SPAIN AND CUBA.

THE existing Provisional Government of Spain is placed on the horns of a dilemma by the present aspect of the Cuban question. Beleaguered with dangers at home, it can illy afford to conduct an expensive campaign abroad, which promises to terminate eventually in a disastrous defeat. The secret letter of the Spanish Minister at Washington, which is said to have been intercepted, expresses a lively fear that as soon as Congress meets it will recognize the independence of Cuba, and if such recognition is accompanied by the grant of opportunities to the revolutionists to obtain aid and comfort in this country, it will be impossible for the Spanish troops to conquer the rebellion. Whatever is to be done must therefore be done soon, and if De Rodas cannot crush the insurrection in sixty days it is only a question of time when the whole enterprise must be abandoned as impracticable.

The proposition submitted by the United States at this juncture, that Spain shall sur-Cubans are to pay a fair price for the public buildings, and their share of the Spanish debt, would, if adopted now, promote the true interests of both the conflicting parties, and at once mitigate the horrors and ravages of war and help the cause of free government in the mother country as well as in the rebellious colony. It would replenish the Spanish treasury and reduce its expenditures, and yet save for the Cubans more than the tribute which the proposed arrangement would exact.

If the Spanish Government declines this proposition, despite the cogent reasons urged in its favor, it will be mainly because it fears that the pride of the nation will revolt against the surrender of a possession which has been held for nearly four centuries. If Cuba is voluntarily given up, the discontented factions and the royalists will accuse the existing administration of a direct betrayal of the national interests, and impute to the basest motives an action prompted by the purest and wisest statesmanship. It is doubtful whether the present rulers, who hold their power by a precarious tenure, could resist the storm: and, if they reject the American proposition, it will be mainly because fear of their turbulent constituents is their ruling principle of

NO MORE NATURALIZATION FRAUDS.

The gross naturalization frauds which were perpetrated about one year ago through the facilities offered by the Court of Nisi Prius, and which we were chiefly instrumental in exposing, suggested the imperative necessity for a thorough reform in the whole manner of conducting this important business.

The matter is one that Congress onght to deal with without further delay, and afford protection to legal voters by taking the power of granting naturalization papers out of the hands of the State Courts, and forbidding any naturalizations within a certain time, say three, or even six months of the elections. Until Congress does this the evils of last year are liable to be renewed at any time, and the Democratic managers to overrule by fraud the votes of honest men as they did in this city last October. The decision of Chief Justice Thompson, affirming the legality of the naturalization papers granted by Judge Sharswood's court, settles the question as far as they are concerned, and so long as the State Judges have authority to grant these papers, and to decide upon their genuineness, it is useless for us to complain.

There is, however, a partial remedy for the existing evil, and we are gratified that the Supreme Court has determined to apply it. By an order of the court no assignment of a judge has been made to hold Nisi Prius during the months of September and October of the present year, and consequently no naturalizations in this court can be made just prior to the election. The majority of the Judges, who decided upon this course, are entitled to the thanks of all honest men, and it is to be hoped that they will adopt this expedient every year, if it should be necessary to do so.

A HARD HIT BY HEISTER.

THE Hon. Heister Clymer, it appears, has been passing a few days at the White Sulphur Springs, and while so doing made a little speech, in the course of which, according to an admiring Democratic journal, he made a "political hit" that was "hugely relished" by his chivalrous Virginian audience. Mr. Clymer "hit" his auditors in a very tender spot, and with a great deal of force, and they showed how complete and thorough has been their reconstruction by the huge relish wherewith they received the blow. The way in which Mr. Clymer "hit" at his listeners was substantially in these words:-"The reason that Pennsylvania is so prosperous and blooms like a garden, is owing to the system of small farms of fifty to one hundred acres, instead of five hundred, eight hundred, or one thousand acre plantations. It will be seen that Mr. Clymer in this short sentence comprehended the true secret of Northern prosperity and Southern sluggishness. When a man owns the soil he tills, he is nerved to do his best to extract from it the largest possible return for his toil. The subdivision of agricultural lands is the surest road to productive wealth, the most certain guarantee of a thorough and economical culture of the soil. In the main this system has

Evening Telegraph | prevailed throughout all the Northern States, and the result is an irrefutable argument | FIFTH EDITION tracts of land in the hands of one person. The landed system to which the South adhered previous to the war was precisely the reverse, and, taken in connection with the blighting system of slave labor, resulted in the least remunerative agricultural policy that the world has ever seen. But, after all, the slave code was responsible for the whole thing. The peculiar institution tended to concentrate, not only the labor, but the land as well, in the hands of the few, while the masses of whites, by reason of a lack of capital and a contempt for honest industry, were forced to live from hand to mouth. The staunchest advocates of the slave system, moreover, professed to believe that slave labor was rendered more profitable by concentration than diffusion, and thus the evil was fostered and perpetuated within itself.

