

NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Sept. 3, 1869. Dana and Greeley. Whenever the New York Sun wishes to pour...

"How late could burn In hearts once changed from soft to stern. Nor all the false and fatal zeal The convert to revenge can feel."

No one better understands the unchristian art of heaping coals of fire than C. A. D. does. Hence the lavish praise of every editorial in the Sun which refers to Greeley, and which would seem like sycophancy if it were not sarcasm.

The American Institute Fair is to commence here next Wednesday, at the Sixty-third Street Skating Rink, in this city. It promises to be a stupendous thing. Even now applications have been made for several thousand more feet of exhibiting room than exist.

At the Walnut Mr. Harry Watkins will have a farewell benefit this evening, when he will appear as "Myra Napolitano" in Henrietta's Irish drama of "The Golden Broom." The performance will commence with the musical extravaganza of "Jenny Lind." Mr. and Mrs. Watkins are both good actors, and they have steadily grown in the good graces of our playgoers during their brief visit here.

At the American the regular fall season has commenced, and Manager Fox will begin to introduce a brilliant series of novelties which he has had in preparation during the summer. The company at this establishment is large, and the entertainments combine a variety of attractions such as are presented at no other theatre.

The "Formosa." on the ground of its immorality. If the editorials in that journal may be regarded as the shadows of the coming criticisms that are to emanate from the pen of "Willie Winter." Now my experience is that the public, particularly the New York public, don't care a tinker's beedication what the immorality of a play is so that it makes one forget the time. No doubt there is something inherently attractive in wickedness. If opera bouffe could have remained just as bright, but become virtuous, it might have drawn. But would it have remained bright? Echo answers, of course not. The principal fault found with the character of "Formosa" is, that she utilizes the hardness of a sinner with the softness of a saint, the actions of an unflinching courtesan with the prayers and tears of a Magdalen. She is one of those modern Ariettes that are the bewildering eidolon of the Boucicalitau brain, and never found their incarnation in one and the same woman. She is a composite heroine, made up of bits borrowed here and there, for which Boucicalit is indebted to a good deal of scissors and a very little sentiment, that's all.

If God made the country and man made the town, the Devil certainly made the Watering-places, for they are composed of some of the worst qualities of both, and none of the best qualities of either. This cold snap has sent the human summer birds up in flocks from Long Branch. It looks as though we were to have an early autumn, for summer has no sooner said goodbye than it is gone.

Remarkable Young Men of the Present Day is Mr. James R. Griawold, a clerk in the Secretary's office of the Board of Health. He is emphatically a great young man. He has not got the prudence and reserve of George Francis Train; nor the horror of newspaper publicity which characterizes Count Johannes; nor the modest unconcern of merit which is one of the sweetest attributes in the traveller of world-wide celebrity, Pratt, No. But he has something beyond all these things. He hates money. To him there is literally filthy lucre. It is the pitch with which he declines defiling his fingers. He will not touch the unclean thing. Although young, he has already inscribed his name upon the roll of undying fame. When he was in the office of the Sanitary Superintendent he received $1800 per annum. On being transferred to the Secretary's office that salary was continued, although the other clerks received $900 less. He has therefore written to the Board of Health, requesting that his salary may be reduced by that amount, and the Board have granted his request. Such a young man as that is to be kept in this city. He is one of the ten righteous men that shall save it. AM BADA.
