DESCRIPTION OF A REPORT AND ADDRESS OF THE PARTY OF THE P

SOUTH AMERICA.

LATER NEWS BY STEAMER.

The following is the news in detail brought by he steamer Arizona, which arrived at New York vesterday, with Aspinwall advices to

The New Mosquera Conspiracy. The Panama Star and Herald contains the fol

Early yesterday morning, 9th instant, Senor Holguin of Bogota, who arrived here a few days ago per steamer Seine, from Santa Martha, and Senor Veljarano, of the Cauca, who came here by the steamer Talca on the 19th ult., were placed under arrest by order of President Cor-reoso—Colonel Forero and Major Vegal, commanding the national troops stationed here, executing the order—and confined in la cares publica in Plaza Chiriqui. The gentlemen named were, we understand, on their way South, and intended leaving per steamer Bogota to-day.

The gentlemen were suspected of having in their possession political documents relating chiefly to the late elections, which they were commissioned by the conservative party to carry to General Mosquera, now in Peru. The per-sonal baggage of Senor Holguin was taken from the Grand Hotel yesterday and scarched, and the documents referred to found therein. Senor Holguin was formerly editor of the La Prensa of Bogota, and was a member of the late Con-

Subsequent information is to the effect that Dr. Holguin was the bearer of certain documents of great political import to General Mosquera and to the President of a foreign Government, the object of which was to upset the present national administration, place General Mosquera at the head of affairs, and ipse facto prevent the seembling of the next Congress, which is to declare who has been the lawfully elected President for the next constitutional term.

The papers speak of the polley to be established through General Mosquera, embracing a concordat with the Pope, the return of the exiled nuns to the convents, the annulment of the laws for the sale of church property, etc. But there is another charge of a still more serious character, the request made to the President of a foreign republic to furnish General Mosquera with the pecuniary and other means to facilitate his operations, the parties making the request giving that high functionary the assurance that they speak in the name of the national party, composed of the great majority of the people, whose representative man is General Mosquera and are possessed of all the elements required to accomplish the object in view.

Affairs in Chili.

Advices from Valparaiso to June 17 report that the merchants and other prominent citizens of that city have united to found a college to be called the "American Institute." The capital is half a million of dollars, in shares of $250 each, payable in five per cent. dividends. Nearly all the required capital has been subscribed, and

From the Auracanian frontier the news coninues to be most unsatisfactory. The Indians have reopened hostilities, and are making raids on the outlying settlements. It is said that on the river Cantin there has been a meeting of "Caciques" or Chiefs, at which it was resolved to reconquer Malleco or to die.

Affairs in Peru. Throughout the southern districts of Peru everything is quiet; yellow fever has completely disappeared, and business is gradually esuming its unwonted activity.

The railway company between Lima and Pisco (one hundred miles) is organized, the survey is finished, and as the line is nearly a dead level all the way, and rails and other material already under way, the line will soon be com-

The project of the Government for colonizing the Amazones region has not been successful. Only one family, that of Colonel Calvo, numbering ten persons in all, have come forward to be the pioneers in that wild but traditionally fertile and wealthy region. Mr. Nystrom, the Govern-ment engineer, and with the late expedition to Chaushamayo under Colonel Pereira, in his report, recently sent in to the Government, makes observations with respect to emi

"It must be noted that in every settled country the most prosperous and populous colonies are those situated on the margins of large and navigable rivers, and that the junction of two or more rivers is still preferable, as is the case in some settlements of the United States of America. On the strength of such experience I therefore propose that the new colonies be established on the peninsula between the rivers Urubamba and Tambo, this being a tract of land very healthy and prolific in all kinds of minerals, and I believe the best adapted for agricultural purposes throughout Peru. All nature's gifts are contained in this peninsula; it is the centre of Peru and the more considerable viscors of the Peru, and the most considerable rivers of the re-public unite in its vicinity, viz., the river Apurimac, rising in the lagoon Velafro in the department of Cuzco, near the confines of the department of Puno. two hundred miles in length to its junction.

The Government of Peru has made the following diplomatic appointments:—Senor D. Alvarez Calderon to be Charge d'Affaires in Italy. This is the same gentleman who gave the Govern-ment a check for $100,000 last year, for the earthquake sufferers. He is an immensely rich man, and, it is said, fills the above appointment without salary Senor Dr. D. Emilio Bonifaz, late Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, goes to Paris as Secretary of the Legation there, and there being no Peruvian Envoy thither named as vet, he will be Charge d'Affaires ad interim. He goes accompanied by several young gentlemen as attaches of the Legation.

NEW YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 24, 1989. Clam-bake.

Were you ever at a clam-bake? I assisted at one yesterday, when an unusual number of clams were worried down. The entertainment came off at the Sea-side House, at Rockaway Beach. The affair was a melange of journalists and actresses, and has been so flashily reported in the New York papers that I say nothing more about it.

