, commandant; Captain A. Murray, executive officer; Commander T. C. Harris, Commander W. P. McCann, Mate M. K. Henderson; Commodore J. R. Goldsborough, inspector of ordnance; Commander A. Pendergast, assistant inspector of ordnance; S. M. Pook, naval constructor; T. D. Wilson, assistant naval constructor; A. Lawton, chief engineer; A. Adamson, first assistant engineer; S. W. Robinson and C. A. Uber, second assistant engineers; W. G. McEwan, third assistant engineer; J. Fuiton, pay-master; Commander B. Gherardi, navigation officer; Lieutenant-Commander G. M. Bache, equipment officer; Paymaster W. N. Watmongh, haspector of provisions; Surgeon J. McClelland, Passed Assistant Surgeon D. R. Bannon; R. Given, chaplain; E. Kenney, boatswain; W. Ferguson, George L. Albro, and C. Dugan, gunners; H. M. Griffiths, carpenter.

AT LEAGUE ISLAND. Little or nothing has been done towards converting League Island into the commodious naval station it is expected, in the course of time, to become. The commandant of the station resides in an antiquated mansion situated near the centre of the while the other officers on duty are obliged to con-tent themselves with narrow berths in the ward-room of the old steam sloop St. Louis, which is auchored at the dock, and roofed over to protect the occupants from the weather.

A few hundred yards from the dock is the spowhere the steamer New Ironsides was burnt near the close of 1866. The Government sold the wreck to an individual, who had an eye to a rich speculation in old iron, for $50,000. By surrounding the wreck with old fron, for $50,000. By surrounding the wreck with water tight cribs, connected by heavy chains, which were passed beneath the wreck, at low water, and by drawing on the chains, the old hull was gradually lifted from her muddy bed as the tide rose, and carried up the river. By short movements of this kind the wreck has been carried about three-quarters of a mile up stream, the object being to get her into shoal water. Thus far the purchaser has recovered about $30,000 worth of iron.

Dries have been received at the island to send the steamer Pushmataha, which has been lying up here, to the navy yard to be fitted up for sea. She is to have a light spar deck, some alterations are to be made in her keel, and her machinery is to be over-hanled. She is to be ordered on duty as soon as finished, and it is thought that the duty will be with the West India squadron.

The other vessels on the eastern side of the island, in the main channel, are the following:—The Puritan, intended for a monitor, but which is at present in a half finished condition, without turrets or machinery of any kind. The Puritan is the longest of all the iron-clads, but no effort is being made to finish her or turn her to any account. The stern finish her or turn her to any account. The steam sloop Chattanooga, one of the vessels of the Wam-panoag class. These vessels were built with a view panoag class. These vessels were built with a view of securing the greatest rate of speed to be attained by steam vessels, and the matter of expense was not taken much into consideration in their construction. They were intended to make sudden dashes out to sea in chase of fast vessels used during the war for running the blockade; but they have been pronounced failures, principally because they are so taken up with machinery, and consume so large a quantity of coal, that it has been found impossible to carry in them more than five or six days' fuel.

quantity of coal, that it has been found impossible to carry in them more than five or six days' fuel.

Aiongside of the St. Louis lies the old Rebel ram Atalanta, which was built at Savannah, Ga., with the proceeds of jowelry contributed by the ladies of the bogus Confederacy. She is a powerfully-built vessel, but was disabled by the very first shot fired at her. The shot entered the pilot-house, disabling the ram and killing and woundlag seven men. An offer of $40,000 has been made to the Government for her, and it is thought that a board of officers will meet here to appraise her, after which she will be sold.

The vessels stationed here which are most interesting to the visitor are the iron-clads lying in the back channel on the western side of the island. There are monitors enough, lying in line, to stretch over are monitors enough. lying in line, to stretch over half a mile. They touch each other at the ends, and the men stationed on them as watchmen pass from the men stationed on them as watchmen pass from one to another by means of narrow wooden bridges. At the western end of the line is the Hornet, side-wheel steamer, a beautifully modelled vessel. She was built in England for running the blockade, and was noted for speed, steaming easily seventeen knots an hour. When engaged in blockade running she bore the name Lady Stirling. She was captured near Wilmington. N. C., by a togboat, and was fitted up as a steam yacht for the use of President Lincoln. Offers are now being made to the Government by Offers are now being made to the Government by private parties for her purchase.

