MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

AT THE WALNUT Mrs. Rose Watkins will have a benefit this evening, when will be produced, for the first time, a romantic drama of the American Revolution, entitled The Pioneer Patriot; or, The Maid of the War Path, which, if there is anything in a name, ought to be as thrilling as a dime novel.

The performance will commence with the comic sketch entitled An Unprotected Female. AT THE ARCH the blonde season will com-mence on Monday evening, and Miss Lydis Thompson and her troupe of burlesquers will appear in the extravaganza of Sinbad the Sailor. The sale of seats will commence to-day, and as the troupe has been heartily abused in advance it seems probable that tickets will be at a premium by the time of the opening of the on Monday evening. People will be anxious to see for themselves whether the blondes are as bad in their behavior as they are said to be.

MEWS SUMMARY.

-The burial of Thomas L. Evans, who was killed by his son, Marshall K. Evans, took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, No. 306 S. Tenth street. The services were performed at the house by Rev. Dr. Suddards. So large a number assembled to witness the funeral, and if possible gain admittance to the house to view the remains of the deceased, that it was found necessary to station a squad of police in and about the premises to prevent all save relatives and friends of the family from obtaining ingress. The interment took place at Woodlands emetery.

—Last night about half-past eight o'clock a number of young men were observed lurking about the neighborhood of Eighth and Buckley streets; soon after some of them were seen to set fire to a pile of shavings in Buckley street. The flames were about igniting a lime box, when Officer Rourke making his appearance, the men ran through Buckley into Seventh street, and made their escape. The fire was kindled in close proximity to a stable. which it was thought the men intended to burn. The officer extinguished the flames by throwing dirt upon the burning material. -About five o'clock yesterday afternoon John Morrison, aged twenty years, and Michael McKee, while at work on the cornice of a house, at Cumberland and Tulip streets, fell to the ground. Morrison was badly injured.

London, Aug. 26.—The Harvard and Oxford crews have only practised starts to-day. The Elliott boat, in which the Harvards have decided to row to-morrow, is 44 feet leng, 21 inches wide at the widest part, and 8 inches deep; depth over all, 111 inches; depth forward, 7 inches; aft, 6 inches. She was built on a draft model brought from New York, and is of purely American construction, even the framework having been brought over with the crew. The oars to be used were made by Ayling. The following is the weight of the crew: as they stand to-day: -Fay, bow, 155 pounds; Lyman, 155 pounds; Simons, 171 poundss Loring, stroke, 154 pounds; Burnham, coxs.

wain, 112 pounds. Oxfords-Darbishire, stroke, 1591 pounds Tinney, 1891 pounds; Yarborough, 1691 pounds; Willan, bow, 164 pounds; Hall, coxswain, 101 pounds. Galston, Captain of the London Rowing Club, will be umpire for the Harvards, and Chitty, probably, of the Oxonians. Blakie has been chosen starter, and Sir A. Paull will probably be agreed upon as judge. The Oxfords are confident of winning, but the Americans are hopeful. Simmons is again slightly indisposed to-day. Blaikie has written a letter to the Times, for publication on Saturday, protesting against the comments of | ness, physical perfection rather than physical the English press in regard to the Harvard degeneracy, in the women they select as style of rowing, and against the assertions respecting an alteration in their style. He declares that their style now differs in no respect from that in which they always practised at home.

The Pall Mall Gazette says:-"If the Harvards are beaten it will be by the best crew ever seen on the Thames; one which would make short work of the fastest Henley crew. There need be no fear but the race will be rowed entirely on its merits.'

GETTYSBURG.

Positions of the Second, Third, Pifth and Sixth Corps Determined—Intricate Questions Defi-nitely Settled.

GETTYSBURG, Aug. 26,-A number of gentlemen met at the Springs this morning, and visited the Apple Orchard, Peach Orchard, Wheatfield, Round Top, and intermediate points, occupied respectively by the troops of the 2d, 3d, 5th and 6th corps, and two divisions of the 1st. The party consisted of Generals Graham, Robinson, Devereaux, Bingham, Hunt, Dana, Sweetzer, Medill, Webb, Newton, Stannard, Gates, Baxter, Duff and McCallister; Colonels Burns and Banks, and other military officers; and also civilians, together with members of the Battle-field Memorial Board. The positions of the above-named corps were fixed, and about twelve hours were spent in the work. The party were in wagons and on foot, and over one hundred stakes were driven at important points Some of the most intricate questions, about which there had been varying opinions, were definitely settled. The places where Sickles, Hancock, and Graham were wounded and others killed were designated. The only spot where men were killed with bayonets, on either side to any extent, was carefully examined and marked. A number of the most prominent Generals and other officers, who participated in the battle in the woods and fields, and on the hillides, on the ground examined to-day, were present on the occasion. General Hill, of the Second Maine, has fixed the position of his battery, which spened the battle on the first day, to the right of the barn on the front ridge, be tween the Cashtown road and the railway ent. a number of officers who participated in the first two days' fight left here this morning, the several positions of their commands having been fixed on the field. The general lines of the third day's battle will be staked to-morrow.

The marble statue representing "Plenty" was to-day placed on the monument in the Soldiers Cometery. The remaining corner will be occupied by that of "Peace," The statues of "War" end "History" have for some time been in posi-

The Woman of the Future. From the Pall Mail Gazette.

Novels are not more eagerly devoured by the unthinking multitude than the clap-trap written in the present day about women Pope's famous line, "And fools rush in where angels fear to tread," can be so fitly applied to no other kind of criticism, and naturally enough, as it requires little else but audacity and proves extremely lucrative, the crop is abundant. One may safely say that a young author's fortune is made who can abuse women in a lively, ill-natured, and authoritative manner.

