NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 10. The treasurer of the Excise Board was busy all terday at police headquarters refunding to liquor dealers the excess of license money paid by them. It will take probably until the middle of next week o refund all this money, for the queues of people rming in front of the treasurer's desk are so long that those at the end of them stand no chance of ting up to the desk until the afternoon is ended, Mr. D. D. Howard, of this city, who ten or eleven years ago achieved a great success in being a cham-pion sufferer by what was then known as the National Hotel disease, has sailed for Europe, Mr. Howard has been an invalid, suffering from the effects of that disease, ever since. The panic-some called it poison-broke out at the National Hotel, Washingm, and for some years quite destroyed the credit of that house. Ventilation, famiga-tion, deodorization, choloride of lime, were all used in valn. The miasmatic fumes generated at that hotel were worse than bedbugs, and all the guests who were not "taken" fied at the earliest possible moment. Mr. D. D. Howard is believed to be the only survivor of those spectral guests, and after suffering from the effects of the disease for ten long years, has gone to Europe with the hope of getting well. I hope he may do so. To-day the Harvard Four, who are this summer to row on the Henley Course against a four of Oxford, the champinns of England, will leave for Europe in the City of Paris. They have been stopping at the Astor House. The crew consists of Mesars, Loring (captain and bow-oar), Simmons (stroke), Bass, and Rice. They have taken the precaution to provide themselves with a cook who is presumed to possess accomplishments as culinary as they are conscientious. His place is to see that the young men eat and drink nothing that will hurt them, and to exercise a general supervision over their stomachs.

One hears very little of the Midnight Mission just now, but it has not fallen through, for all that. The managers of it, however, have to deal with one great difficulty. They say the fallen women whom it makes it its duty to look after complain that the wages of virtue is very poor indeed. True, the wages of sin is death, but it is often a long time before sin pays its wages in full, and meanwhile it grants a great deal of credit, which is the next best thing to death. If you had visite 1 the New York Midnight Mission, as I have done, and heard the despairing statements of half-lost women who have tried to be virtuous and found that virtue is a "dead beat," you would not be surprised that the Midnight missionaries are so unsuccessful. The brands that are plucked from the burning are very few indeed. They wouldn't make a respectable-sized bonfire. Virtue is a very liberal, good sort of person to those who have enough of this world's goods; but, to tell the truth, she is apt to snub and be mean to the hewers of wood and drawers of water. Virtue is too often its own and its only reward. Integrity has an appetite as well as dishonesty, and it is no wonder the outcast prefers the Devil and prosperity to virtue and starvation.

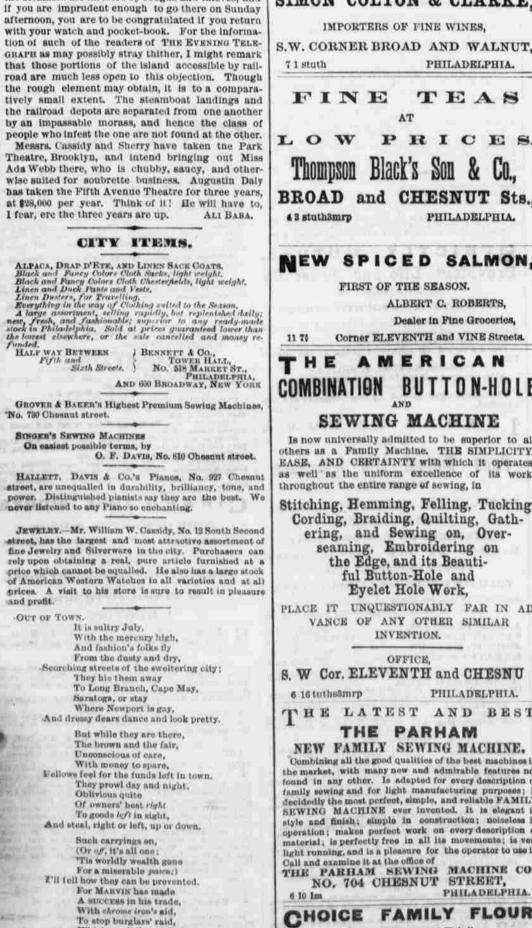

The route of the underground railway is now being surveyed by engineers. It is expected that their reports will be submitted in October, and that the road will cost ten millions of dollars. A report was got up that work was commenced on the pneumatic railway, but this is not the case. The projectors of the pneumatic rallway have other fish to fry just now.

Strangers wandering along Broadway often wonder where the numerous flower-girls and florists procure their treasures from. They get them from Union Hill, which is florally one of the most prolific vicinities of Hoboken. The great floral emporium of New York find its nucleus in Hoboken, West Hoboken, and Union Hill. These three suburbs produce more largely than all the other suburbs of New York taken together. They are so extremely prolific that it seems a shame to be obliged to give the Broadway flower-boy ten cents for the tiniest of his bouquets.

There is a just prejudice against Coney Island as a pleasure resort. Those parts of it approached by the steamers are infested by roughs and thieves, and if you are imprudent enough to go there on Sunday afternoon, you are to be congratulated if you return with your watch and pocket-book.
