GETTYSBURG.

The Dedication Ode Rend Yesterday by Bayard Taylor.

The following is the ode read by Bayard Taylor yesterday at the dedication of the Soldiers Monument on the battle-field of Gettysburg:-

After the eyes that looked, the lips that spake Here, from the shadows of impending death, Those words of solemn breath, What voice may fitly break The slience, doubly hallowed, left by him? We can but bow the head, with eyes grown dim, We can but how the head, with eyes grown dim.
And, as a nation's litany, repeat
The phrase his martyrdom hath made complete,
Noble as then, but now more sadly sweet:
"Let us, the Living, rather dedicate
Ourselves to the unfinished work which they
Thus far advanced so nobly on its way.
And save the perilled State!
Let us, upon this field where they, the brave,
Their last full measure of devotion gave,
Highly resolve they have not died in vain!—
That, under God, the Nation's later birth
Of Freedom, and the People's gain
Of their own Sovereignty, shall never wane
And perish from the circle of the earth!"
From such a perfect text, shall Song aspire And perish from the circle of the earth!"
From such a perfect text, shall Song aspire
To light-its failed fire,
And into wandering music turn
Its virtue, simple, sorrowful, and stern?
His voice all elegies anticlpated;
For, whatsoe'er the strain,
We bear that one refrain. consecrate ourselves to them, the Couse crated!" We hear that one refrain-

After the thunder-storm our heaven is blue; Far-off, along the borders of the aky, In silver folds the clouds of battle lie, With soft, consoling sunlight shining through With soft, consoling sunlight shining through;
And round the sweeping circle of your hills
The crashing cannon-thrills
Have faded from the memory of the air;
And summer pours from unexhausted fountains
Her bins on yonder mountains:
The camps are tenantless, the breastworks bare;
Earth keeps no stain where hero-blood was poured;
The hornets, hunfining on their wings of lead,
Have ceased to sting, their angry swarms are dead,
And, harmicas in its scabbard, rusts the sword! III

Oh, not till now—oh, now we dare, at last, To give our heroes fitting consecration! Not till the soreness of the strife is past, And Peace hath comforted the weary nation! So long her sad, indignant spirit held One keen regret, one throb of pain unquelled, So long the land about her feet was waste, The ashes of the burning lay upon her, We stood beside their graves with brows abased, Waiting the purer mood to do them honor! They, through the flames of this dread holocaust, The patriot's wrath, the soldier's ardor, lost; They sit above us and above our passion, Disparaged even by our human tears— Disparaged even by our human tears—
Beholding truth our race, perchance, may fashion
In the slow judgment of the creeping years.
We saw the still reproof upon their faces;
We heard them whisper from the shining spaces:
"Today ye grieve: come not to us with sorrow!
Wat for the glad, the reconciled To-morrow!
Your grief but clouds the ether where we dwell;
Your grief but clouds the other where we dwell; Your anger keeps your souls and ours apart: Butcome with peace and pardon, all is well! An come with love, we touch you, heart to heart!

Importal Brothers, we have heard!
Ou lips declare the reconciling word:
Fo Battle taught, that set us face to face,
Th stubborn temper of the race,
As both, from fields no longer alien, come,
Togrander action equally invited,
Mishalled by Learning's trump, by Labor's drum,
In trife that purifies and makes united!
Wiforce to build'the powers that would destroy;
Th muscles, hardened by the sabre's grasp,
No give our hands a firmer clasp;
Wibring not gilef to you, but solemn joy! Importal Brothers, we have heard! oring not gilef to you, but solemn joy! feeling you so near, forward with your eyes, divinely clear, Toome sublimely-perfect, sacred year, Whn sons and fathers whom we overcame Foret in mutual pride the partial blame, Angoin with us, to set the final crown Upd your dear renown,— The cople's Union in heart and name!

Anevet, ye Dead!—and yet Our louded natures cling to one regret: Were not all resigned eid, with even mind, carcely-risen stars, that here untimely set,
eeds must think of History that waits fines that live but in their proud beginning—sted promises and cheated fates—th's boundless venture and its single winning,
ee the ghosts of deeds they might have done,
phantom homes that beaconed their endeavor; seeds of countiess lives, in them begun, might have multiplied for us forever! grudge the better strain of men proved itself, and was extinguished then— field, with strength and hope so thickly sown, refrom no other harvest shall be mown: all the land, within its clasping seas, rer now in bravery and beauty wealth of manly loves and energies given to teach us all the free man's sacred

Thus grandly, they we mourn, themselves consol-And, as their spirits conquer and control us, We hear, from some high realm that lies beyond, The hero-voices of the Past respond. Or nameless barrows of the Northern strand, Or gorges of the Alps and Pyrences, Or the dark bowels of devouring seas— Wherever Man for Man's sake died—wherever Death stayed the march of upward-climbing feet, gaving their Present uncomplete, ough the Futures crowning their endeavor,-Their ghostly voices to our ears are sent, As when the high note of a trumpet wrings Æolian answers from the strings of many a mute, unfingered instrument. Platican cymbals thrill for us to-day; The horns of Sempach intour echoes play, And nearer yet, and sharper, and more stern, The slogan rings that startled Bannockburn; Till from the field, made green with kindred deed, The shields are clashed in exuitation thove the dauntless nation.

That for a continent has fought its Runnymede!