Mr. Raymond's Successor. Mr. John E. Bigelow, formerly the managing editor of the Evening Post, has succeeded Mr. Raymond upon the Times. That is the news of the hour. The appointment was made yesterday. Mr. Bigelow is not a young man, but he has something that is better than youth-he has experience. He has been a journalist ever since he was anything at all, has seen a great deal of life and society at home and abroad, and unites great natural administrative abilities to a fine education. Some years ago he went to France as Charge d'Affaires, and owing to the sudden resignation of the American Minister there, was appointed to that minister's place. He is the son-in-law of the poet Bryant, which accounts partly for the high position he has so long held upon the Post. He is a living illustration of the truth of the proverb that handsome is that handsome does; for he is very generally liked in spite of his reputation of being the most unbeautiful man in New York. Now that the appointment has at last been made, I wonder how many heart-burnings have been cooled off! People talk of the jealousies of women and the envies of the green-room, but they have still greater reason to talk of the covetonsness of men and the bitter rivalries of the editorial sanctum. It has been well said that Packard's Monthly is a sort of pocket biographical dictionary. Tom Thumb, Minnie Warren, Commodore Nutt, Lola Montez, the Siamese Twins, Edward Ketchum, Horace Greeley, and other monstrosities figure month after month in its pages, and furnish highly delectable reading for a virtuous public. This month I believe Mr. Barnum proposes to give the true

History of the Marriage Between Tom Thumb and Lavinia Warren. Let those read and believe, who will. Barnum, if I apprehend him aright, tries to make out that the match between this interesting couple was a veritable love match. The truth is, no two people could have been further from thoughts of love than these two were, not only at the moment of marriage but months before the wedding was celebrated. The whole thing was a business speculation got up by Barnum and the respective agents of the predestined dwarfs. Their separated attractions began to fail, and as a stroke of business it was necessary to bring them together. The thing was very eleverly arranged, and brought forth the anticipated results. Tom was artfully plied on the one hand; Lavima was most skilfully managuvred on the other. It was the story of Benedick and Beatrice seen through a microscope. Dwarfs are notoriously obstinate. Tom was averse to marriage, and having been kissed to death by girls and women since the time he was a boy, he naturally despised the sex. He and Lavinia hated each other before they ever met. Their agents worked upon this natural hate and artfully converted it, for a time, into the appearance of love. These two poor little dwarfs were piqued into marrying each other-that is the long and short of it-particularly the short. If by any chance they were found together, they were at once separated with a great show of chagrin and perturbation. And while one set of mercenary go-betweens attended to this part of the business, and vexed them, out of sheer spite, into the desire and determination to see each other, another set were secretly employed to persuade them into what a fine pecuniary advantage it would be to them to become man and wife. Lavinia possesses a spirit and a strength of will which would do credit to many a full-grown man. The argument which was used with her, therefore, was that she would find no difficulty in gaining the upper hand of so feeble-minded a creature as Tom: that she would really be the head of the household, and could keep Tom in charming subjection by allowing him a few shillings a week for pocket money. The course that was pursued with Tom was to persuade him that, as a married man, he would be entitled to the full enjoyment of all sums realized from the public entertainments of himself and wife. These baits took. By degrees, as prudence would admit, these poor little plotted-against mannikins were allowed to be in each other's company. Benedick and Beatrice, so long pitted against one another, finally imagined themselves in love, and Trinity Church soon witnessed the crowning success of Barnum's ingenuity. So much for the wedding between Tom Thumb and Lavinia Warren being a love match!

President Grant will not Demonstrate. If we have a prim President who don't care for parade or show of any kind, we have only ourselves to blame. We elected him to office, and if he is not genial, and don't take with the crowd, and is not fond of making speeches, and don't like to create a sensation at steamboat landings, railroad stations, and hotel fronts, we are in fault for having elected him to office. When General Grant comes to this city, he does so as if he were doing good by stealth and blushing to find it fame. His wife shops surreptitiously, and the family trio devour their luncheon under the rose. The President's coldness and awkwardness, however, have succeeded in freezing the civic functionaries. There is not much clapping of hands and throwing of caps in the air in this city when General Grant's arrival is known. "Let me have no intrusion," is a byword at the Astor House. If this animus continues, the President's memory, after he leaves office, will, I fear, be as evanescent as his own Havanas, and not nearly se fragrant. What manner of man is this? ask the fathers of the city. We have piped unto him, and he will not dance: we have mourned unto him, and he has not lamented; and they turn for relief to "President" Colfax, the hope of 1873.

Has Age Mellowed Dickens? Has any reader of THE TELEGRAPH encountered a little editorial which yesterday appeared in the New York Tribune, and which discovered an "international" significance in Mr. Dickens' recommendation of Mr. Fechter's "Hamlet?" It commences by saying that in all literary history there is hardly mention made of a writer who has grown so kindly and mellow as Mr. Charles Dickens has with advancing years. To quote one instance only, Mr. Thackeray, whom the uncomprehending world stigmatizes as a cynic, has said much more kind and mellow things about Mr. Dickens, a successful rival whom he had every reason to be envious of, than Dickens has said about Fechter, an artist successful in a not the remotest occasion to dread as a competitor. And as to discovering an "international" significance in the Atlantic Monthly article-was ever twaddle worse than this editorially published in a daily newspaper having any reputation for common sense? Who could have written that stupid editorialet? Not Clarence Cook, I hope.

The Newark and New York Railroad was opened yesterday, and every one who felt so inclined rode upon it tree. The trains do not run regularly until Monday. The rate of fare will be only fifteen cents, ten cents less than the old-established lines. The road runs from Communipaw to Newark, and the depot is on Broad street, between Mechanic and Fair. The road was authorized more than two years ago, but only commenced last November, five hundred men having been daily employed. Some thousands of passengers yesterday travelled free. ALI BABA.

CHAMPION SAFES.

GREAT FIRE AT CAMDEN.

CAMDEN, June 7, 1869.

MESSES. FARREL, HERRING & CO. No. 629 Chesnnt Street, Philadelphia. Dear Sirs :- At the very destructive fire of Messrs. McKeen & Bingham's Saw Mill, which occurred on the evening of the 6th instant in this place, the Safe manufactured by you, belonging to the late firm of F. M. Bingham & Garrison, was in the building, and subjected to a very severe test, as the fire raged flercely for several hours; and so great was the heat that the brass plates were melted on, and to our great surprise, when the Safe was opened, we found all the books and papers uninjured. Yours respectfully, SAMURL B. GARRISON, Late of F. M. Bingham & Garrison.
