The Control of the Co

NEW-YORHISMS.

From Our Own Corresponden

NEW YORK, Sept. 8, 1869. What is being done inside the wooden fence that encloses the grounds whereon

The New Post Office is to be built remains something of a mystery. It is daily surrounded by curious crowds, who catch but a glimpse of the proceedings within. Yesterday, I believe, a large quantity of concrete was thrown in, and the foundation will be laid the latter part of this week or the beginning of next. The basin of the old fountain which used to adorn the middle of the space to be covered by the Post Office is at present being used as a huge mortar, in which the cement to be used in the building of the edifice is being ground. I might add that the fence is being rapidly placarded over with advertisements, among which the moral story-paper publisher, Bonner, holds a prominent place. Meanwhile, suppose the Common Council, who did not happen to have a finger in that pie, should order the fence to be taken down, who would be the sufferer thereby-the lessee who has paid his fifteen thousand dollars for the exclusive privilege of pasting bills upon it, or could he fall back upon the Federal Government? Here is a Blackstonian question for the civic casuists of the law to quarrel over.

Retaliation. Thomas McCready, a former employe of Booth's theatre, was recently discharged from some cause or other, and continued to nourish against the management a spite which found expression a day or two ago. He made his way into the building by the Sixth avenue entrance and, reaching the stage, advanced to the "firebutt," turned on the water, and inundated the stage and some of the scenery. One of the watchmen happened to hear the noise, rushel on the stage, turned off the water, and turne on the intruder, who was subsequently take before the Jefferson Market Police Court, and committed for trial in default of $300 bail. The City Hotels are crowded with birds-of-passage from the watering-places. The fashionable aviaries at Long Branch, Cape May, and Newport are depleted, and the season of 1869 belongs to the past already. A night or two ago the very interesting children known as The Franko Family

gave a musical soiree at Mr. Curet's French saloon, on Broadway, below Tenth street. They consist of five children ranging between the ages of seven and fourteen, and play exceedingly well upon the violin and the piano. Among the guests present were Mr. Max Maretzek and Mad'lle Sangali the danseuse, who takes an interest in everything musical, and does not exercise her voice the less because she cultivates her legs the more. After the concert, the company, which consisted of thirty-seven, all toldincluding that inevitable "newspaper man," without whom no assemblage of the kind is complete-sat down to a collation at which Rhine wine and champagne were not altogether wanting, and a moderate degree of elevatedness was not deemed totally worthy of censure.

Wallack's opens next Wednesday evening, with most of the old members and a few new ones. Miss Henriques assumes the place so long and so pleasantly filled by Miss Rose Eytinge. Effic Germon is a member of the troupe. She has found out that New York appreciates her better than Philadelphia, and she is free from the petty persecutions of anonymous detractors. The principal new appearances will be confined to Mr. Charles Wyndham, Miss Henriques, and Miss Louisa Moore.

A house divided against itself cannot stand. Such a house is that at No. 49 East Twentythird street, New York city, which, upon consulting the metropolitan directory, will be found to have opposite its name on the printed page the name of Susan B. Anthony, publisheress of the Revolution. In fact, there is war to the knife-I should say to the scissors-among the women's rights women. Miss Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Sarah F. Norton are having it hot and heavy. In the course of the last meeting Sarah said something at which Susan took umbrage. Thereupon (so the reporters say) Susan appealed to the better part of Sarah's nature, and so wrought upon Sarah's feelings that Sarah took back all the indignation and sarcasm she had indulged in. In a card, however, which appeared in the Herald Sarah indignantly denies all this. She speaks sneeringly-not to say witheringlyof the "personal magnetism" and "powerful persuasion" of Susan, and announces her intention of making war upon the association until it is purged of its ten cent speculators, or until it dies. Good for Sarah! When she talks thus she slings printer's ink to some purpose. She is a good-looking, olive-complexioned, brighteyed looking little lady, with sharp lips and a a determined manner, calculated to give the friends of Mr. Norton the highest possible opinion of his wife. I am occasionally surprised to find

How Many Philadelphians There Are Among the New York Journalists, and how well they are invariably doing. However hard may be the times which the stranger at first experiences among the Bobemians here, it is his own fault if the hard times last forever. Not a few of these Philadelphia importations make $100 per week, and with certainly no more labor than many a man transacts for less money in the newspaper offices of other cities. If he chooses to be very industrious, to live soberly, to extend his connections among newspapers, to brains, his income can be increased to any reasonable amount. ALI BABA. MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

"Fra Diavolo" by the Richings Troupe. Auber's opera of Fra Diavolo is better adapted for the introductory effort of a new company than Faust, and the performance last evening although it dragged considerably at times, wen off more satisfactorily than that of the night before. The music is bright, sparkling, and fascinating throughout, and although there are few operas more frequently repeated, it is easy to account for its continued popularity with the public. The music, too, is comparatively easy, and is within the range of any singers of ordi nary culture, and there are numerous opportunities for amusing comic acting which serve to entertain an andience independently of the merits of the music.