All the monitors from this end of the line to near the middle are veterans which have seen the rough-est kind of service, and are thickly covered with about wounds. The Passaic is literally battered from stem to stern, and yet not one of the many shots that struck her injured her so much as to disable her. The following monitors have been in action, have each one turret, and are armed with two guns, one 16-inch Daighren and one 11-inch navy gun: - Nantucket, Nahant, Catakili, and Sangamon. The Nahant and Sangamon are in very good order, having recently been repaired, but the others show their age, hard service and exposure quite plainly. The iron plating on the decks, too, is rusting rapidly away. The vessels would need a good deal of work to get them ready for service. The Lehigh and the Passale cach carry one 15-inch gun and one 150-pounder, Parrott. They bear more bruises than any of the other vessels, and will need more labor to refer of the other vessels, and will need more labor to refit of the other vessels, and will need more anor to reflethem.

The Fest of the iron-clads are light draught vessels, known as the Steiner model. They proved to be total failures, inasmuch as when they had their fuel, men, and guns aboard, their decks were under water. They have since been altered by raising the deck in the centre twenty-two inches, which has cured the defect. They are all in excellent order and can be ready for duty in a few days, it being only necessary to overhand and oil the machinery. They are named as follows:—Kona, Suncook, Cohoes, Yazoo, Tunxis, Waxsaw, Squando, Nausett, Modoc, Naubuc, and Napa. The three latter have been fitted up as torpedo boats. These vessels have no turrets; the gun. Napa. The three latter have been fitted up as tor-pedo boats. These vessels have no turrets; the gun, a Parrott, is situated on an open platform on the deck forward of the pilot house.

deck forward of the pilot house.

The naval station at League Island is at present under the command of Commodore O. S. Glisson, and is officered as follows:—Commander G. M. Ransom, executive officer; Commander E. W. Henry; Lieutenant Commanders, G. B. White and C. L. Huntington; Master, W. H. Jacques; Passed Assistant Surgeon, T. N. Penrose; Paymaster, Arthur Burtis; Chief Engineer, J. Q. A. Zeigter; First Assistant Engineers, W. G. Buehler, D. Hardie and R. B. Plotts; Second Assistant Engineers, Edward Stiles and Joseph Thomas; Chaplain, C. R. Hale.

There are sixty civilians and about forty-five enlisted men employed on the island.

REVENUE INSTRUCTIONS .- Assessor Kenney, of the First district has issued the following instructions to the Assistant Assessors of that district;-Assessor's Office, First District, PA.—PHILADEL-PHIA, May I, 1862.—To Assistant Assessors:—Assistant As-sessors of the Internal Revenue should be men of fair edu-cation, intelligence, capacity, strict integrity, and tempe-rate accepts. In making mynominations I have endeavored to select gentlemen who possess these requirements. If, in the future, I find I have been mistaken in my judgment, I shall be prompt to make the necessary change.

I shall be prompt to make the necessary change.

I shall expect from sach Assistant a cateful and diligent examination of the Internal Revenue laws and the rulings of the Internal Revenue Department, so that he may be able to give to every tax-payer the necessary information and instruction relative to tax or ilcense. This information must be given cheerfully, with civility and courtesy, and must be given cheerfully, with civility and courtesy, and without fee or reward.

The importance and responsibility of the position of Assistant may be judged from the fact that he is the absolute Assessor in his own division, subject only to appeals to the Assessor of the district, and to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. How necessary it is, therefore, that the Assistants shall apply themselves earnessly to the study of the law and the rulings, and the practical operation thereof, until they become familiar with the business in all its details!

I shall require of the Assistants great diligence in ascerin all its details?

I shall require of the Assistants great diligence in ascertaining all objects of taxation in their respective divisions, and that assessments and returns shall be made upon them within the time required by law.

