What She Says About the International Squabble on the Alabama Claims—Further Press Criticisms on Sumner's Speech.

The London newspapers still keep up an incessant stream of criticism on Senator Sumner's Alabama claims speech. For three consecutive days the London Times assailed the Senator's position, each day growing warmer in its work.

If the speech of Mr. Sumner against the Alabama claims truly merits to be a masterpiece of personal opinion, we might have reported it without comment. When indictments of this kind are drawn up by an individual on his own responsibility, they are usually treated with a dignified silence.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

Court of Common Pleas—Judges Allison, Ludlow, Peirce, and Brewster.

As for further appointment, counsel were in Court this morning to discuss the case of the new Register, the Court having been requested to express their views upon the nature of the assessors under it.

Mr. Phillips, Esq., in place of Mr. Bidde, and William L. Hirst, Esq., appeared on behalf of the Democratic Assessors, and Charles M. Gibbons, Esq., on behalf of the Assessors.

The particular section under consideration requires the Assessors, by the 30th day of June, to make out alphabetical lists of every lot, lot or tract of land, and every building, situate, siting or being in the city of Philadelphia.

Mr. Gibbons, who framed the act, after reviewing the system of fraud that was practised under the old law, by which tavern-keepers and other like persons, who had houses containing two or more rooms, were enabled to put upon the list fifty names, and import strangers to vote under them.

Three Culprits Placed in the Pillory, and Ten Lashed at the Post.

The New Shrine is Consecrated by a Libation of Blood!

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

NEW CASTLE, Del., May 15.—During the past two or three weeks the people of this antediluvian hamlet have been blessed with two unprecedented sensations. A fire broke out in the centre of the town, and when it was all over a few bricklayers and carpenters were summoned from Wilmington to repair the damages.

Justice Re-enthroned. But if the antediluvians had been disturbed by the sound of the trowel and the hammer alone, the circumstance would not have warranted a journey all the way from Philadelphia to chronicle.

not disposed to attempt any reform until the courts decide whether the laudable and unpartisan scheme of the Democratic law-makers for the State at large to legislate them out of office is to succeed or not.

One of the Wilmington clergymen is already an open and avowed assailant of this mockery of justice and defiance of decency. I refer to the Rev. Fielder Israel, of the Unitarian Church, who talks very plainly upon the subject, in the pulpit and out of it.

At a few minutes after ten the gates of the prison-yard were thrown back on their creaking hinges, and the motley crowd ushered into the presence of the new shrine, additions being made to it from time to time until, towards noon, a half-dozen colored women and as many white females of tender age were included.

The Gates Wide Open. By the side of Realey stood Aaron Couter, a cream-colored youth of about sixteen years, who has been an occupant of the jail for more than a year already, his trial on the charge of an unattractive assault upon a white girl having been finally postponed, at his counsel's request.

The portion of the entertainment would have drifted along into positive monotony if two specimens of Delaware civilization had not attracted the attention of the crowd and afforded them substantial diversion. One of them was, according to the remark of a native, "an ornery nigger who had barely escaped the pillory himself, and ought to have had a taste of it."

There was another chapter in store for him, also; but it did not disturb his present equanimity. A "Democratic Nigger" and an "Exuberant White Man."