The performance of Fra Diavolo last evening introduced Miss Blanche Ellermann, the new prima donna, who appeared in the character of "Zerlina." This lady has a pleasing stage presence, and a sweet and pure but not a very powerful soprano voice, which she appears to be unable to use to the best advantage. Her style is very crude, and her singing unsympathetic, and it would be judged from her effort last evening that she is entirely unaccustomed to appearing in leading roles. Her embarrassment and lack of animation, however, may have been due to a not unnatural nervousness at appearing beto a not unnatural nervousness at appearing before an audience of entire strangers, and we are disposed therefore to see more of her before forming a final opinion as to her merits.

Mr. Brookhouse Bowler, who has appeared here several times with success in concerts, made a very favorable impression as the gay and fascinating hero of the piece. Mr. Bowle appears to be an excellent actor, and his personation of the operatic ideal of an Italian brigand was picturesque and spirited, more so than Mr. Castle's representation of the same part. Mr. Bowler has a fine voice, which is far, however, from being a pure tenor, but he man-ages it with much skill, and his rendition of the airs which fell to him last evening secured the heartlest applause. Mr. Bowler will undoubtedly prove a valuable member of the troupe, and it his voice is not of as delicate a quality as that of Mr. Haigh, he is likely to become more popular with general audiences than that gentleman.

Mrs Bowler more than confirmed the favorable opinion formed of her on her first appearance by her lively personation of "Lady All-cash" last evening. She sang and acted with much animation and won greatly on the regards of the audience.

Mr. James Arnold made a fair representative of "Lord Allcash," but as a buffo singer he is by no means equal to many others that the public are familiar with. Mr. Henry Drayton and Mr. Henry C. Peakes made excellent representatives of the two ruffians "Giacomo" and "Beppo," the former gentleman sustaining the reputation he has won as a thoroughly competent artist.

Neither the orchestra nor the chorus have been got well in hand yet, and there were consequently some irregularities that are to be expected on the first nights of the season, but which a few performances will overcome.

The City Amusements. AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC Verdi's opera of Il Trovatore will be performed this evening, with the following cast:—"Manrico," Mr. Henry Haigh; "Count di Luna." Mr. Henry Drayton; "Ferrando," Mr. H. C. Peakes; "Leonora," Mrs. Bernard; "Azucena," Mrs. Bowler. To-morrow evening The Bohemian Girl will

AT THE WALNUT the drama of Reaping the Cempest will be performed this evening, with Mrs. D. P. Bowers in the leading role. A new romantic play, entitled Snare: or, What Can Money Do? written by Mr. Edmund Falconer for Mrs. Bowers, is announced as in rehearsal

THE FEVER AND AGUE SEASON .- When the leaves begin to change, remittent and intermittent fevers make their appearance. From the surface of the earth, bathed nightly in heavy dews, from marshes and swamps surcharged with moisture, from the dying foliage of the woo's, from festering pools and sluggish streams, the sun of September evolves clouds of miasmatic vapor perilous to health and life. The body, deprived by the burning temperature of July and August of much of its vigor and elasticity, is not in a proper plight to resist malaria; and hence all diseases that are produced by a depraved condition of the atmosphere are particularly prevalent in the fail.

There is no reason why the health of thousands of people hould be thus sacrificed. A preparatory course of Hos-TETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is a certain protection against the epidemics and endemics which autumn brings in its train. Let all dwellers in unhealthy localities, liable to such visitations, give heed to the warning and advice conveyed in this advertisement, and they may bid defiance to the foul exhalations which are now rising, night and day, from the soil around them. No farmhouse in the land should be without this inva uable exhilarant and invigo-rant at any period of the year, but especially in the fall. It is not safe to go forth into the chill, misty atmosphere of a September morning or evening with the stomach un fortified by a tonic, and of all the tonics which medical chemistry has yet given to the world HOSTETTER'S BIT-TERS are admitted to be the purest, the most wholesome, and the most beneficial.

Let ail who desire to escape the bilious attacks, bowel complaints, and malarious fevers, take the BITTERS at least twice a day throughout the present season. It is as wholesome as it is infallible. Look to the trade-mark, "HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS," engraved on the label and embossed on the bottle, and their revenue stamp covering the cork, as counterfeits and imitations abound.