VIII

Yes, for a Continent! The heart that beats With such rich blood of sacrifice Shall from the Tropics, drowsed with languid heats, To the blue rampants of the Northern ice, Make felt its pulses all this young world over!-Rach land that bourgeons in the Western day, Whatever dag may float, whatever shield may cover! With fuller manhood every wind is rife, In every soil are sown the seeds of valor, Since out of death came forth such boundless life, Such ruddy beauty out of anguished pallor!
And that war-wasted arm
Put forth to lift a sister-land from harm, Ere the last blood upon the blade was dried, Shall still be stretched, to shelter and to guide, Beyond her borders, answering the need With counsel and with deed, Along the Eastern and the Western wave— Still strong to smite, still beautiful to save!

Thus, in her sent secure,
Where now no distant menaces can reach her,
At last in undivided freedom pure,
She sits, the unwilling world's unconscious teacher;
And, day by day, beneath serener skies,
The unshaken pillars of her palace rise.
The poric shafts, that lightly upward press,
The Doric shafts, that lightly upward press,
The hough the sword has hewn each cornerWhat though the sword has hewn each cornerstone,

And precious blood cements the deep foundation?
Never by other force have empires grown;
From other basis never rose a nation.
For strength is born of struggle, faith of doubt,
Of discord law, and freedom of oppression;
We hail from Pisgah, with exulting shout,
The Promised Land below us, bright with sun,
And deem its pastures won,
Ere toli and blood have carned us their possession!
Each aspiration of our human earth
Becomes an act through keenest paugs of birth;
Each force, to bless, must cease to dream,
And conquer life through agony supreme. And conquer life through agony supreme; Each inborn right must outwardly be tested stern material weapons, ere it stand In the enduring fabric of the land, Secured for those who yielded it, and those who wrested!

This they have done for us whaslumber here-This they have done for us whislumber here—
Awake, alive, though now so dumbly sleeping;
Spreading the board, but tasting not its cheer,
Sowing, but never reaping;—
Building, but never sitting in the shade
Of the strong mansion they have made;—
Speaking their word of life with mighty tongue,
But hearing not the echo, million-voiced,
Of brothers who rejoiced,
From all our river-vales and mountains flung;
So take them, Heroes of the songful Past. Open your ranks, let every shining troop
Its phantom banners droop,
To hall Earth's noblest martyrs, and her last!
Take them, O Fatherland!
Who, dying, conquered in thy name;
And, with a grateful hand,
Inscribe their deed who took away thy blame— Give, for their grandest all, thine insufficient fame! Take them, O God! our Brave,
The glad fulfillers of Thy dread decree;
Who grasped the sword for Peace, and smote to save,
And, dying here for Freedom, died for Thee!

GENTLEMEN CONTEMPLATING visiting the sea-shore are requested to examine the assortment of thin clothing now arranged for their inspection on the counter at No. 824 Chesnut street.

THE PARHAM SEWING MACHINE .- All Sowing Machines that tax the strength in operating should be discarded. The most serious results frequently arise from their use by female operators. Not so, however, with the Parnam a machine that is constructed with a special view to such ease in running as to make it the most pleasant to operate on in the country. Its other good qualities are many and peculiar. It is noticless in running—a desideratum to a household especially, where the click and clatter of a noisy, hard, unyielding sewing machine becomes simply a nuisance. It makes the best work on all kinds of material, gratifying feature that of itself should commend it to all who are in quest of a good machine. It is adapted to a market, is simply but substantially constructed, is elegant in style and finish, and every way the most perfect and reliable machine obtainable. An inspection of them at the Parham Establishment, No. 704 Chesnut street, will prove that they are deserving of all the commendation pestowed upon them, and even more.

THE SEASON OF EXHAUSTION.-No matter how vigorous by nature the system and the constitution may be, they must necessarily suffer more or less from the depleting effects of the temperature of midsummer, unless strength-ened and sustained by wholesome tonic treatment. The extra pressure upon the vital forces must be met and coun terbalanced by an extra resistant power: the unusual and rapid consumption of the animal fluids by profuse perspi ration must be compensated by the perfect digestion and ssimilation of the food taken into the stomach, from which both the fluids and the solids of the body are de rived. Otherwise the physical strength declines, and the mind, sympathizing with the machinery through which it acts, becomes depressed and enervated. A STIMULANT is therefore absolutely required at this season: not a violent one, calculated to produce febrile excitement, but some thing which will recruit and reinforce the whole organiza tion in proportion to the extraordinary drain to which the torrid beat subjects it.

This desideratum is supplied in a palatable and most efficient form in HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, which the people of this country, after more than twenty-five years' experience, have accepted and endorsed as the best tonic, alterative and anti-bilious preparation which modical chemistry has yet succeeded in obtaining from the strength-sustaining, healing, and purifying products for the vegetable kingdom. Every ingredient of this famous compound has its own specific virtue, and the result of their combination is the most genial invigorant, aperient, and regulating medicine ever administered, either as a and regulating medicine over a daministration, closer as a preventive or cure of the disorders most common in our variable climate. Among these may be enumerated dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, fever and ague, nervous debility, and all the ailments proceeding from imperfect digestion. A course of Hosterten's Briteria is the best possible safeguard against the dangers which meanice persons of both sexes, and all ages, during the heated term.
