AT THE SEA-SIDE.

A Day's Sojourn at Atlantic City -The Opening of the Excursion Season and of the New Excursion Mouse.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 21, 1869. To-day has witnessed the formal inauguration of the season of 1869 at this sea-side resort, by an excursion over the Camden and Atlantic Railroad, under the auspices of the officers of the company. Those who were invited to participate in the excursion assembled at the Vine street ferry at 9 o'clock this morning, to the number of about one hundred and sixty, the party comprising representatives of the Philadelphia newspapers, prominent railroad officials, and gentlemen in other and varied walks of life. About a quarter past 9 o'clock the train left Camden, under the management of Mr. H. Whiteman, Secretary, and Mr. David H. Munday, General Superintendent of the road, and proceeded through to the sea-side in about two hours, the tedium of the journey being relieved by the performances of the band of Carneross & Dixey's Opera House, which is to be permanently located at the new Excursion House during the summer. The engine "Curlew," which drew the train, was elaborately decorated with flags, this circumstances, added to the music, attracting considerable attention in all the towns and hamlets on the route.

Arrived at the sea-side, a large number of the excursionists paused not until they were in the embrace of the ocean. The day has been a most delightful one, the heavy rain of last evening having served to moderate the temperature to a point within the bounds of endurance. Yet the water was as warm as could be desired, and when the first chill had been driven from one's bones by the breaking waters, this initial bath imparted all the vigor and newness of life which is within its gift. Those who preferred dry land to a wrestle with the breakers are employing their time in strolling about the town and inspecting the new Excursion House until the dinner hour. At 3 o'clock we sit down to a banquet in the dining-room of the new Excursion House, which will be rounded off by speeches. At or about 5 o'clock the whole party will start on the homeward journey, each and all well satisfied with the day's disposition, saying that, like all other days of unalloyed delight, it must come to an end before man's capacity for enjoyment is fairly exhausted.

The new Excursion House, in the spacious hall of which we are soon to dine, supplies a need which has long been felt at this resort. Atlantic City is so near Philadelphia, and so accessible to its people, that it must always remain, as it has always been, exceedingly popular with that class of our community which can afford to take only a single day here and there during the summer for a resort to the sea-side. Heretofore there has been one great drawback to their thorough enjoyment of such passing episodes. The burning sands of the ocean shore have been their only refuge. During the height of the season all the hotels are crowded with permanent guests, leaving but little chance for even those who are willing to intrude upon them. Now, however, they are possessed of a refuge of their own, ample, commodious, and attractive.

The Sea View Excursion House, as it is called, stands close to the beach, at the distance of about a quarter of a mile below the Surf House, commanding a fine and unobstructed view of the ocean, and receiving the full benefit of the grand and invigorating sea breeze. It was erected by a company chartered for this especial purpose by the Legislature of New Jersey, the Camden and Atlantic Railroad Company, in its corporate capacity, owning a large share of the stock. The building cost about $50,000, and every dollar has been well spent, as it is certainly one of the largest and neatest institutions of the kind to be found in the country. The main building has a frontage on the ocean of nearly two hundred feet, with a side front upon the railroad of almost equal proportions. It is three stories in height, and is surmounted by a handsome tower, eighteen feet square, immediately over the main entrance, which is upon the railroad front. The entire ocean front, and a portion of the other, is surrounded by wide and spacious verandahs, on the level of both the first and second floors, affording ample room for the shelter, in full view of the ocean, of hundreds of people. Extending the whole length of the building, from the main entrance, is a hall fifteen feet in width. On the right are the reception-rooms and offices, and on the left is the dining-hall and ball-room, separated by a screen into two compartments. The entire length is 128 feet, the width 76 feet. and the height 22 feet, clear of all the complicated and ornamental work which supports the roof. When the partitions are removed, there is room for seating twelve hundred guests at table, and five hundred can partake of dinner. Hundreds are engaged in the pleasures of the dance. Beyond the dining-hall and ballroom are the restaurant, kitchen, and store-rooms, all of ample size and attractive arrangement. Below these are the cellars, and above them the servants' quarters. On the second floor are an elegantly furnished parlor, 36 feet square, a private diningroom 15 by 40 feet in dimensions, a billiardroom 40 feet square, and several large chambers. On the third floor are fifteen fine large double chambers, and in the tower above are two others. Altogether the building is exceedingly attractive, and will serve to render Atlantic City even more popular in the future than it has been in the past. The establishment is under the superintendence of Mr. S. C. Konigmacher, a young gentleman who has enjoyed a long and

The new Excursion House is now permanently open for the summer, and within a week all the old-established hotels on the island will have thrown open their doors. On Saturday next, the Surf House and the United States Hotel will formally open, the former under the proprietorship of Mr. Thomas Farley, lately of the Ashland and La Pierre Houses, and now proprietor of the Jones House, Harrisburg; and the latter under that of Messrs. Brown & Woelpper, with Mr. George Freeman, recently superintendent of the Jones House, Harrisburg, as superintendent. The prospects for the season are represented as being exceedingly good. There will be the usual run of daily excursions during the summer, and the usual crowds at the hotels. Between the bath and the dance, tens of thousands of careworn denizens of the city will receive the impulse of new life, will cast aside the cares and sorrows of the past, and be strengthaned in heart and limb for the tasks that the WASHTERAW. future has la store.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

"Arrah-na-Pogue" at the Walnut. Boucleault's Irish drama of Arrah-na-Poque was brought out at the Walnut last evening, with Miss Josie Orton as the heroine of the piece. The terrific thunder-storm which set in early in the evening had the effect of materially diminishing the size of the audience, but Miss Orton was welcomed back to the Philadelphia stage with a heartiness that testified to the high estimation in which she is held by the public Arrah-na-Pogue is a good specimen of Boucicault's best style, and if not the best, it is one of the best of what, in these latter days, might be called the "Fenian" drama. The old stock characters and incidents are presented to us in all their native glory, without any serious attempt to depart from the well-beaten track, but Boucleault has shown his skill as a playwright by weaving them into a story of considerable interest, which presents a number of highly effective dramatic situations, and which afford some opportunities for powerful acting.

"Arrah Meelish" is not one of Miss Orton's best parts, for she can appear to much better advantage n a much higher grade of dramatic characters, but in it she has few if any superiors. Her acting last evening was up to a high standard of merit, and those scenes which call for the expression of strong natural emotions were very finely rendered. Some of Miss Orton's attitudes had an apparently unstudied grace which was remarkably effective and artistic. There is a quality in Miss Orton's acting for which she has not always received full credit-her poses are frequently full of fine expression, which are so graceful and natural as to conceal the art by which the effect is produced. We hope again to see Miss Orton permanently attached to one of our theatres, where she will have an opportunity to appear in a line of characters worthy of her, and not be obliged to waste her fine abilities on such worthless pieces as were too often presented during her last eason at the Chesnut.

The City Amusements.

At the Arch, Mr. J. T. Donnelly's benefit to-morrow evening promises to be a great success. A fine programme will be presented, and Miss Susan Galon, Mr. Craig, and other popular performers will appear. Scats can be secured at the box office. AT THE WALNUT Boucleault's Irish drama of Arrah-na-Pogue will be performed this evening. At the American an attractive variety entertainment will be given this evening.
