Alluding to the Eastern policy, he said he would not insist on the programme of 1867, but leave it to the option of Turkey to follow his counsels regarding concessions to the Christians. On this point he would bring no pressure to bear, but declared that he had honestly striven to establish more cordial relations with Prussia, but his efforts were not met in a similar spirit, and he had been unsuccessful. He closed with a strong defense of the general policy of the Austrian Government. The speech was received with great

PIANOS.—It will be welcome news to the musical public that Steinways have succeeded, by the mest gigantic improvements, in raising the Upright Piano from its well-known state of imperfection to that of the most perfect amongst the different shapes of pianos. The Upright Piano of Steinway & Sons now is more durable, keeps better in tune and in order, has more power, a purer and more musical tone, and a better touch than the square piano, and rivals in most of these points even the Grand Piano. Its advantages are so plain and striking that the most prejudiced against this shape of a piano are converted by examining them; and out of twenty who want to buy a Square Piano, nineteen prefer now already an Upright one of S. & S.