Now that slavery has been sent to the dogs by the folly of its propagandists, the true secret of the agricultural prosperity of the States which were happily exempt from its accursed presence is slowly but surely dawning upon the minds of its ruined adherents. Some of them still cling to their wide domains of unprodustive land, preferring to linger out the remnant of their days in shabby gentility, rather than make a serious effort to rehabilitate the Southern States by giving the poor whites and the enfranchised blacks a chance to earn an honest and decent livelihood, and at the same time restore a measure of their own prosperity. But there the numerous indications of render Cuba with the understanding that the adoption of a wiser policy on the part of many of the Southern landholders, and if the whole tribe of Democratic demagogues would but follow the example of Heister Clymer, and make the tour of the South disseminating similar advice, the waste places would soon be made green and the abomination of desolation give way to a degree of prosperity which the Southern States never did and never could enjoy at the bidding of the slave-driver. If all our zealous Democratic friends, who indulge in so much abuse of political reconstruction, will but temper their tirades against radicalism by lending a helping hand to productive reconstruction, they will do more good than harm.

> The variety of public gatherings is to be further increased by a "Capital Convention." to be held at St. Louis in November. We have had so many nonsensical demonstrations lately that a real first-rate convention of the best minds of the Union to propose something useful, rational, and necessary for the welfare of the people would be a refreshing novelty and a capital ideas. But the St. Louis affair promises to be the biggest humbug of the season. Its whole object is to assist the agitation for the transfer of the seat of the national government from the banks of the Potomac to the shores of the Mississippi, and the projectors have modestly asked the Governors of various States to send delegates. The Governor of Missouri has determined to appoint a delegation, as a matter of course, and the only other executive who has yet given a favorable response is Warmouth, of Louisiana, who, as a representative of the river town of New Orleans, naturally hopes that if the kitchen cabinet is established at the upper river town of St. Lonis, some of the drippings will float down the stream. The committee, seeing that their little game is pretty well understood, and that the Governors generally are as shy of it as they would be of a proposed game of another description on a river steamboat, pluckily resolve that the "convention will be held if no more than three States are represented." Certainly, gentlemen, that's the way to do it. You must begin somewhere, and if you once have a start there is no telling how soon a few verdant outsiders may be

> THE HAGGERTY CASE took a curious turn today. This being the last day of the fourth term of the Criminal Court since his committal to prison, and no impediments to a trial having been interposed by the prisoner or his counsel, and the case not having been pressed to trial by the District Attorney, Haggerty's counsel, as was anticipated, applied for his discharge. But to their utter discomfiture, Mr. Sheppard produced a record of the court showing that on December 11, 1865, one James Haggerty was convicted of burglary and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment therefor, but was pardoned by Governor Curtin on August 28, 1866, on the express condition, however, that he would forthwith leave the country. As Haggerty had not complied with the conditions imposed by the Executive, the District Attorney moved for a rule to show cause why he should not be returned to his old quarters in the Eastern Penitentiary. Thus the matter stands, and before the case can be decided, the important question of the constitutionality of a conditional pardon must be definitely passed upon.

No Hopes of the Recovery of Senntor Fes-No Hopes of the Recovery of Senator Fessenden.

Pertland, Sept. 4.—At midnight last night both of Senator Fessenden's physicians had given up all hopes of his recovery. He was gradually sinking, and appeared to be in a delitious stupor. He was taken on Tuesday morning with stoppage of the bowels, since which time his disorder has assumed a more violent form, ulceration having set in. It was thought he might possibly live until morning, but death is a mere question of time.

RUBY GRAY'S STRATEGY, by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, is the title of an entire new novel from the pen of this talented American authoress, to be published on Saturday seat by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia. The novels of Mrs. Stephens are productive of both pleasure and excitement. They are, moreover, always successful, for the reason that, while this gifted author is a conscientious follower of nature, she has also that fine artistic sense which teaches that nature, when shown within the lines of art, must be measurably heightened, colored, and enlarged. This is the real secret of successful writing—a secret appreciated by such masters of fiction as Dickens and Thackersy. There is no previous work of Mrs. Stephens so full of her peculiar power and genius; none so absorbing in conception and development, as "Ruby Gray's Strategy." It is fully equal to her "Fashion and Famine."