No Assistant Assessor, and no person under the control of the Assessor, will be allowed to accept or receive, directly or indirectly, from any person whatever, or in any manner on any whatever, any compensation, present, fee or reward, for any service he may perform. This rule is imperative, and any violation of it will be followed by instant removal.

Assistants are required to have offices or dwellings as convenient as possible to the tax-payers of their divisions. If offices, they should be kept neat and cleanly, and no intoxicating drinks should ever be brought therein.

JOHN B. KENNEY, ASSESSOR.

THE VELOCIPEDE AGAINST TIME.—On Saturday afternoon the velocipede race against time came off at the Chesnut Street Rink, in the presence of a large audience. The stipulations of the match were that W. R. Vanderveer, of New York, was to run fifty miles on the velocipede in five hours, or forfeit $250. At 4:15 he started the machine. The following is the score, by which it will be seen that the feat was accomplished easily;— Commenced to ride at 4:15.

HARRISBURG, May 3 .- This morning Judge Pierson, in the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin county, sitting for Commonwealth cases, rendered la decision in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, which was of great importance. The question was on the constitutionality of the tax imposed by the act of April 30, 1864, on gross receipts of corporations. The Reading road contended that the tax on gross receipts from freight going beyond the State lines was in opposition to the Constitution of the United States. The Judge decided the case in favor of the company in a decision of great length. It is calculated that two hundred thousand dollars per annum is involved in this test case. A writ of error was today received from the Supreme Court, Baron Stoeckl, the Russian Minister, Recalled from the United States—Demonstrations in Ireland.

A Heavy Judgment Against Baltimore Insurance Companies.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

A Presidential Levee. WASHINGTON, May 3 .- The President held : general levee at the White House to-day, from 10 to 12 o'clock. His office was crowded during two hours with people of all classes, men and women. Several Senators and members of Congress were present, but had to take their turn with the unofficial masses. At 12 o'clock the doors were closed and the President was closeted for some time with the Secretary of State, Minister Motley has received his full instructions, and will sail from New York on the 19th. His instructions are based on Senator Sumner's speech on the Alabama claims. He will be expected, soon after his arrival in London, to proceed at once to enter into negotiations for the settlement of the claims of the United States against Great Britain. The tone of the English press recently developed may require some additional instructions to be given Mr. Motley.

But it is understood that the President and Cabinet do not contemplate any yielding on our part from the position assumed by Senator Sumner in his speech.

Dismissni of Clerks.

A number of clerks were dismissed to-day from the Treasury Department, and it is in contemplation to dismiss others. All dismissals, thus far, have been Democrats or Republicans who upheld the late administration.

Secretary Boutwell is determined to reduce the force of the office to the lowest point possible as the work in the Treasury does not now require the same number of hands as it did formerly. There is a great howling among the discharged clerks, and several of them were at the White House to-day, endeavoring to get the President to reinstate them, but they got no! comfort there.

By Atlantic Cable. Recall of the Russian Minister at Washington. St. Petersburg, May 3.—The recall of De Stoeckl, Russian Minister at Washington, is officially announced.

Affairs in Ireland. CORK, May 3 .- A mass meeting of citizens was held here on Saturday night, at which the recent speech of the Mayor was warmly endorsed, and resolutions were adopted expressing sympathy with and confidence in that functionary. FROM BALTIMORE.

Judgments Against Insurance Companies. BALTIMORE, May 3 .- In the Supreme Court of Baltimore city, this morning, in several suits brought by James C. Kelley, of New York, against six insurance companies of this city, to recover policies of insurance on the building known as Barnum's Museum, New York city, Judge Dobbin instructed the jury that there was no such sale or conveyance of the property, by Barnum & Kelley, before the fire, as would forfeit their right under the policies of insurance, and judgment was then entered against the six Baltimore companies for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, which is about $150,000.

Riot in Tennessee. Memphis, May 3 .- The Appeal learns that a riot occurred at Brownsville, Tennessee, last night, in which one white man and two negroes were killed, and a white man named Tom Grant mortally wounded. The affair grew out of a negro threatening to kill a white man named Showman. At 11 o'clock last night the fighting was still going on. REAL ESTATE AT AUOTION.
