NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED

Extensive Warlike Preparations.

New York had yesterday an excitement that might be classed under the head of first-class At one time, indeed, it was feared that the soldiers of the State would meet in deadly contest with the soldiers of the Government. Happily this was avoided. The New York World of this morning recounts the cir-cumstances of the whole affair, from its commencement to the temporary compromise of yes-terday afternoon, in the following manner:— The United States Court-building was as warlike

The United States Court building was as warmed in its appointments, yesterday, as an arsenal in a beleaguered city. At 5 o'clock in the morning, just the hour when rustic farmers are whetling their seythes in peaceful fields, a detachment of the 1st Regiment United States Artillery marched into the

The police, who had tramped the streets yieldants through the soldiers. by hairing and following the soldiers. The police, who had tramped the streets vigiliantly through the night, were at a loss to know what could call artilierymen into the city or who had summoned them. Various were the speculations as to their mission. Notody knew where they were going, how long they were intending to stay, or what reason could necessitate their presence here. sitate their presence here.

The three companies marched in quick time up Broadway to the United States Court building, where they filed into Marshal Barlow's office, Chambers they fried into Marshal Parlow's once, Chanton's street was drowsy with her last morning nap. No-body stirred through the street, for as soon as the battalion had entered the building the market wagons which had followed the men were dragged away, the occupants, in curious surprise, thinking that the military moved in inscrutable ways to perform their mysterious doings.

Grub for the Garrison. Just after these movements occurred, the Gover-ner's Island subsistence wagon rattled up to the closed door of the United States building. Here a small crowd collected to see three barrels of crackers and bread, one barrel of beef, and several boxes of coffee and sugar, carried into the court building. Now the crowd increased in numbers and inquisi-tiveness. The people about the building were deto know what these great preparations

The Soldiers on Guard exhibited the uncommunicative numness of Shakers when unmoved by the spirit. They did not seem to know anything; they paced up and down the hall in profound abstraction. When questioned by those standing about, they stared, and that was all, except to hitch the gun up on their shoulder in a more com-fortable and unmilitary position. Two of the com-panies were quartered in the Grand Jury room; another one was stationed in the United States Circuit Court Room; a squad was placed in the vesti-bule of Marshal Barlow's office, and three were put on guard in the hall. Captain Shaw, after stationing his men in this way, so as to disturb the success of the direful scheme which was formed in that nursery of dark projects now-a-days—a judge's chamber— chivalricly disposed his limbs to rest. At 9 o'clock the guard was increased, so that the main hallway of the building looked like

Nothing was done, however, except the steak which a restaurant sent in for Marshal Barlow,

The Marshal sat at his table all day, and a rusty sword laid beside him, with which he intended to awaken valor in the battalion if they were attacked. A grim smile stole over the Marshal's countenance when some one suggested the propriety of girding i on his thigh and going forth unattended. The Mar shal did not do so, it is needless to say. The guards now relaxed their vigilance, bestowing more atten-tion on some tobacco, which they smoked laboriously

> An Armistice-Pratt to be Produced on Monday A short time prior to 1 o'clock, the hour at which the Pratt case was to be called up before Judge McCunn in the Superior Court, Special Term, United States District Attorney Pierrepont made his appearance, and had a conference with Judge McCunn in a private room of the latter. The interview resulted in an understanding that Pratt would be produced on Monday, Judge McCunn in the meantime to refrain from issuing his warmeantime to refrain from issuing his war-rant for the production of Pratt or for the arrest of Marshal Barlow. During the interview, District Attorney Pierrepont informed Judge McCann that President Grant, before his departure from the city, had given to Marshal Barlow an autograph order for a detachment of the 1st Artillery for his protection from arrest. Judge McCann, in reply, said Marshal Barlow would have from arrest. Judge McCunn, in reply, said Marshal Barlow would have to keep the artillerists during the term of his office; that he would have either Barlow or the prisoner Pratt. The general impression now is that Pratt will be brought before Commissioner Osborn on Monday moraing, and by him be discharged. Judge McCunn has received a large number of letters from prominent individuals approving his action.

