FROM NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, July 28 .- Nicholas Lorsen was held for trial this morning by Commissioner Shields, on the charge of counterfeiting ten and thirty pound tobacco stamps. Ball was entered on behalf of defendant for $5000. The trial of Campbell for the killing of Long was continued to-day. The testimony was closed, and was confirmatory of the evidence yesterday that there was considerable of a riot, Long interfering to rescue his son, and that stones were thrown and struck the prisoner be-fore he shot Long. His character as a man and police officer was also testified to be very good. Under the new law, the prisoner gave evidence on his own behalf agreeing, generally with the other witnesses, but stating more particularly the circumstances of the conflict. In which, half strangled and struck on the spine with a stone, he at last used his pistol. The case will be summed up to-morrow.

Prize Fight.

NEW YORR, July 28.—A prize fight between Dan Mahoney and Jim Brenuan, lu the neigh-borhood of Newark bay, this morning resulted in a victory of the latter on the sixth round. Time, one hour and 30 minutes.

TENNESSEE RAILROAD DISASTER.

List of Killed and Wounded.

LOUISVILLE, July 28,-The entire train and its contents, except the New Orleans sleeping car, was burned, and that was badly damaged.

senger: Badly wounded passengers—Mrs. H. McCall, of New Orleans; Joseph Neut, of New Orleans; H. B. Mitchell, of New Orleans; John Burt, of Columbus, Miss.; Judge Caulkins and wife, of New Orleans; J. J. Buck, of Clarksville; Seth Henderson, colored, of Memphis; C. H. Sage, of Fulton, New York: C. vention broke up in a row after vainly seeking to harmonize, and the factions put the presen-ticket in the field. Not because Stokes is a better Union man than Senter, for in the beginning of the war one was as strongly implicated in the secession movement as the other. In this respect the difference between them does not amount to a row of pins. They finally sided with the loyal party of the State, and were un-alterable in their attachment to it from that time forth.

The canvass in Tennessee turns upon very much the same points as that which has recently closed in Virginia. The question of removing the political disabilities of the white citizens who took part in the Rebellion is at the bottom of it. The question of negro suffrage has no vital place in it, since both factions and candidates are agreed on that point, and solicit the colored vote with equal fervor and diligence. It may, indeed, be said that the only issue of the cam-paign in Tennessee (a few unimportant local saucs aside) is the enfranchisement of the disbled whites.

Do we understand Messes. Boutwell and Cres well to be opposed to that? The declared policy of the Republican party is to remove all disa-bilities and restore to political rights and frauchises as rapidly as may be compatible with the safety of the country. Such, at least, is the inerpretation given to the resolution introduced y General Carl Schurz and adopted by the Chiago Convention without a dissenting voice. It is the opinion of Governor Senter that the time has come, to use his own language, "when the limitations and disabilities which have found their way into our statute-books, as the result of the war, should be abolished and removed, and the privilege of the elective franchise restored and extended, so as to embrace the mass of the adult population of the State." Ex-Governor Brownlow is of the ame opinion, and no one, as is well known, was more uncompromising in withelding the suffrage when it could not be safely granted, than he Even General Stokes has liberalized his view since the opening of the canvass, as did Wells in Virginia, and now professes to be as ready to receive the offenders into political fellowship as Senter himself.

It seems to us, in view of these facts, that there was no occasion for the administration 'to show its hand;" and that it would have been udicious policy at least to have maintained the ame reserve that was practiced in the case of Virginia, where both parties were and are, or profess to be, the friends of the administration. But this comes of Gen. Grant's running off to Long Branch, and leaving his secretaries to "run the machine." Senter's friends should take this view of it. The indorsements of Boutwell and Creswell are good so far as they are personally concerned.

A NEW YORK DEFAULTER.

Where Ex-Postmaster Fowler has Spent the Last Seventeen Years-Civilizing the Savages of Tepico-Instructing an Indian King in the Arts of Peace-The Ex-Postmaster to Return to New York. From the N. Y. Sun,

If perchance it should be your fortune to attend a public banquet, and in the noisy revelry attending the concluding hours of the feast, see the "good, generous wine" flowing like water, if you knew New York you would naturally ask, "What young man is next to be ruined by the politicians?"

Mr. Isaac V. Fowler was, seventeen years igo, Postmaster of New York, and owing to his inability to refund the United States Govrnment moneys defalcated from the Post Office, was compelled to throw up his lucrative position and fly from the country. Since then little or nothing has been heard about him. His many friends will be glad to learn of his whereabouts, and that the genius of the man, spite of the shadow of his misfortune, shines out as conspicuously in Mexico as it did in New York.

THE EX-POSTMASTER'S INFLUENCE IN TEPICO.

The changes which have been wrought in Tepico through the civilized and humane influence of Mr. Fowler are wonderful to contemplate; and more, he has secured the regards and respect of Lozada and his powerful people for the United States and its citizens. He encouraged Lozada to resist the encroachments of the Mexican Government. In another year, Isaac V. Fowler will say good-by to his Tepico friends, to Lozada, all of the famed and once infamous district, and return to New York city.

That Jubilee.

