A DIET OF RATS FOR THE LABOR. ING CLASSES.

LAST evening, for the first time, a sensible query was propounded in the frothy labor convention which has been holding its sessions here during the present week. A colored delegate from Maryland was upon the floor. engaged in the discussion of the coolie question. According to his view of the case, the coolie comes to this country, if he comes at all, not to take the place of the negro laborer, but to push the white man to the wall; and in support of this theory, the sable gentleman from Maryland turned upon his paler colleagues with the pertinent question, "Can you eat rats ?" A roar of laughter was the only response which the brawny sons of toil could make, but the response was characteristic of the utter lack of wisdom and common sense which has marked their proceedings from the outset.

After five days were passed in wrangling over that irrepressible gentleman, Miss Susan B. Anthony, and in listening to the stupid vagaries of old Frank Blair and Helper, the renegade of "Impending Crisis" fame, interspersed with the still more stupid platitudes which the delegates themselves brought forth. the so-called Congress, late in the session of yesterday, reached the momentous question of a vote upon the platform. As adopted, it is constituted of seventeen planks, and each plank is worthy of its origin. All the bosh and nonsense which Blair and Helper and the rest of them have gotten off' during the week is here boiled down and simmered out until it presents as frail and airy a fabric as a strip of gossamer cloth. The national banking system is denounced because, of course, no member of the convention has his name upon a list of stockholders; and because, furthermore, it conflicts with a wonderful document known as the Constitution of the United States. The present rate of interest is denounced, because, as a man with half an eye can see, at five per cent. twice as much money can be borrowed as when the rate of interest is at ten. The entire monetary system of the country is denounced, because, as the world goes, it is capital that employs labor, and not labor that employs capital, and the attempt of labor to enslave capital is not always and invariably successful. The payment of the national debt in the hard coin to which the nation is pledged, the present rate of interest paid by the Government, and the exemption of the national securities from taxation are denounced, because the bloated bondholders take a different view of meum and tuum from that held by the revolutionary members of the Congress. Land monopolies are de nounced because, when a laboring man enters upon this sphere of speculation, he loses all interest in labor unions and labor congresses, and in the cheap buncombe in which they delight to indulge. Ten hours daily toil are denounced, because eight hours will give a laboring man more time to study political economy and finance and agitate the great labor question, even at the expense of a decrease of twenty per cent. in the amount of his daily earnings. The equal assessment of taxation is denounced, because, if all the revenue of the Government were derived from the capitalists, the laborers could better afford to devote a good share of their time to attendance upon labor congresses. And, finally, although Miss Susan B. Anthony was so roughly handled by the convention, the women of the country are invited to rally around the standard of the men and participate in the grand revel which will follow the impending overthrow of the present order of things. Precisely what the convention is doing to-day we are not advised as we write, but there is one thing which it has promised to do that receives our hearty endorsement, and that is to adjourn. The city has had about enough of it, and will take leave of the delegates without any profound expressions of regret. They have accomplished nothing, and despite the passage of a resolution to get up a new party which shall smash all the old parties without much ado, and the defeat of a resolution declaring that nothing in the platform shall be construed as a repudiation of the national debt, it is safe to say that they have harmed no one except themselves and injured nothing save the cause which they professed to represent. If the sun, moon, and stars should chance to take the back track, at the bidding of the Congress, and a general moral. social, economical, financial, industrial, and cosmical upheaval should result, the laboring classes throughout the country would be compelled to respond in the affirmative to the query of the dusky savan from Maryland: --"Can you eat rats?" THE NEW YORK JUDICIARY. THE people of this city have heard often enough comments on the scandalous corruption in the New York courts, but except the comparatively few who habitually read the daily papers of that city in which the proceedings of the courts are reported in detail, have any adequate idea of the demoralization that actually exists. In the hands of such men as Justices Barnard, McCunn, Cardozo, and others of the New York bench, justice is not merely a burlesque, but its name is used to cover a multitude of orimes. These men are the paid employes of politicians, railroad speculators, and ring-masters generally, and all the machinery of the law is put in operation whenever required for the benefit of their clients. All the powers of the judiciary in the way of mandamuses, injunctions, writs of habeas corpus, attachments, etc., are used with a recklessness and utter want of scruple that bid fair to ruin some of the greatest business enterprises of the city and the State, if some means for effecting a reform is not speedily devised. The Erie war and the Susquehanna Railroad war, in which rival bands of stock gamblers fired away at each other with injunctions and counter injuctions from different courts of concurrent jurisdiction, until such ammunition being exhausted they actually came to blows and bloodshed, are recent instances that have attracted the attention of the whole country. In the case of the last-named road, matters come to such a pass, that to preserve the public peace, the Governor of the State was obliged to interfere and take the matter into his own hands, thus superseding the courts.

The precedent thus set is itself full of evil augury for the future, but under the circumstances nothing else was to be done, and this illegal assumption of power met with general commendation.