The Marshal and His Guard. General Barlow was anxious to fice the clouds of threatening war, and so, by disguising his head in a threatening war, and so, by disguising his head in a cap and seizing a carpet-bag in his hand, the Marshal, undetected, made his way to the rear of the building, where a carriage awaited him. Getting into this carriage and supported by the officers of the battalion, he rested unknown in Reade street, until a bodyguard of twenty men of the artillery were ready, and thus escorted he made his way to the Battery, where he embarked for Staten Island. It was soon known that Barlow had avoided the crowd, and a general expression of pity for the timidity of the man was heard. People talked meaningly about Monday, and seemed satisfied to wait the day when justice, they say, will show herself to a wondering multitude. After conducting the General to his boat the guard returned to the building, where they will be quartered until after Monday.

Resume of the Case.

Resume of the Case. The position of Marshal Barlow in the Pratt case, before resorting to the extraordinary measures of surrounding himself with a detachment of artiliery, was as follows:—Having arrested J. H. Pratt, charged with murder at Jefferson, Texas, he sent the prisoner before United States Commissioner born for a preliminary examination, to ascertain bether the charges against him were well founded and sufficient to justify the commissioner in holding sing sofficient to justify the commissioner in holding him for trial. Not being ready to proceed at once with the hearing, the commissioner committed the prisoner, without ball, and set down the case for the next day. Meanwhile, Fratt applied and obtained, through his counsel, a writ of habeas corpus from Judge McCunn, of the Superior Court. It happened that this writ was made returnable at the same time that the examination of the prisoner was to take place before Mr. Osborn. The Marshal took Pratt before Judge McCunn, after obtaining permis-Pratt before Judge McCunn, after obtaining permission from Mr. Commissioner Osborn, the argument on the writ was heard, and two days thereafter Judge McCunn gave his decision, discharging the prisoner from the custody of the Marshal. Mr. Barlow says that Judge McCunn, a State officer, has not the power to compel him, a United States officer, to discharge the prisoner. Whereupon Judge McCunn writes a warrant for the arrest of Marshal Barlow for a contempt of court, and the latter, who now has Pratt safely ensonced within the walls of Fort Schuyler, says he will not be taken. He hears that the warrant is in the hands of deputy sheriffs for execution, and forthwith he sends to General Grant for protection. General Grant replied General Grant for protection. General Grant replied

Grant's Order. General Barlow, United States Marshal, Southern District of New York:—I hereby direct you to maintain the laws of the United States, and to resist all efforts to take the prisoner J. H. Fratt from your custody, whether by order of Judge McCunn or any other officer of the State Courts. I also authorize and request you to use all means to resist the attempt to effect your arrest and stop the execution of the laws of the United States. the laws of the United States.
U. S. GRANT, President.

General McDowell Responds. On receiving this Marshal Barlow sent to General McDowell, at Governor's Island, and asked for a detachment of troops to protect him from arrest by the sheriff. General McDowell responded by order ing battalions from companies C, D, and M of the First Regiment United States Artillery, to proceed to the Marshal's office, in Chambers street, under the command of Captain R. G. Shaw. The men, numbering forty-seven privates and four officers, marched into the Federal building between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

PENDLETON.

What is Said of His Nomination for the Ohio Governorship,

The Toledo Commercial remarks:-"This is a nomination which, we think, all must admit to be eminently "fit to be made"—as appro-priate, in fact, as that of his predecessor was inap-propriate. For the Ohio Democracy to make a standard-bearer of a prominent Union soldier was standard-bearer of a prominent Union soldier was shocking to every sense of fitness; but to take one of the two men who, until discarded by their constituents, stood shoulder to shoulder in opposition to war neasures in Congress, and insuited the national sense with harangues in approval of rebellion, was just what they did in 1868, and nothing could be more fit than to take the other, as they have, in 1869. The Vallandigham men wanted one of that stripe nominated on the 7th of July, but not succeeding, rather than take a man not known to have been outspoken against the war-like Ranney-they deter-mined to go out of the party, and nominated a Union soldier. Pendleton might have been nominated then but he refused. But in the declination of Rosect that experiment broke down, and now the pendulum swings back to the other extreme, and takes Pendle-They have now a representative man, who will desert them, and the people know where to find him and them. The Columbus State Journal (Rep.) discusses the situation as follows:—