The London Spectator, in commenting on the Loston Jubilee, says .---

There is a curious sort of simplicity, however, in this yearning of the American mind for mere scale-a simplicity which almost locks like a natural result of psychological causes beyond the reach of any caprice or accident of misformed taste. The quaint pride which the Americans have always shown in the great scale of their political life, in the immense areas of their States, in the volume of their mighty rivers, in the vast square-mileage of their lakes, even in the normous dimensions of their catastrophes, when some huge Mississippi steamer, racing till its boiler grows red-hot, suddenly discharges its great human freight into the air and stream, or, dismaller still, one of the bloodiest of human battle-fields remains covered with its tens of thousands of slain and mutilated combatants-this quaint pride in cumulative effects, whether of a joyful or a harrowing kind, must surely have in it some trace of that gigantesque sort of worship which almost always marked Asiatic religions (for example, Hindoo mythologies, which represent gods as churning the ocean with a pole millions of miles in height), and which disappeared only in the closely-compressed life of Western Europe. There is, indeed, the same element in Scandinavian mythology, with its mighty Thor-hammer; and the American Indian le gends of the powers of nature, some of which Longfellow has so picturesquely painted, con-tain a very similar element, which has filtered apparently into the American imagination, and given rise to this curious craving for symbolic demonstrations of human greatness. We suspect there is much more of real psychological analogy between the Asiatic attempt to build a tower that might scale the skies on the plains of Shinar, and this American attempt to peal forth a sort of musical thunder of human liberty and peace at that centre of the world, Boston, Massachusetts, than our Yankee friends would at all admit.

NEW YORK, July 28.-The following is a copy of the correspondence between the Emperor Napoleon and the President of the United States upon the formal opening of the French cable o-day:--- secretary Boutwell's Letter Indorsing Stokes. The letter from Secretary Bontwell to General W. B. Stokes, the radical candidate for Goverfor of Tennessee, a brief synopsis of which was given a few days ago, is as follows:— TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16, 1869.—Hon, W. B. Stokes, Nashville, Ten-nessee.—My Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your letter relating to the political contest in Tennessee. I am greatly interested in your success, believing that the future political character and general prosperity of the State depend largely upon the continuance of the Republican party in power. given a few days ago, is as follows:--

The future pointed iargely upon the continuance of the Republican party in power. It is quite likely that Mr. Senter is receiving the support of members of the Republican party, but it is certain that he is also receiving the unanimous support of members of the Republican party; the enemies of the Congressional plan of reconstruction, and of the principles embodied in the fourteenth and lifteenth amendments to the Constitution of the United States. The interests of the loyal people of Tennessee, both white and black, especially the interests of black people, are to be promoted, and the rights of all are to be made se-cure by your success. The platform of the party is not so good an indication of their purpose as can be obtained from a knowledge of the poiltical char-acter and opinion of the men who control the party. I am sure that you, and those who are supporting you in Tennessee, but we have no right to expect Tam sure that you, and those who are supported the republican party, but we have no right to expect that those who for eight years have opposed the Government and resisted measures for its recon-struction are now to yield cheerful support to the Republican party. Very truly yours, GEORGE S. BOUTWELL,

The Situation Similar to that in Virginia.

From the Cincinnati Commercial, July 26, Why should the administration prefer Stoke to Senter? Not because Stokes is the regular nominee of the Republican party in Tennessee, for no regular nomination was made. The contains fifteen thousand square miles of the most fertile hand on the face of the globe. Every flower, fruit, vegetable, shrub, plant, and tree of every zone can be grown there. No frost ever visits this region. No fertilizer is required for the soil. Its deposits of minerals are inexhaustible. There are gold, silver, copper, iron, and coal fields. The Rio Lerina spreads out into the majesty of a navigable river, as it winds its way to the ocean. This beautiful territory is ruled by Manuel Lozada. It is here that Mr. Fowler has made his home.

MR. FOWLERS' FIRST YEARS IN MEXICO.

Leaving New York, the ex-Postmaster bent his footsteps in the direction of the City of Mexico. He had not been there long before Messrs. Barron, Forbes & Co. solicited him to go to Tepico, to take charge of their cotton manufactory there. Mr. Fowler accepted. At that time it was extremely dangerous for any foreigner to venture out among the barbarian tribes of the interior of Mexico. It is a journey of fifteen hundred miles from the City of Mexico to Tepico, and every league of the distance was infested by murderous brigands, and other outlaws. Mr. Fowler, attended by an escort large enough to cope with the brigand bands by whom he was likely to be attacked, made the journey in twenty days, and arrived in the city of Tepico in September, 1860. He has resided there ever since. The cotton manufactory he found in a very poor condition, but as all the water necessary to run the mill was accessible, his first measures were to improve the power and the place. New machinery was ordered from New York, and the machinists were imported with it. The manufactory buildings, and all the out-buildings, were enlarged and improved. An elegant mansion was constructed for Mr. Fowler's use. The grounds were tastefully laid out, ornamented with trees, plants, and flowers. The natives, instead of harboring jealousy at his enterprise, industry, and taste, on the contrary made him their exemplar.

A VISIT FROM THE INDIAN KING.

Two years after Mr. Fowler's arrival in Tepico, the Indian monarch Lozada, who had heard of the innovations and improvements springing up in the Valley of Tepico, decended from his mountain home to gratify his curiosity. He was delighted. In his opinion there was no other man in the world like Mr. Fowler. He prolonged his visit, and conversed with our former postmaster about American manners, customs, aws, manufactories, &c. The American citizen and politician did not fail to impress on the Indian mind our superior strength and civilization. In a short time Mr. Fowler had no stauncher friend than Lozada, and that potentate has remained his friend ever since. Although Tepico is within the boundary of the republic of Mexico, yet it has acknowedged no other authority than that of Lozada for the last fifteen years. It is true that several attempts have been made to dethrone him, but all have been unsuccessful. He has already repulsed five large armies sent against him. His mode of operation has been to permit his enemies to pass midway through a series of narrow barrancas, and then surround them in the defiles, let his savages loose upon them, and instruct them to spare no one. Nature's barriers are his strongest bulwarks, separating him, his territory and people from the payment of all rent and taxes to the republic of Mexico. He levies no taxes upon his people. Theft is punished with death, and there are consequently few thieves.
