MUSICAL NOTES FROM "THE HUB"

All the Fellos Excited. ARRIVAL OF THE JEW, BILL LEE. He Getteth Up a Singing Club. How He Doeth It, and How They Sing.

HUR, June 17, 1869. Mr. Editor:—The Great Jew, Bill Lee, arrived here safe and sound (particularly the sound) last Tuesday, and immediately went to work to get his fingers, like so many cattle, into the pound (particularly the pound), which embraced the Common, and which was boarded up for the occasion. I might add, from the difficulty I experienced in getting board, that they had taken all there was in the city.

The Rosin Wagons began to drive up to the back door, and at once twenty men commenced to shovel in rosin for the scrapers of cat-gut, of which there are some four hundred. The rosin was smiled upon the Jew, Bill Lee, from his birth, and his earliest music was that which he extracted from the household cat; that, however, he did by treading on its tail. The impressions of those days were never really effaced from his memory, and on the occasion of this sing he commissioned a New England mechanic to get him up an instrument that should combine both

The Triangle was a big thing in its way. Of course no iron beater could be constructed and worked with sufficient force to have the proper effect, consequently the aid of Ye Ancient and Honorable Artillerie of Boston was called in. They use it as a target, and at every time a "strike" it is wanted ten 16-pounders are fired at it. The first one that hits it knocks it out of the way, so that the others can miss it. This arrangement works admirably. Triangles in Boston are no new things; they are more common than squares, particularly in the plan of the streets.

Towards the close of the sing is generally brought in the fellows that do and they never fail to bring down the house—that is, they would bring it down if it was not already on the ground. They use altogether sheet-iron music, and they can play anything. At "old sledge" they are A. 1. Ironically speaking, they have nerves of steel, and their music is of the most cheerful description. One curious thing was noticed. During their performance every car horse that passed the building would immediately stop and hold up one of its legs, and always the one on which there was no shoe. This was noticed for several days, and became such an inconvenience to the railroad company that they intend keeping their horses shod during the existence of the sing.

Yesterday President Grant came into the shanty, and got into a scrape right away. They put him up among the fiddlers, and such a seraping of feline intestines I suppose was never before known. The General took out his handkerchief to wipe his nose. Mr. Gilmore mistook it for applause, when he gave the signal to turn on all the steam. The "big drum," the "spunkiana," the cannon, and other wild instruments joined in with the rosin instruments, and such a din was raised that the General had to cry out for the second time, "LET US HAVE PEACE!"

This happy company will give you but a faint idea of the way the Jew, Bill Lee, taxed his ingenuity to get up something new for his customers, and how he succeeded.

Don't believe the many ridiculous statements about him and his club going the rounds of the press. What I see is entirely reliable. Others write merely for sensation. In comparison to mine they seem to me to B FLAT.

and where three of this ancient people play upon one instrument, while the tongue is struck in proper time with a trip-hammer, borrowed from the Lowell Locomotive Works for the occasion. This was an invention of an old clo' merchant of Chatham street, New York, and was adopted by Mr. Gilmore, provided he could get the claps with the girls to play it. A number of New Bedford whalers, who had lived three and five years at a time on "hard-tack," had teeth fit for the occasion, as the instruments could not be made of malleable iron, but had to be of the hardest steel. The music of these harps was very sweet, although many of the notes were regular jaw-breakers.

A very unique invention by the ladies of Boston to add to the occasion was the introduction of an instrument called by the proprietor

Spunkiana. which was very simple in its construction. It was nothing more nor less than the putting into practice the old proverb that "A bird that can sing, and won't sing, ought to be made to sing."

An advertisement went out from Niles' advertising agency headed "To the mothers of New England," and went on to invite "all those mothers who wanted peace in their families, and at present did not have it, to bring up the juvenile disturbers of the family peace to the Great Jew, Bill Lee, and he would inaugurate a way to let us have peace at home."

Accordingly, on the day set for rehearsal about six hundred mothers, with their boys, ranging from six to sixteen years of age, presented themselves to Mr. Eichberg, the conductor of the choruses, who immediately put them in training, as shown in the above sketch. The effect was most striking (particularly as regards the striking), and the mothers so enjoyed it that it was with difficulty they could be persuaded to hold up at the proper beat. On the opening day they kept time most beautifully. It was a moving sight to see 600 maternal hands raised high in the air, and at the signal from the leader's baton, all of them come down in stern resolve to do or die and simultaneously to hear the yell of 600 juvenile voices in all degrees of pain or anger, at the same time the cannon outside the building making one tremendous report. The hubs of the "Hub" have been in a hubbub about it ever since.

The Triangle was a big thing in its way. Of course no iron beater could be constructed and worked with sufficient force to have the proper effect, consequently the aid of Ye Ancient and Honorable Artillerie of Boston was called in.