"Some men are born to ill-fortune, some achieve it, and some have it thrust upon them. It is rarely that we find one individual in his own proper person occupying two of these classes at once. position of Mr. Pendleton precisely. After resisting the nomination attempted to be thrust upon him by his enemies in the convention, he finds himself now forced through very despair to take the nomination as the only hope of his political salvation. With no hope of an election at the time of the State Convention, his declination was an act of simple self-preservation; with a hundred times less chance of election now, he finds himself forced to take the nomination to preserve the party from disintegration, and risk the chances of recognition by the National Convention for his martyrdom here. or what chance would an Ohio man have in th next National Convention with no party at his back? The outlook for the Democratic leaders is gloomy enough. The nomination of Rosecrans was a bitter dose, and his declination has left the party totally demoralized. The nomination nearly split the party—the rejection of the proffered honor has stamped it. There is no fight in it now, until it shall be reorganized, rearmed and equipped, and drilled in the new movements. The awkward squad of renegade "Republicans must be 'set up,' Connell must learn to step rear-rank to Baber, and 'cover' that scattering, stradling straggler, as his file leader. The Democratic press, which has grown quite warlike in tone during the last month, must change front to the rear. Talk about 'our gallant leader' must give The nomination of Rosecrans was a bitt the rear. Talk about 'our gallant leader' must place to decorous allusions to our distinguis statesman; the press must dwell more upon the re served rights of the States, and less upon the tri-umph of the nation; coercion, from being a groundwork of glory, must change to the unpardons The fex-bility (New York World, we thank thee!) of the platform adapts it equally to Rosecrans, the warrior, and his deadly enemy, Pendleton, the peace man. And the mouth of the press is equally flex-lible. We shall find it promptly set to the new

The Cincinnati Gazette observes:-"He deserves well of his party for accepting the nomination, and the party is fairly entitled to his services in this strait. And it was also a necessity to Mr. Pendieton; for if he had aspirations for the next nomination to the Presidency, it would not do to let his party lose Ohio through default of a desired candidate. And whether the State went Republican without him or with him, would have about the same fatal effect on his chances for the Presidential nomination. It was a case in which he had everything at stake, and therefore it was fit and necessary that he should take the standard. Mr. Pendleton's nomination will make the canvass lively, whereas it threatened to be excessively dull. Mr. Pendleton enters into the canvass in the desperate hope of making Ohio a base of his operations for the Presidency. He can promise no good to the people of the State. His party is bound by no defined principles, and is incapable of undertaking any reform. It has not even the virtues that come easy to the opposition; for wherever there is corruption. Democratis are found with their hands in it and Democratic organs give it their sympathies. It presents to us a representative of all its unfaithfulness to the nation in its struggle for life, and of all its subsequent recklessness of political principles." same fatal effect on his chances for the Preside

Arrest of a Gang of Counterfeiters and Dealers in Sparious Paper in New York, From the N. Y. Tribune of this morning. For a long time the police have been in possession of information that a gang of swindlers were operating among the dishonest portion of the community. One known as a dealer in foreign bonds would be informed that he could have a number of them at a rate much below the market value; a place and time would be designated; the victim, with the necessary funds in his possession, would repair to the place, and, the preliminaries settled, would be shown a package on which was displayed a genuine Gov-ernment bond. He would be informed that there was great danger of a descent by the police and the actual transfer must be conducted with the atmost secreey and celerity. This informa-tion would scarcely be given when the cry "The potice are here!" would be raised, the package would be transferred, and his money taken, and the parties would hurriedly separate. Of course, victim would not dare to open his package until he had reached some seeluded place, and then he ascertained that the package was filled with old papers and sawdust. The victim feared to make formal complaint to the law officers against those who swindled him, for the reason that he had been engaged in an unlawful transaction. In this manner several persons have action. In this manner several persons have been victimized. One person, known to the police, has lost $7000, another $5000, a third $3500, and a fourth $1300, and others smaller amounts. A few days ago General Daniel Butterfield, United States Sub-Treasurer, and Detective Sampson, detailed them, received information that overtures had been made to a certain person in the city to sell him a quantity of stolen bonds. Superintendent Kennedy was informed of the fact, and he detailed Detectives Tully, Tilly, and Eustace to ork up the case. They were aided by Detective Sampson. A convenient dummy named Rush was I rocured, who had a meeting with the men who wished to sell the bonds. On Thursday he tet the men by appointment at Bousch's Hotel, the corner of Third and Hudson streets, Toboken. The detectives were stationed Hoboken. in a dwelling on the opposite side of the street, where they had a complete view of the hotel and neighborhood. On this occasion two men made their appearance, Gabriel Gerushym, of No. 140 South Fifth street, Williamsburgh, and L. A. Brown, and Bush, being conducted to an upper room, after some prelimi nary skirmishing, the men finally agreed to sell $125,000 worth of United States Five-twenty onds for $106,000. The offer was closed with but acting under instructions from the detec tives, the dummy declined to take the bonds until the following day, alleging that he had not the amount necessary to pay for them. Yester-day at 1 P M, the detectives again repaired to helr hiding place, and soon after 3 P. M. Gernshym, Brown, and one J. W. Laidlaw made their appearance at short intervals, and entered the hotel alone, apparently having no business with each other. Gernshym carried a package under his arm. In the hotel the parties were met by the dummy, who had, in the mean time, been provided with $106,000 in counterfeit money, of the denominations of tens, twenties, and fifties. The dummy was taken to the room on the third story, and there the preliminaries being settled, the package supposed to contain the bonds was given him. In this case, the stakes being large, the rascals purchased yes-terday a $1000 five-twenty bond of the second terday a $1000 five-twenty bond of the second series at the banking house of Fisk & Hatch, paying therefor $1:37.50. This bond was conspicuously displayed on the outside of the package handed Rush. He, in return, gave Gerushym the package of counterfeit money, and left the room. No sooner had he done so than he gave the signal and the officers rushed from their the signal, and the officers rushed from their hiding places, and, entering the hotel, hurried to the room occupied by the swindlers, whose lo-