Frivolous, discontented, irrational, a creature of whims, a devotee of fashion: a victim of ennui, morally, physically, and intellec-tually feeble—such is the woman of the present according to the satirists. The marvel is that they wish to see unchanged what they denounce as contemptible. If anything is proposed by which some of these faults must inevitably be eradicated, these consistent critics take affright. Let us keep these angels of perfection as they are, cry they, soft cushions whereon to rest masculine asperities. What would the world be like if womankind were changed from the lovely thing it is? and so on, the inconsenent multitude listening and believing Fortunately for all, this kind of writing, like any other form of sensationalism in literature, is of the day only, and will pass away, What has been said so often will tire even the foolish at last, and "We have piped unto you but ye have not danced" will be the lament of these once popular detractors. A great change, moreover, is taking place in public opinion regarding the education of women. The wise are more inclined to weep than to laugh over the frivolities of the sex, and see no reason why this as well as any other element of unhappiness should not be eradicated from society. On one point we imagine alike the serious-minded and the scoffer, the reformer and the epigrammatist, to be at one-namely, that frivolity is evil and not good. Those who love the truth for truth's sake, and consider each individual life as an important unit of humanity, are bestirring themselves to remedy the evil those who live without any sense of moral responsibility whatever try to hinder the work from pure selfishness or prejudice. To discuss the numerous schemes on behalf of the better education of women is quite foreign to the purpose of this paper. A few of these have already passed from the ordeal of popular contempt into the sunshine of popular favor; some still in embryo are too rational to meet with opposition from any quarter. Many others will doubtless be proposed when the world is ready for them. To own in the face of these facts that the woman of the future will resemble the woman of the present is to deny the entire sex all capability of moral and intellectual growth. If occupation exercises any influence upon the character whatever-and there is little doubt that it exercises great inthankful for the change. Deprecating as we do the sweeping assertions of clap-trap duence—generations to come will indeed feel critics, we are forced to admit that there is wide room for improvement. Women are not universally so beautiful, so wise, and so good as they might be, and it is to the interests of humanity that they should be beautiful, wise, and good. Consider, in the first place, the question of beauty. The more hopeful look forward to the time when something of the old Greek feeling for physical perfection shall have revived, and a simpler and more healthful life shall have fitted women to become mothers of a noble race. In this respect we are wiser than of old, but, though hygiene and common sense have done much for ourselves, they have done much more for our children. We of the present generation are the offspring of tight-lacing mothers; but small waists, tight shoes, and other abominations are no longer universal. Dress is much better adapted to out-of-door life than formerly. Etiquette has been relaxed, and our young women enjoy a freedom from physical restraint undreamed of by their grandmothers. Health has ceased to be the monopoly of the other sex. Still the majority of women lead far from wholesome lives; and as beauty is more or less a matter of health, too much can never be said against such abuses of it as are yet in fashion. The worst of these abuses is that they lead to a perversion of taste. Quite naturally the fragile type of beauty has become the standard of the present day, and men admire in real life the lily-cheeked, small-waisted, diapha-

nous-looking creatures idealized by living artists. When we become accustomed to a nobler kind of beauty we shall attain to

than prettiness, strength rather than weak-

a lortier ideal. Men will seek nobility rather joice and sculptors will cease to despair when this happy consummation is reached. Let none regard it as chimerical or Utopian. A very little rationalism brought to bear upon daily life would place physical wellbeing within reach of woman of all ranks; and where health leads the way, beauty is seldom slow to follow. Few will deny that wisdom whose essence is common sense has a large share in determining the happiness of social and domestic life. Is it not reasonable to suppose that the various reforms in female education will have proportionate effect upon the female character, and that the woman of the future will differ from the woman of the present intellectually as well as physically? Steady culture, increased habits of self-reliance, wider views of life, and a keener appreciation of the truth for truth's sake, can but enlarge and elevate the whole sex. The obvious inference is that just as a more healthful mode of existence will invigorate and beautify the bodies of women, so a rational mode of existence will strengthen and improve their minds. Frivolity, pettiness, inactivity, and other faults of which men most complain, will make room for opposite qualities; and who shall aver this to be against the interests of humanity? Perhaps nothing causes more domestic unhappiness than downright silliness. A foolish wife will often bring about as much mischief in her husband's home as a persistently evil-tempered one could do, and with the best intentions in the world, is sure to hinder and hamper him upon every occasion. Now, silliness is the first stronghold of evil that a good system of education will storm. Just so long as girls are trained to frivolity and irresponsible habits from childhood upwards will they become frivolous and irresponsible wives and mothers. In granting, then, that the woman of the future must of necessity inherit a large share of physical and intellectual excellence, we are ed to extend the same happy prophecy to the moral faculties. Women often commit grave as well as small errors, not because they are perverse by nature, but because their reason s at fault, and they fail to recognize the proportionate relation of things. Again, habits of subservience induce a cowardly attitude of mind. Very few women have the courage to be individual. Very few women estimate their own lives of any value in the fullest sense of the word. They know well enough that they have some use as wives, mothers, and daughters: but that they can have any share in the well-being of the world does not occur to them. Self-development conveys to their minds something quite apart from the duty of wife, mother, or daughter, while the truth is that self-development embraces every other duty. Ill, therefore, does it become those who satirize women to hinder any efforts made on their behalf, whether educational or social; always remempering this, however, that such efforts are likely to do very little good which tend to make of women weak initations of men.