The New York Times, which is the most unpartisan, the most independent, and generally the most impartial and discreet of the journals of that city, gave, a few days ago, a severe but just and perfectly correct review of Judge Barnard's conduct in the Susquehanna Railroad difficulty. It showed how he issued the writs of his Court, not from the bench, but from the office of the Erie Railroad Company, and proved conclusively that he was nothing more nor less than the paid employe of Fisk and his co-conspirators. This article touched Barnard to the quick, and yesterday at the opening of the Court he commenced a tirade against the present as well as the late editor of the Times, stating with regard to the supposed writer of the article, that he (Barnard) had saved him some five years ago from being sent to the penitentiary for forgery, and then asserted that the late Mr. Raymond had gone home drunk and fell down dead after attacking and misrepresenting the character of Barnard, thereby implying that the sudden death of the honored editor of the Times was a judgment from heaven on account of Barnard. This judge also stated that hereafter he intended to make a personal expose of the personal character of his assailants; so we may expect some highly edifying remarks about the private history of the prominent New York journalists from him ere long. As for the charge brought against the memory of Mr. Raymond, or the still more disgraceful allegations with regard to the present editor of the Times, no one believes them; and no one will, except on better evidence than the vindictive asseveration of a man of Judge Barnard's well-known character.

Another characteristic specimen of the New York Judiciary is McCunn, who does the dirty work of the Democracy, and whose recent conflict with the United States authorities has brought him into notoriety. McCunn has again distinguished himself by ordering the unconditional release of the defaulting teller of the Tennessee Bank, refusing to postpone proceedings, although he was graves. Reynolds, Sedgwick, Birney, Far worth, and many other officers are dead, r Sickles, whose conduct has been sever criticized, as well as many other officers w took an active part in the conflict, will nee sarily be absent. At the best, any new de sions that may be reached will therefore not fortified at all points by absolutely conclus evidence, and some of the questions invol will probably remain as open to future do and dispute as they are at this moment. the reunion results in an attestation of so of the leading facts, this is perhaps all th can be reasonably expected.

informed that the Governor had remanded the man to the custody of the Tennessee authorities on the requisition of the authorities of that State.

These instances show in the most glaring manner the magnitude of the evils of an elective judiciary, especially where the Democracy are able to obtain the control of the political machinery. In this city we have managed thus far to keep our courts pure and unspotted by a suspicion of the sale of justice, but the elective system which we have as well as New York is an evil that may some day master us as it has done our sister city. The Judges of the New York bench wield a power that ought not to be in the hands any man or set of men in a free country. They are their own masters, and the masters of the people, responsible to nobody but themselves, and perfectly willing to sell themselves to the highest bidder. New York submits to a great deal in the way of official corruption; but it does not seem that the present state of affairs can last much longer. Already the Union Pacific Railroad has been obliged to remove its office to another city, and other great companies are preparing to follow suit; and if something is not done in the way of reform, the Democracy will be the ruin of New York, as it has been the ruin of whatever else it has touched.

THE GETTYSBURG REUNION.

Ir special pains are not taken by those who engineer the Gettysburg reunion movement to avoid partiality, there is danger that, instead of setting history right, undue weight may be given to erroneous theories, and that the whole demonstration will result in a gigantic gratuitous advertisement of the new watering-place on the one hand, and injustice to the memory of some of the dead and absent heroes of the fight on the other. It is perhaps unavoidable at Gettysburg, as well as at all other great battle-fields, to prevent the men in epaulettes from monopolizing the honors won by the hard fighting and unfailing courage of the rank and file. How many blunders or neglects of commanding officers were covered up during the three days' fight by the heroism of the boys in blue the world will never know; but even the disputed questions between the officers may not be equitably adjusted if the attendance of representative men is not complete. The absence of a single important witness may turn the whole scale of evidence in an ordinary murder trial, and before a complete and veritable account of the details of one of the greatest battles of the world can be compiled, every essential link of testimony should be supplied. This is even more essential at Gettysburg than on ordinary battle-fields, not only on account of the magnitude and complicated nature of the movements which occurred there, but on account of the bitter controversies which have arisen in regard to the struggle. Some of the most important witnesses now slumber in honored |

Puritan's Daughter, and perhaps will be prevailed upon to do "Juliet" or "Rosina," in the latter of which, because of the short dress, she s said to present an extremely attenuated appearance. Carl Rosa is going to be the business manager of the establishment, and Parepa-Rosa is going to be the business manager of him. Each having a suitable department to attend to, harmony must be the result. I am not surprised to learn that Philadelphia is Getting Short of Water.

Any city which permits its Biddles to wash front pavements to the extent the front pavements of Philadelphia are washed before 7 o'clock of a Saturday morning, deserves such a visitation as this. Fairmount has for a long time winked at the iniquity of this waste of water, and can only remedy the evil by removing the cause.

The efforts of a gang of New York roughs to Break Up a Picnic, which took place a day or two ago at one of the suburbs, have struck a heavy blow at these summer jaunts. The Emmett Guard, every member of which was accompanied by one or more ladies, was celebrating some festal occasion, when it was suddenly attacked by a crowd of these ruffians, whose choicest pleasure it is to insult women and children. In an instant the happy pleasure-party were converted into the actors of a scene which at one time bade fair to end tragically. Fortunately the Emmett Guard were too numerously and chivalrously represented for the ruffians to make as much way as they expected, although several of the Emmett Guard were severely wounded. Concy Island is one of the worst resorts of these gangs, and it is a wonder that, in spite of all the efforts of the Commissioners, they have not yet penetrated into Central Park. Probably because, on making an attempt some years ago, they met with their match at once, and were put down in such a manner as gave them no hope of any ultimate success. The Emmett Guard affair, however, has put an end to the picule furore. It will see no resurrection until next summer. ALI BABA.