were three rooms communicating with each other, and all of these opened into the hall, the inner one being nearest the staircase leading to the lower floors. Hearing the officers coming,

the rascals retreated to the inner room, and when the officers entered the room it was empby the swindlers. The prisoners asked if the fummy (whom they were unaware was in were told that he had been. They then professed their willingness to accompany the officers, and were brought to this city and locked up at Police Headquarters. In their possession were found memoranda and receipts of various kinds of bonds, wines, and other articles. It is alleged that these men have also operated in va-

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

Court of Quarter Sessions-Judge Brewster. uninteresting habeas corpus cases were Joe, the professional thief who was this week con-victed of two charges of larceny, was sentenced to the County Prison for two years. John Fetter, who pleaded guilty to a charge of the larceny of goods that were entrusted to him to be nade up into garments, was sentenced to County Prison for four months. McNally, who was arrested with his wife in Second street, a few days ago, as a professional thief, applied for his discharge upon habeas corpus; and the testimony of Detectives Tryon and Levy only going to show that he was arrested while his wife was in the act of picking a lady's pocket, and he was hastenng to the spot, but was not seen to take any part in the transaction, his Honor granted the discharge.

The Louisville Courier says: -"There will be in the next session of the Kentucky Legislature a greater portion of gentlemen who served the Confederacy than was observed in the last ses-sion." The fifteenth amendment will enfranchise fifty thousand voters who seem to be greatly needed in the politics of Kentucky. Though Senter has secured his own o

SECOND EDITION FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

OFFICE OF THE EVENING TELEGRAPH, Saturday, August 14, 1869.

There was an active demand for money to-day, and business borrowers mustered in full force both at the banks and on the street. There is a good supply of currency on hand, but not sufficient to alter the tone of the loan market, which continues as for several days past. The chief attention is attracted at the present time to the condition, present and prospective, of the gold and Government loan markets, which, in consequence of successful bear movements, have been unsettled for several days.

The recent decline in the price of the latter enabled the Secretary of the Treasury to make an advantageous purchase. A rumor is affoat, but probably without foundation, that Mr. Boutwell has in baby without foundation, that Mr. Bottwell has in contemplation a financial scheme for the relief of the specie market, and which will effect a heavy decline in the premium with a corresponding fall in general prices. If the report is true, we only hope the plan will be put into speedy execution.

Gold is steady and somewhat active. The opening

Government securities showed a very slight improvement. 1881s are quoted at 122%, and 68 of The Stock market was exceedingly dull this morning, but prices generally were sleady. In State loans the only transaction was in the War Loan at 101. City sixes were steady, with sales of the flew issue at 102½ 102½. Lehigh Gold Loan was taken at 20 a decline.
